THE PULPIT. Christian Rejoicing. [Reported for The Press] A sermon upon the following text of Scriptur A sermon upon the following text of Soripture was preached on Subbath evening, the 12th instruction of the Real Joseph A Seiss, he the 'chirole' of which he has redently been elected paster; (litte, Dr. Meyer's, Litheran, Race street, above Hitth):

"Rejoice in the lord always, and again I pay, Rejoice."

"We' have already moticed the great unanimity with which the call for Mr. Seiss into of Battimore, was made by the doing regation which is now." more, was made by the congregation which is now hig charge, and the very noceptable character of his initial sermons. The church is still draped in money of its late pastor.

The text of Soripture selected as the basis of the discourse was admirably adapted to show the absorber of imposing that true religion necessarily makes its possessor gloomy or morase, and we may take no matter how our subjoined sketch may first the reader, to our mind it was, in this respect, admirably handled.

His opening remark was, that religion was not a thing of gloom, but of gladness. It was not a thing of gloom, but of gladness. It was not a thing of gloom, but of gladness. It was not a thing of gloom, but of gladness. It was not a thing of gloom, but of gladness. It was not a thing of gloom, but of gladness. It was not a thing of gloom, but of gladness. It was not a thing of gloom, but of gladness. It was not a thing of gloom, but of gladness. It was not a thing of gloom, but of gladness. It was not a shaded a state of the control of oir salvation, the very first announce of peace and joy. Of Christ, the nation of the salvation o nent by the angel concerning film had been the bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. The teachings of inspiration were that the kingdom of heaven consisted not in meat and drinks but in peace and in joy and in the Holy Chost, and therefore, as Christians, it was our duly incomatter what the circumstances are the highest consistency of the constant of with which we may be surrounded, to Urejoice forevermore. est, pleasure, and happiness in divine things, and not in serrupt sensuality. To rejoice in the Lord.

then, was to take pleasure in these things which proceed from, and are approved in the law of the Lord; and inview of this, the speaker said there was no source of real sujoymon that was not freely open to Christians. To analyze this subject he proposed, first, to consider that class of joys which may in some degree be, said to be, participated in may in some degree be, said to be, participated in with lawful pleasure by either Christians or men of the world.

There was, for example, much enjoyment in the pursuit of, human wisdom. Triumples in the pursuit of human wisdom. Triumples in the pursuit of knowledge pure in blessings, were open to the sindent in his explorations: those, too, were open to the Christian; he, too, could drink from the pure founts in of, that ancient elequones which swayed seinted and ruled nations; he, too, might decipher the inscriptions on the tembstenes of the olassis world; he, too, could listen to that subterranean thunder that once alone disturbed the slumbers of the young world; he, too, dould look to those shining worlds that throng the heavens.

"Torever singing as they shire, "The hand that made us is divine." The hand that made us a divine.

The hand that made us a divine.

The hand that made us a divine.

The half that made us a divine.

The blessed administration to his faith in God, or, his duty to the Barlour.

The blessed administration of home were next taken and sloquently portrayed, by the speaker, as also a most legitimate source of enjoyment to every follower of Jesus. And the enjoyment which attached to these relations, when realized in their truest and purest sense; constituted a picture too near heaven for human language, to paint. The tender relations which bind together the different members of a family. His stars belonging to the same constellation were touched upon with a hand that plainly indicated a master of the true philosophy of domestic happiness. Following this, the that plainly indicated a master of the "früe "philosophy of domestic happiness. Following this, the speaker said men might talk of the beauties of solitude, and their sentimental longings for solitude, and their sentimental longings for solitude, and to some year wilderness." In Section 1975, and the could take the place of friends and companions, and who had a better. right to the fullest enjoyment of these blessed companionships than the Unristian?

This same rule applied also to those arts which other the resuses and the imagination, Poetry and blessed esimpanionships than the Christian?
This same rule sipplied also to those arts which charm the renses and the imagination. Poetry and music rete alike lies wently in their origin and in their tondencies. Nor were the pleasures inspired by paintings and statuary any less the right of the Christian than the man of the world. And as to the transporting sectory which God so profusely afforded his creatures, in the far-stretching mountain, the fovely landscape, the many-colored rainbow, the stars of heaven that sparkle like gome in the crown of night, could we believe that these had only been lavished upon our vision for the centemplation and enjoyment of the wicke? The Psalmist had broken out "in spatiars as he goon sidered the heavens, the work of God's fingers, the moon and stars which He had ordsined," and exclaimed, "What is man, that thou art mindful of him! or the Son of man, that thou wisitest him!" So, too, the Lord whom on earth had not passed the flowers of the field, unobserved. To him the illies of the field were more splendfully arrayed "than Solomon in all his glory."

