A Star Route Swindle.

[Bradford Sunday News.]

The examination into the Star Postal Route swindles which has been occupying the minds of the United States authorities for several weeks past has developed one of local interest, inasmuch as it has been discovered that the swindlers were getting in their work in this vicinity. In keeping with all their other transactions the field selected by the "contractors" for the carrying out of their scheme was through a barren, unbroken country, and it is a question if there are half a dozen houses lying between the two points traversed. The route was from Custer City to Kinzua village, and the contract, which was awarded to a man living in Kentucky, called for the delivery and transportation of all mail matter between these two places once a week. The recompense was placed at between six and seven hundred dollars a year, and the material used for transportation consisted of a solitary horse and one man.

The conveyance, it appears, was extensive enough to perform the work, and it was never known where the horse or man suffered any inconvenience from an overload. Judging from the amount of labor required, the position the deliverer of mail matter enjoyed was an agreeable one, and he has been known to go and come for weeks at a time without receiving or delivering as much as a postal card. Postmaster Streeter, of Custer City, on assuming the duties of his office over a year ago, soon saw the uselessness of the delivery, and he wrote to the proper authorities at Washington intimating that it ought to be abolished. No attention was paid to the matter at the time by the powers then in possession of official station, but since the new administration has been in operation they have taken cognizance of the "Custer City, Kinzua post route," as it was called, and last week ordered that it be discontinued. Wherefore the solitary horseman with an empty mail pouch will no more wend his way over the lonely hills between Custer and Kinzua.

Educational Notes.

—School Directors and Teachers will be interested in the following Act of Assembly, entitled "An Act requiring the school directors of the several school districts of this Commonwealth, to allow the school teachers their time and wages while attending the annual county institutes and prescribing certain duties of the county, and city superintendents respecting the same."

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same: That from and after the passage of this act, it shall be the duty of the school directors of the several school districts of this Commonwealth and they are hereby required to allow the school teachers employed in the said school districts who are actually engaged in teaching school thereon, the time and wages whilst attending and participating in the exercises of the annual county institutes for the improvement of teachers.

Sec. 2. That at the close of the annual sessions of the said institutes it shall be the duty of the several city, borough and county superintendents to make a report to each board of school directors in their respective jurisdiction, setting forth the number of days that each teacher shall have attended and participated in the exercises of the annual county institutes, which said report shall be the basis for allowing the teachers their time and wages; provided, that the provisions of this act shall not extend to the first school district of Pennsylvania nor to the counties wherein special laws, regulating or relating to county institutes are in force.

It should be a matter of special pride to the school teachers of Elk county that their own Representative Hon. J. L. Brown framed, introduced, and warmly advocated the passage of the above bill. It was known as "Brown's bill," and was passed without any amendment. Many a teacher will now feel relieved and county superintendents need have no anxiety about attendance at county institutes.

The annual district reports should be made at once. Directors do not delay or the appropriations may be lost.

Some Superstitions.

INCIDENTS IN THE LIVES OF GREAT AND LITTLE MEN.

The most water-of-faith man we know, and one who would be considered the very last to be effected by these old traditions, says he don't care for new moons over his left shoulder, howling dogs at midnight, or any thing of the kind, but he says if a woman with a big stone chasing a nookey cow, he is always sure to hear of a new maie grave.

It is said that even President Garfield has his little peculiarities in this line. When we were boys together in Ohio he would never get into a water melon patch at night where there was a building. He said that wherever there was a building everything was sacred. So superstitions was he about this style of bird. Garfield said to us once that he would just as soon rob his mother's grave as to enter the hallowed precincts where the burial rests of the dead were to be seen.

Attorney General MacVeagh who is said, will never wash his head with the brush that the black girl has rowed from his dressing case. He says that the long hairs tickle his scalp, and the girl is almost sure to lose her situation. It is a bad sign.

Rosecoe Conkling, who is said to be a lover of tobacco. He thinks that if he were to do so he would come to want, and he would rather, if anyone suffers, that it should be his friends.

Henry Ward Beecher says that if, in walking out in the yard, he sees a clothes line and saws it across his windpipe, it is a sure sign that some one will get ticked.

General Sherman says that he cares nothing for the war warnings and bad signs, but he would not go over seven blocks to avoid a woman with a garden hose and a lumberman's bonnet.

