SHAVERTOWN

After the long drought how welcome was the rainfall when we awoke Monday morning. George Jacobs, one of our big crop growers, tells me the tomatoes were virtually stewing on the vines, and how fortunate we were that no fires threatened our community.

One of our neighbors, while burning trash on Saturday, nearly set a blaze which would have certainly caused trouble if the men didn't get the hoses out on the double.

Although the grass has suffered, fruit has thrived in the torrid weather and all the trees about us are laden with fine crops. The termites have threatened some of the maples in the community, and small snakes seem to be in abundance, but the sunshine has been with us to give us a real taste of summer.

MORE ON THE MATTER

Dan Shaver, our supervisor, went on patrol Saturday night with one of the special police. We are glad to see some interest.

The ignited newspaper was found at Shavertown Lumber Company the morning of July 6 and the main window breakage occurred the 14th in case anyone has any questions as to who was where. Ass't Chief Coslett investigated on the 15th. No one answered the first call

Rev. Robert Yost was back on his pulpit Sunday after a pleasant vacation to the West Coast, the South West and visits to former parishioners along the route home.

A word of commendation to the ladies of St. Paul's and other members of the community who have worked all summer in the intense heat to keep the cancer dressings available for those in need.

Shavertown Fire Company is much in demand. The boys were in the parade Saturday night at Courtdale and have two invitations for this weekend, to West Pittston and Luzerne.

Our hats are off to the Little League All Stars who made such a fine showing this year. With such promise the boys will undoubtedly go even farther next year.

Crunchy Tuna Burgers Win Teen Applause

Away up there on the list of all-time teen food favorites is the tuna burger. And the latest in tuna burgers is also the crunchiest burger around. Potato chips, another teen stand-by, provide the crunch; tuna amply provides for the filling which is a luscious combination of tuna chunks, mustard pickle relish mayonnaise and, of course, the crunch.

Mom votes for tuna burgers, noisy or noiseless. Teens can make them up for themselves, and they're dandy for parties or any gatherings of the teen clan. One serving of tuna provides more protein than a comparable serving of red meat and it's just as comparatively kind to the budget.

The filling can be made up ahead of time, to waylay that determined after-school refrigerator detective with nourishment on his mind. And there are no rules limiting tuna burgers to a certain age group. It has been noted that dads are fond of the very same burger for midnight snacking and the lunchbox crew is on record in a national survey rating tuna sandwiches as their top favorite.

Crunchy Tuna Burgers

2 cans (6½ - 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil)
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 tablespoon pickle relish
⅓ cup mayonnaise
½ cup coarsely crumbled crisp potato chips
6 hamburger rolls
2 tablespoons softened butter or margarine.

Combine tuna, mustard, pickle relish and mayonnaise; mix well. Stir in crumbled potato chips. Split hamburger rolls, spread with butter. Toast bottom halves in the broiler, butter side up, until lightly browned. Divide tuna mixture among the halves; spread to edge. Broil about 5 minutes or until lightly browned and heated through. Place remaining halves, butter side up, in broiler last 2 to 3 minutes of broiling time. Remove from broiler; cover with top halves.

Yield: 6 servings.
