The [illegible] Contest in New Jersey.

[illegible]

[Correspondence of The Press.]

Trenton, March 17, 1860.

In my last I gave a brief account of the history of the Hoboken Land and Improvement bill, which has just passed the Legislature of this State; the limits of my letter, however, prevented me from discussing the [illegible] question of the results which must necessarily follow this legislation.

There are three parties particularly interested in this matter, viz: the Camden and Amboy Railroad Company, the New Jersey Railroad and Transportation Company, and the public, more especially that portion residing in Philadelphia and New York.

Whether the New Jersey Railroad Company will be greatly damaged by the running of another road from Newark to Hoboken, or whether the Camden and Amboy Company will still be able to pay such enormous dividends when their monopoly privileges have been done away with, and another and independent road is laid from New York to Philadelphia, are questions which I presume the stockholders of the respective companies will examine and decide for themselves. They are very important questions to the parties in interest, and although I may have something to say upon those subjects hereafter, they do not come within the scope of my present inquiry, which is, How will the interests of the public be affected by this new legislation? The only answer which can be given to this is, that the public will be greatly benefited, inasmuch as the result of this contest must unquestionably be the establishment of free railroads in New Jersey, and the building of an independent line from Philadelphia to New York.

This may appear to be a strange assertion in reference to the State where monopoly has so long had supreme control, but it is not more strange than true.

That this statement, however, may not appear to be without foundation, I will, briefly, give a few reasons in its support. It may not be known to many of your readers that the original charter of the Camden and Amboy Railroad Company, granted on the 4th of February, 1830, contained no monopoly privilege; nor was any such privilege obtained from the Legislature until March, 1832, when, upon the transfer of 1,000 shares of the stock, and the agreement to pay certain annual duties, it was enacted, that "It shall not be lawful, at any time during the said railroad charter, to construct any other railroad, or railroads, in this State, without the consent of said company, which shall be intended or used for the transportation of passengers or merchandise between the cities of New York and Philadelphia."

This extraordinary supplement to their charter was not obtained without decided opposition on the part of many of the citizens of New Jersey; for in 1831 the minority of a committee of the Legislature reported adversely to such a grant, in these words: "We are not of the opinion that the common rights of the people are the proper subjects for sale or transfer to any company or any section of country, because the operation of such transfer is to deprive other companies and other portions of the State of the enjoyment of a fair competition in business," and the majority of the Legislature adopted such report by refusing to grant this monopoly supplement. When, however, the Legislature of 1832 did make this grant the majority of the people felt that the agreement ought to be respected, and the arrangement went into effect.

During the succeeding twelve years there was a quiet, but steady and increasing, opposition to the subsidizing policy of this company, until in 1844 it exhibited itself so as to check their operations. It was not, however, until 1849 that this feeling was so aroused as to make any serious and public demonstration; but, upon the 5th of September of that year, a Convention of those opposed to the monopoly privileges was held in this city. This Convention was largely attended by representatives from every part of the State, when an able address was reported by Judge Naar, in connection with a series of resolutions, by your fellow-townsman, Henry C. Carey, Esq., strongly condemning the monopoly privilege as unconstitutional and illegal, and both the address and resolutions were unanimously adopted.

These resolutions proposed the election to the Legislature of those who would pass a general railroad law, thus abolishing the monopoly. But there were still a large number in the State who felt that, however odious and burdensome the monopoly might be, yet the faith of the State was pledged; and that feeling, in connection with the untiring efforts and enormous influence of the Camden and Amboy Company, prevented any action at that time. It need scarcely be said that those exclusive privileges, whether legal or otherwise, could only exist as long as the majority of the people of New Jersey should allow them so to do; and from this brief statement you will perceive that although they have been claimed, and exercised for 28 years, yet there has always been, from the very commencement of this exercise, a steady and increasing opposition to their claims; an opposition ready to break forth at any moment, and one which, without doubt, would some day prove strong enough to disenthral and free the people of the State from this heavy burden.

