The old line publishers have, very naturally, not been well pleased with the now famous enterprise, "The Literary Revolution;" and in depreflag, is reported to be dying in abject ciation of its character have laid special stress upon the claim that in cheapening books so vastly it is against the interests of American authors. The revolution boldly meets this assertion by statements as follows: lst. That American authors rarely receive from publishers a copyright exceeding 10 per cent. upon the retail price of their books actually sold. 3d. That at least one-half, and probably more nearly three-fourths, of the books published by American authors have been published at the author's expense, the publishers furnishing no money, and paying no copyright, but themselves receiving a large percentage upon sales made. 4th. That they propose hereafter to pay to American authors for acceptable manuscripts a copyright of 15 per cent, instead of 0 per cent, and they claim that their low prices, and immense sales resulting therefrom, are far more in the interest of authors than much larger copyright on the commonly limited number of sales - "One thousand books, profit $1,00 each=$1,000. Lossing, LL.D. This poem is almost as much a part of American history as the battle of Bunker Hill itself, and Dr. Lossing has greatly increased both its interest Joseph Dollinger. and its intrinsic value by his historical comments and illustrations. This book was published a few years ago by one of the old publishing houses at the price of $2.00 per copy, and had only a very limited sale. The publishers claim that the reception of their new edition guarantees a sale of at least 50,000, or even more probably 100,000 copies; and Mr. Lossing will, of course, reap a handsome reward, even from the small royalty upon the low price. -Mr. Windom is developing a line of policy of his own. By the manufacture of silver dollars and the importation of gold our currency is being constantly more and more inflated. Mr. Windom proposes a measure which will be at once one of resumption and contraction, viz.: the withdrawal of all the legal tender notes from circulation of the denomination of ones, twos, and fives. This will decrease the greenback currency nearly $111,000,000, and would undoubtedly have the effect of drawing nearly, if not quite, all the silver coin from the Treasury, and bringing gold the same manner. Such a radical course, however, depends on so many conditions for its successfu! operation that it will probably wait till the maturing-debt question is well out of the way .- Phila. Press.

A convict named Kitchen Ginn, confined in the penitentiary at that place, occupied a cell with a sick companion. The companion died, and the body, after being shrouded, was placed in a coffin, and the undertaker went home to dinner. As soon as the door had been locked Ginn, who was in bed pretending to be sick, got out, took the dead man from the coffin, placed him in the bed, and got into the coffin himself. When the burial party returned they placed the coffin in a wagon and drove off without discovering the deception. Before they reached the burial ground the corpse began to roll and kick in the coffin, which so frightened the undertaker that he ran away, whereupon the man lifted the lid of the coffin and es caped.

-Last Friday, Mr. W. B. Watson, a well known teamster, says the Tidioute News of April 15, while working with a shovel with a defective bandle, ran a sliver into his hand. It pained him some, but an examination failed to find any of the sliver. Saturday morning he washed a pair of horse blankets, and within two hours thereafter his hand began to swell, finally affecting his arm and later his entire body. He was also taken violently ill, part of the time being deranged. He suffered great agony until this morning. when death came to his relief. It was clearly a case of poisoning, though just how is not known. The blankets were used on the horses last fall while they were suffering from epizootic, and the reasonable view is that some of the fetid matter was rubbed by the animals into the blankets and was dried there. The case is one of the saddest that has occurred in Tidioute for a long time. He leaves a wife and five children in moderate circumstan-