An old journalist we once knew was so suspicious about railroads and different lines of transit that he wouldn't take a journey over any railway, until he had a note from the superintendent that could be shown to the conductors on the way. He said he tried to make a trip without this precaution, and met with a terrible accident. Nobody else was hurt, but he was thrown off the train and over an embankment twenty-seven feet high into a frog pond eleven feet deep. He thinks the conductor had something to do with it. —Bill Nye.

Advertising that Paid.

John Manning, Sheriff of Deadwood, Dakota Territory, was in St. Louis on business, and he remembered that the year before a St. Louis man had been up to Deadwood and left owing a man several hundred dollars, which was to be paid as soon as he got home. Manning met the man in St. Louis, and he said he would hand him the money next day, but the day passed and the money did not come, though the man was amply able to pay. So one morning Manning inserted a personal in a newspaper to the effect that if the man who left Deadwood between two days, did not pay the money he forgot to pay night before, the whole circumstances would be published next day. The notice was signed "John Manning, Sheriff of Deadwood." Before 9 o'clock a young man called at Manning's hotel and said he had seen the notice and had come to pay $220 he had borrowed to get out of Deadwood. Manning found out who the money was borrowed of and took it to carry to the Deadwood citizen, remarking that he was not the man to whom the Sheriff referred, but it was a mighty neat money, and apologized, and begged the Sheriff to say nothing about it. During the day seven citizens of St. Louis called on Manning and paid him money for citizens of Deadwood, believing the Sheriff had reference to them in his notice, and after he had gone away another citizen called and asked the clerk for Manning, but the clerk said the other fellows had all been there and paid up, and this man had better keep his money. The Sheriff said he always thought advertising paid, but he never had it demonstrated to his satisfaction before.

Clever Forgeries.

A WESTERN SYSTEM OF VICTIMIZING BANKS THAT HAS MET MUCH SUCCESS.

A system of bank swindling has been carried on in the west for some time past that has not only alarmed monetary institutions all over the country but has baffled every effort at discovery. It is conducted by men who are thoroughly acquainted with the routine of banking business, and who continue to effectually keep their identity a secret. That there are several engaged in it has become an almost established fact, and that they are bold, adroit, well practiced rascals is evident from the success with which they have so far outwitted their operations.

The Exchange Bank, of Pittsburg, Pa., has suffered extensively from the attacks of this gang on its resources. It has borne the burden patiently for a year, expecting each moment to see the guilty parties brought to justice. That has not been done, and the agents of the bank in New York city have taken another course.

This was resolved on Thursday morning, when Mr. Butler, the paying teller of the Leather Manufacturers' bank, at No. 29 Wall street, received two forged checks. One was for $500 and the other for $600, and both were drawn on the Exchange bank of Pittsburg, Pa., and purported to come regularly from that institution. They were sent to the Leather Manufacturers' bank, the representatives of the Exchange bank, through the Bank of New York and the Bank of Commerce and had been cashed originally, one in Michigan and one in Ohio. Mr. Butler, who has become acquainted with the evidences of the system of the western swindlers, returned the checks and forwarded information of the matter to the proper authorities.

A reporter of the Herald called on him during the afternoon to make inquiries relative to the forgeries, and he said that, to his knowledge, the forgers had been at work for over a year.

"Where do you suppose these forged checks come from?"

"All over the country. These men are too clever to confine their operations to one locality. They know too much. As soon as they get a draft cashed in one town off they go to another, and we have been receiving them from all quarters."

"To what extent have you been victimized?"

"The Exchange Bank of Pittsburg has lost between $5,000 and $9,000. This sum has been obtained in checks ranging from $50 to $1,500 each."

"How are the forgers able to get the money?"

"Well, you see, this man, or these men, whichever it is, manage to get in with some drover or merchant in the town, and they arrange matters for him at the bank. Probably he does business with the man, and then, in the course of trade, puts the fraudulent paper on him. Some of these country banks have no agents in New York, and these checks travel round by way of Chicago and other large cities to us, and so a number of people are cheated before we see the checks."

"How about the indorsements?"

"The indorsements are done in different hands from the body of the checks, but of course that is attended to in order to avoid suspicion. It might be done in a disguised hand by the man who passes the check if he filled the body, but it is more likely that different parties attend to the different departments of the business. You see, a man in a remote neighborhood is easily thrown off his guard by a plausible customer and he will readily go out of his way to oblige a man who is likely to do business with him in the future, and promises a continuance of most profitable and harmonious relations. They are clever, there is no doubt of that, but I think they will soon be brought to grief."