That day might have been still distant had not the Camden and Amboy Company in the carrying out of their policy endeavored by negotiation to consolidate all the roads in the State, and failing in that, determined, in an evil hour, to obtain by legislation to vest in the New Jersey Railroad Company, by precisely the same title under which they had for twenty-eight years claimed to hold their own monopoly rights; in other words, as stated in my last letter, the New Jersey Railroad Company own the exclusive privilege of bridging the Passaic and Hackensack rivers, which right was originally granted to the bridge company in precisely the same words in which the monopoly right was granted to the Camden and Amboy Company.

But the Hoboken Land and Improvement Company, or the Camden and Amboy Railroad Company—for in many respects they seem to be one and the same—desire to cross these rivers with a new road, and using the argument that these monopoly rights may be assessed, and taken or transferred, they have asked and obtained a bill ignoring the supposed sacred character of said rights, and giving them the privileges formerly exclusively granted to the bridge company.

What could have tempted them to pursue this suicidal course, it is impossible even to surmise. Enjoying and exercising exclusive privileges, depending for their very existence upon the sufferance of the citizens of the State, the legal title to which was at best of doubtful character, it would have seemed probable that they would have carefully avoided any discussion, either of their propriety or their validity; and such has always been their policy until the present time, when, to the amazement of all, their prominent men have announced the doctrine that monopoly privileges are not to be respected.

Since this new position has been assumed, the result is that the public opinion of the State is now by a large majority in favor of free railroads. This is fully established by the statements of those who are here from all sections, and by the fact that, with but few exceptions, the newspapers of the State, which must be acknowledged as the exponents of public sentiment, have taken this view of the question.

In my next I will notice some of the advantages which the citizens of Philadelphia might expect to enjoy from the establishment of an independent road from your city to New York.

Yours truly, Anti-Monopoly.

Reminiscences of Stephens and Hazlett.

[From the Boston Evening Traveller.]

A correspondent, who was one of the early settlers in Kansas, furnishes us with the following:

Boston, March 16, 1860.

Editors of the Traveller: Aaron C. Stephens was born at Norwich, Connecticut, where his aged parents still reside. His age was about twenty-eight. Stephens was one of the finest specimens of manly strength and vigor that I have ever seen. About six feet in height, and finely proportioned, with erect carriage, a quick action and generous soul, he would always be chosen as a leader in perilous enterprises. His head was large, and his voice like a bugle.

His active and daring spirit early induced him to leave home. At eighteen years of age he joined the American army, and was employed in the dragoon service. He saw considerable service in New Mexico and the Rocky Mountains, among the Indian tribes. In the spring of 1855, an officer of Stephens' company committed a brutal and unjustifiable assault upon a fellow-soldier who was unable to protect himself. The injustice fired Stephens, and he struck down his cowardly superior. For this he was brought in chains to Fort Leavenworth, and there confined. Knowing that the result of the court martial would be a sentence of death, Stephens succeeded in freeing himself of his fetters, and breaking from his jail.

He fled to Topeka, and there, assuming the name of Whipple, took a claim and settled down. The difficulties broke out; Whipple joined the Free State forces, a regiment was raised, composed of Topeka "boys," of which Whipple was elected colonel. His military knowledge, strength and manliness, made him a general favorite. He was one of the best drill-masters in the Free State ranks. Gen. Lane held him in high esteem. When Gen. Lane left Kansas, in September of '56, disbanding the forces in pursuance of Gov. Geary's proclamation, Stephens (Whipple) commanded his escort, a party of forty mounted men.

An incident occurred on this march, which shows the education which Kansas has forced her sons through, better than anything else I have heard. Stephens supported what was known as the Free White State doctrine; that is, he was opposed to allowing colored people to reside within the State boundaries, either as bond or free—an inhuman policy, having its origin, as General Lane once said, "in the basest prejudice engendered by slavery." Our friend was a "Black Law Man," par excellence. When General Lane was leaving the Territory, James Redpath was coming into it in company with a party of one hundred and twenty Northern emigrants. In Nebraska, near the Kansas border, a couple of fugitive slaves came into the emigrant camp. Lane camped near the same night. Hearing of the negroes being under Redpath's protection, Lane's men, nearly all of whom were negro-haters, demanded that they should be returned to bondage, in order to prove to Missouri that it was not for the slave, but the white man, the people of Kansas were fighting. Stephens was delegated to convey their wish to Redpath. He spent over two hours in endeavoring to urge that gentleman to do this wrong. It is needless to say that he was not successful. The Colonel rode off in high dudgeon, and that night Gen. Lane secretly sent the fugitives across the Missouri river to Iowa. This circumstance is quite in contrast with the course of events in Missouri and the attempts at Harper's Ferry. Yet I have no doubt that Stephens was equally as honest then, though not so high up in the plane of progress as when he [illegible] a Virginia scaffold.

In the fall of '57, Stephens left Topeka with [illegible] Springdale, Cedar county, Iowa, where [illegible] military science and drilled under [illegible]. This is a Quaker settlement.

[illegible] the Chatham (Canada) Convention, in [illegible] he took a prominent part, Stephens went to [illegible] some months, and finally joined Captain [illegible] in Southern Kansas about October, 1858. [illegible] active part with Montgomery in resisting the attempts of the Democracy to drive out [illegible] the anti-slavery men of Lynn and [illegible] counties. He was one of the foremost in [illegible] Ben. Rice from an unjust imprisonment in Fort Scott, himself and Kagi being with [illegible] at the head of the storming party of [illegible] who seized the building wherein [illegible]

[illegible]

At Harper's Ferry he was second in command. He was in command of the party that arrested Colonel Washington and others. He had command on Monday, of the ground in front of the armory gate, and it was while engaged in arresting the workmen that the following language was used:

"By whose authority do you do this?" was asked by an indignant prisoner.

"By the authority of God Almighty!" was the electric response that came ringing from Stephens, silencing all complaint and overawing the listeners by the earnestness and fire of the tones.

Albert Haslett, born in Indiana county, Pennsylvania, was about twenty-four years of age at the time of his martyrdom. He came to Kansas in the spring of 1857, and settled in Bourbon county. He soon became enlisted with Montgomery in the defensive operations of that period, and proved himself a brave and efficient soldier.

In the winter of '58-'59, after the rescue of the Missouri slaves, Kagi was in command in the South. Haslett was an officer under him. He displayed the utmost coolness and daring on several occasions—among others, repelling, with ten men, a force of eighty, acting as a pretended United States marshal's posse, retreating successfully over bad ground. Haslett was next to Stephens in command at the Ferry, and it was probably a bullet from his Sharpe's rifle which killed George Turner. The latter was in the act of raising his rifle when a shot from the emancipators laid him low.

Haslett was tall and slender, of nervous, sanguine temperament, lithe and active, with small and sharp oval features, very fair hair and florid complexion. He was always esteemed among his comrades as an honest, upright man, a social companion, and possessed an intelligent mind.

GENERAL NEWS.

A Musical Prodigy in New Orleans.—A young blind negro boy is attracting much attention at New Orleans, by his wonderful memory and musical genius. The New Orleans Crescent says:

"A few nights since, we were present when a crowd of musical ladies and gentlemen were luxuriating in the surprise and pleasure of a first visit to Tom. The manager, or conductor of Tom's concerts, requested that if there was any one present who would sit down at the piano, and play some piece of music which was not common or popular, and not likely to be known to Tom, the boy would listen to it, and afterward play it himself.

"One lady present accepted the challenge. She took the stool, and played a Spanish piece of some length and difficulty; one of those heavy chefs d'œuvres in which a sweet and delicate melody rings its way through a hurricane of heavy accompaniments and variations. A severer test could not possibly have been offered to the boy. As he listened, he leaned his elbows on the end of the piano, with his hands clutched in the wool over his ears, his sightless eyes rolling upward, and his whole body writhing and twisting as if in pain. When the lady finished he took the stool and repeated the piece in a manner which astonished everybody. But the lady detected a few faults, and mentioned the same. The manager politely asked her to play the piece again. As she seated herself he said to the boy, 'Now, Tom, listen well.' He listened with all his former intensity; and when the lady finished he seated himself, and this time played the piece perfectly. The lady and her friends departed, perfectly satisfied and thoroughly astonished.