To all these sublime feasts prepared for men, the Christian was an invited guest, aye, and in most cases by far the best fitted for their appreciation. Shelts my far the best fitted for their appreciation shelt guest, sing the wonders of Mont Blanc, in, the Vale of Chamouni, and Byron talk affectingly of Nature, but neither with the sublime unotion of David and Issiah. The truth was Christianity sought not to curtait our pleasures, but ratter to enhance them. Christian was not need the companion were not called upon to dispense with their originance were reference to eternity. Attor dili, however, we should greatly mistake the character of, Christianity if we supposed that it had no history my proposed that the most had been conveyed the mist had not history my proposed that the had been conveyed to men's common joy; confined to he so the sole and the common joy; confined to he so and the sole as in victory; and triumpha. The men who confided in the Saviour knew that there was a hand outstretched to rectify all apparent incongruities and inequalities which might seem to bear heavily upon the righteous, and to exalt the wicked. He knew he had a father in heaven who force him, ind. stood resdy to help and further his good in all things. Such an one rejoiced in the revelations of the flord, and in them found a true meaning of the riddle of life. To him their oracles are well of salvation; from which he drew forth streams of goodness to his heart. With these he became an Isaiah, chanting with the Scraphim holy, holy, holy, lord; of hosts it. With these he became a Moses, and ascended Pisgah's heighls to view his promised inheritance beyond the Jordano dosth. With these he was made an Elijah, going up to heaven in a charlot of fire. He was Simon, ready, to depart in peace, for his eyes had keen Gdd's salvation. Though even money less, he felt that he had transares in hieaven, where moth correct not more exceeding weight of glory laid up for him in Heaven, lly was Ghristy, and Ohrist was find. He was finded when the had joy, for so persecuted they the prophets. The prospect of his complete redemption in he had joy, for so persecuted they the prophets, and Ohrist was find by heart. He was finde mount him wiedom and righteousies. In persecution he had joy, for so persecuted they the prophets, of the prospect of his complete redemption. Heaven gladdened his heart. He kas in the glorious company of marryr's, and was in communion with saints. Them it was that Christians he had holde, not made with hands, eternal in Heaven. And now, he wished all to learn how incongritious a thing it was for a C it had no higher nurposes, then the highest enio dan of death. With these he was made an Bijab going up to heaven in a chariot' of fife. He was Simeon, ready. 26 depart in peans, for his oyes had been Gold's systation. Though oven pennyless, he folt that he had treasures in fleavon where moth corrupt. Dot, nor thiceys, break and steal. Even though he might be a suffere here, he was assured of a far greater and more exceeding weight of glory laid up for him in Heaven. How as Christy, and Ohrist, was him. The was in the glorious company of martyr's, and was in communion with anthe. Then it was that Ohrist was in dunto him wisdom and righteoniess. In porceut the head of the complete of the complete of redemption and the property of his complete of redemption. And, now, he wished all to fear how incongricing, a thing it was for a Christian to be habitually said and globany. The little brids, when the first substitution of the community of the complete of the comple

Summer Resorts. HAY'S HOTEL,

WILLIAMSPORT,

LYCOMING COUNTY, PA.

The undersigned has purchased the large and elegant building, corner of THIRD and PINE Street, formerly occupied by the West Branch Bank, and has enlarged and refitted it in a superloystyle.

Williamsport is one of the most delightful tuland towns in Penpaylvania, and his house, he hopes, will be found pleasant, as well to the traveller as to those cities as of the metropolis who desire to pass an agreeable time during the heated term of the summer.

His omnibus runs from his Hotel to the Packet and Railroad Depots free of charge.

W. H. HAY, Proprietor. BEDFORD SPRINGS.—THIS well-known and delightful Summer Resort will be opened for the recaption of Visitars on the 16th of June, and kept open until the lat of October.

The new and specious Buildings erected last year are now fully completed, and the whole establishment has been furnished in superior style, and the accommodations will be of a character not excelled in any part of the United States.

been furnished in superior style, and the accommodations will be of a character not excelled in any part of the United States.

The Hotel will be under the management of Mr. A. G. ALLEN, whose experience, courteous manners, and attention to his guests, give the amplest assurance of comfort and kind treatment.

In addition to the other means of access, it is deemed proper to state that passengers can reach Bedford by a daylight ride from Ohn-overburg.

The Company have made extensive arrangements to supply dealers and individuals with "Bedford Water" by the intrest extory, and in bottless, at the following prices, as the Springs, vis:
