Thanksgiving Proclamation.

Governor Hoyt has issued the following Thanksgiving proclamation, which, it will be observed, sets apart the same day as that appointed by President Arthur:

A PROCLAMATION.

"In common with the inhabitants of all the land, the people of this State have just cause of thankfulness to Almighty God for the manifold material, intellectual and spiritual fruits and increase of the year: Now, therefore,

I, Henry M. Hoyt, Governor of Pennsylvania, do ordain and appoint Thursday, the thirtieth day of November, A. dent of the United States, a day of thanksgiving and prayer, to the end that the citizens of the Commonwealth, of every race, creed and condition, together with the way farer and sojourner therein, may gather at the altar and the hearth to give thanks to domestic ties; and to set apart out of ## Important Pension Decision.

ITS EFFECT UPON THE WIDOWS AND CHILDREN OF SOLDIERS IN THE LATE WAR. A Washington dispatch says: In

of the widow and children of private been killed in the war of the rebellion. the commissioner of pensions rejected the application on the ground that the record failed to show, and the applicant was unable to prove the fact, date or cause of the soldier's death. The roll of the company to which the soldier belonged showed that he was wounded in action on October 27th, 1861, and sent to the hospital, and was not again with the company, which continued in service until the twenty-ninth of September 1865. An appeal was taken of four years. She had been absent the interior. Acting Secretary Joslyn has just delivered an opinion reversing when the child grew tired and wished | the decision and directing the issuance of a pension to Dangerfield's heirs. This opinion, which will be of interest to a large class of applicants for pensions, reviews all the circumstances of the case and says: "Referring to the case cited in your report, in which it was held by the secretary of the interior that the death of a soldier caunot be presumed, but must be proven, to entitle his widow to pension, I have to state that cases arise in which it is clothing. The corset-steel is one of impossible to obtain postive proof of the soldier's death, but the presumption of his death from causes connected with his service is so strong as to justify the allowance of a claim for pension made on behalf of his widow, children or dependent relatives. When a soldier is reported "missing in action" under circumstances which lead to the belief that he was killed in the battle a claim for pension on his account may Custer killed himself, when he saw properly be allowed. When a soldier that death was inevitable, in prefer- was captured by the enemy and all the circumstance of the case led to the belief that he died from disease contracted while in captivity, it would be proper late a body which they find dead, and in the execution of the pension law to General Custer's was the only one that | act upon the presumption of his death. * * * The presumption of common pieces or burned. WHAT A PITTSBURG "DOCTOR" IS CHARGED WITH.

The Pittsburg Telegraph is responsible for the following: Not long since an information was made before Deputy Mayor Porter charging Peter Ammon with being a witch doctor. The case was sent to the grand jury and a true bill has been found. Those familiar with his manner of treatment say some startling and shocking revelations will be made if the case ever comes to trial, and for the sake of the deluded persons who believe the necromancer's art, they hope it may be called up during this term of the criminal court. This information was made by a Mrs. McDonald, of the East End, but it is by no means the first one but heretofore threats of casting baneful spells upon them have secured the withdrawal of the charges. Mrs. McDonald, however, is not a believer in the black arts, consequently be remembered that one of Ammon's patients, Mrs, Engle, of East Liberty, died recently. At the time there was no little talk about the treatment she received, but as her husband and friends appeared to be satisfied, nothing further was done in the matter until Mrs. McDonald, who was charged with having bewitched the woman, took it up. THE CHARGE.

To the deputy mayor she stated, when she made the information against Ammon, that her neighbors all shunned her and pointed her out as a witch, and said she killed Mrs. Engle. They firmly believed she is in league with the devil, and avoid her and her family as if they had horns and cloven feet or emitted sulphurous smoke from their mouths. It was partly on account of this that she brought the charge against "Doctor" Ammon, as he is called, and partly because she is believes he is doing much harm. She said the way he came to treat Mrs Engle was that he heard she had been sick for some time and called to see her. During his conversation with her he said he thought she was under a spell, and all the medicine she could take would do her no good until the spell was broken. He intimated that he knew who had cast the spell upon her but would not name her. Mrs. Engle became so completely under the influence that she readily consented to do whatever he ordered. During his visit she says he dropped hints that led Mrs. Engle and the neighbors women to believe that she was the witch, and they have treated her as a veritable emissary of Satan ever since.

A HORRIBLE STORY.

Her account of treatment prescribed by the alledged doctor is a most horrible story, and were it not that there have been similar cases of this kind before that are vouched for by the best authority, there would certainly be abundant room for doubting it. Portions of it are unfit for publication in a reputable newspaper. Some of the incantations were of a most ludicrous that he buy a rawhide and commence character, but had to be followed out with the utmost solemnity and precision. One was that the servant girl should get up every night at twelve o'clock, and just on the stroke of the witching hour begin sweeping the floor. She was to sweet the dirt into the darkest corner of the room, where it must remain undisturbed for nine days. At the end of this time the husband was directed to get up at midnight, and as the clocks voiced the hour, begin beating this dirt with two broomsticks, and kept it up vigorously for three hours. This had to be repeated nine nights in succession. Mrs. McDonald says it created such a racket that the neighbors were frightened for the first few nights and ran out of their houses thinking a shillelah war was in progress. At the end of this time no improvement was noted, and another series of "works" were inaugurated. Broomsticks were kept standing near the fireplace and openso great as formerly, now that corsets ings made in the doors and windows for the witch to ride through.

DISGUSTING NOSTRUMS. This was bad enough, but not half as bad-as his alleged medical treatleave off the corset, and wear really loose ment. The most revolting and horribly nausuating potions possible to conceive of were prepared and the poor woman compelled to drink them. Then there were powders, livers, ness and general invalidism. Many snakes, brains, cats' tongues, frogs' corset-wearers imagine that the corset claws, cats' heart, babies' hair, blood of muid-red people and other cause they feel "all gone" without it. equally revolting things had to be This only shows how much mischief taken at certain hours, and while the incantations were in progress. It is not feelings are all unnatural. The muscles known if these were given, but they of the waist and abdomen have lost are reported by his patients to be in their native power through confine- his materia medica. No one will ment. If toggery worn in the shape doubt but what any one of them of basques and skirts, with band and would be sufficient to drive any ordinary evil spirit away. This is a mere outline of what is expected to be brought out at the trial if the witnesses are not too much afraid of the alleged doctor to be induced to have condemned it as distorting tell the truth. However, the prosecu woman's natural form, detrimental tion claims to have abundant evidence to prove all that has been stated. The little hope of women's emancipation indictment was found under the act in large numbers, from these bonds, so making it an offense for any person to pretend, for lucre or gain, to injure the health of any one, or shorten life, injure business or effect any purpose by spells, incantations or necromancy.