"Yesterday we went to see Tom again. He was delighting and astonishing another fashionable and critical crowd of ladies and gentlemen. His performance of a martial air, in which he imitated the fife and drum; of the 'Anvil Chorus,' with the anvil accompaniment; of 'Yankee Doodle,' with one hand and 'Fisher's Hornpipe' with the other, at the same time; and of numerous popular pieces which combine thundering heaviness and lightning rapidity, were all astonishing enough; but we were not satisfied. We asked the manager for the piece which the Spanish lady taught him on Sunday night. Tom was asked if he remembered it. He rolled his eyes and scratched his head awhile; then answering that he did remember it, he played the piece as forcibly and beautifully as on Sunday night; the manager assuring us that he had not practised it, and had not been called upon to repeat it since.

"Tom's brain is as wonderful upon his tongue as it is upon his ears and fingers. You may recite a passage of Latin or French to him, and he will repeat it perfectly, following your emphasis and pronunciation exactly; if there is any fault it was yours in giving it; he knows nothing of the languages. He sings 'Gentle Annie' and other songs with a voice so sweet and clear, and a pronunciation so pure, that if you were to shut your eyes you might fancy some white and cultivated school-girl was singing, instead of a little woolly-headed monkey of an Ethiopian."

Silver by the Wagon Load.—A rich prize has just slipped out of Mexico without being overhauled by Miramon, or his bandit subordinate, Marquez. Two large wagons, heavily laden with silver coin and plate, arrived at San Antonio on the 5th inst., from Parral and Chihuahua. So says the San Antonio Ledger, and the fact is significant of the critical condition of that portion of Mexico. A revolution, destined to result in the annexation of Chihuahua to our Confederacy is impending. Gov. Houston's present efforts evidently aim in that direction. The liberal population of that State are represented as being favorable to the movement, and, with the assistance of a few hundred armed Texans, they would prove abundantly able to consummate their inevitable destiny. Chihuahua would prove as rich a mineral prize as California, in addition to which it has a richly productive soil.

☞ A Baltimore correspondent of the New York Times says:

"It is now a fixed fact that the Third and Fourth Congressional districts of Maryland have chosen Douglas delegates to the Charleston Convention. The strong probabilities are that out of the six Congressional districts, four of them will be represented by Douglas men. The Senatorial delegates may also favor his nomination. Shrewd politicians in this latitude are of opinion that Mr. Douglas is the only man whom the Democrats can nominate, or who, if nominated by them, can be elected. He would be absolutely certain of the entire South, and has strength in the North and Northwest outweighing that of any other person or statesman spoken of. If I were a Democrat I would go for him, if for nothing else, upon the score of expediency and availability. He will, beyond all question, make a powerful poll in Maryland."

A Grand Symposium.—Some of Lord Seymour's contemporaries, old acquaintances who set out in life with him, clubbed together, and purchased one hundred bottles of his best wines at the recent sale in Paris. They were twenty gentlemen in all. They dined together, and "waked" the memory of their old acquaintance by an exquisite dinner and his own choice wine. The brief hours of dinner were given additional wings by the old memories freshened, and by the toasts drunk to the beauties, and the men, and the adventures which had so gaily filled auld lang syne. Thirty years of the secret history of the best circles in Paris society were revived that evening between oysters and coffee. The twenty gentlemen emptied the one hundred bottles. The dinner cost them, wine included, sixty-five dollars each—that is, thirteen hundred dollars for the whole dinner.

☞ Notwithstanding Macaulay's reputation for conversational power, he appears to have uttered few bon mots, to have made few conversational points which are repeated and remembered. One of the very few good stories current of him is the following: It is said that he met Mrs. Beecher Stowe at Sir Charles Trevelyan's, and rallied her on her admiration of Shakspeare. "Which of his characters do you like best?" said he. "Desdemona," said the lady. "Ah, of course," was the reply, "for she was the only one who ran after a black man."

