WARHINGTON, August 19, 1850. I have twice announced in this correspondence that Juidge Douglas had prepared an elaborate paper on the Territorial question, which would make its appearance in all of this month. My statement has been repeatedly contradicted, but by the time this lotter has made its appear-ance in The Press you will have rejected ample confirmation of its truth. This argument, upon which immense research has been bestowed, will be read with unusual interest in all parts of the country, and contains the most overwholming country, and contains the most overwhelming

New York, Aug. 19, 1859. The last shaets of the Atlantic Monthly, for Soptember, have just been placed upon my table. If the question were asked, "Have we 'ary' Schef-fer amongst us !" I should answer, that the open ing paper of the Atlantic answers the interroga-tory by a review of "The Life and Works of Ary Schoffer," in which the personal and professional eareer of that artist are sketched by one thoroughy famillar with the subject. The name of the writer is withheld. He claims that "Scheffer will writer is withheld. He claims that "Scheffer will stand as the companion of Logres, Delaroohe, and Géricault; and if his successors surpass him even it his own path, they will owe much to him who helped to open the way." The second article, "A Visit to Martha's Vineyard," is by Mrs. Ans-tin, in which the delicious suggestiveness of the name, "Martha's Vineyard," proinpts the question, Who was Martha? and how did she use her vine-ward?" The is encreared and a great promeutions Who was Martha? and how did sho use her vine-yard? This is answored, and a great many curious and interesting things told about that out-of-the-way part of creation: Next comes a poem of four verses, "October to May," by Florence. Percy, which I enclose for publication in its proper place in Thé Press, then "The Eleusinia," by an Andover Divinity Student, who explains as much of the mysteries of Eleusis as is known to himself, or to any of the tribe of Bohemians; a chapter of "The Minister's Wooing " follows; after which, ad ho allowed his remainder to the President; under no obligations whatever to the President; under no obligations whatever to the President; index no obligations whatever to the Legislat-ture; for the reason stated, it is said, that he will be described in the index of the State index no object to the state index no obligations in the index of the State index no object is the state index no object is the state in our schools and index no object is the state in our schools and index no object is the state in our schools and in our sc publishes the proceedings of a Democratic meeting, held at Easton (the county sent of Northampton, Pa.,) by which certain resolutions were passed warmly applauding the Administration, the Presi-dent, and Attorney deniral Black. Two of the leading speakers at this meeting are pretty well; known in Washington-1 mean James M. Portor, brother of the ex-flowernor, David R., and Hon-Richard Brodhead, ex-United States Scintor. It is amusing to see these then uniting in approba-it then up an Administration which they do not hesitate in private to deride.