COPARTNERSHIP.—CHARLES ADAMS has this day admitted into Partnership his son, CHARLES H. ADAMS. The style of the firm will be CHARLES ADAMS & SON, who will continue the WHOLESALE and RETAIL DRY-GOODS BUSINESS at the old stand, S. E. corner of EIGHTH and ARCH Streets. CHARLES ADAMS, CHARLES H. ADAMS. Philadelphia, third mo. 1, 1860.

CIRCULAR. The subscribers respectfully inform their friends and the public that they have made important alterations to the Old Establishment, and are now prepared to exhibit a large and splendid stock of FANCY AND STAPLE DRY GOODS, adapted to the wants of Families. Particular attention is also given to the choice of PLAIN GOODS. Desirous not only of retaining all the old customers, but of enlarging the business, the undersigned trust that, with additional care and attention to the wants of purchasers, they will receive an increased share of patronage. CHARLES ADAMS & SON, mh1-1m S. E. corner EIGHTH and ARCH Sts.

EDWIN CLARK'S HIGHLY IMPROVED and newly Patented Combined Grinding and Bolting, or MERCHANT FLOUR MILL, Daily in operation at No. 235 RACE STREET, BELOW THIRD, PHILAD'A.

This unrivalled Flour Mill, including the complete grinding and bolting machinery, occupies a space of only 4 feet wide, eight feet high, and twenty-nine feet long; manufacturing within this small compass, at a single operation, and with but little more than six horse power, family extra, extra, superfine, and all of the lower grades of flour, and the different kinds of offal; producing flour equal in quality to the best flour made from the best Merchant Flour Mills in the United States, or in Europe. Its average rate of grinding is two barrels of superior flour per hour.

This new, compact, complete, and celebrated flour mill has been carefully examined by many of the most experienced millers in the country, and they unanimously bestow upon it the highest commendations; and have given their testimonials of its intrinsic superiority, and its immense utility.

Millers, mill-owners, merchants, capitalists, speculators, and the public in general, are respectfully invited to call and examine this highly useful and justly celebrated flour mill.

Information concerning the purchase of the Patent Rights for States, and counties, and the mills, for every portion of the United States, Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia, and other Agricultural countries, will be given to all persons addressing their letters to EDWIN CLARK, Patentee, No. 235 RACE st., below Third, Philad'a.

☞ For further information concerning this celebrated flour mill, please to read the yellow handbills, describing it. m5 1y

TO THE PUBLIC. CALHOUN'S ANNULAR VENTILATOR. The above patent is deemed, by scientific and practical men, to be the very best ever offered to the public, and needs only to be seen in actual operation for its merits to be appreciated. Nothing ever introduced is so perfectly adapted for ventilating private and public buildings, schools, hospitals, engine houses, mines, steam and sailing vessels, and for the cure of smoky chimneys they have no equal.

Manufactured and for sale, wholesale and retail, at the Heating and Ventilating Warerooms of CHAS. WILLIAMS, 1132 MARKET Street, Phila.

Personal attention will be given to all descriptions of heating and ventilating by the undersigned, who has been many years practically engaged in the above business. Also for sale, Culur's justly-celebrated warm-air furnaces, cooking ranges, bath boilers, registers, &c., by fe18-stuth6m CHAS. WILLIAMS.

TO WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS AND PHYSICIANS. Mrs. JAMES BETTS' INVENTIONS FOR LADIES.—Approved of and highly recommended by the Medical profession throughout the United States, Thirty Thousand Invalids having been advised by their physicians to use her Surgical Appliances. She would caution Merchants and others against purchasing except at her residence, 1039 WALNUT Street, where she can be consulted daily, between the hours of 9 and 5. Her book of testimonials will be given on application. fe11-stuth-1y

TO MERCHANTS AND DEALERS IN ELASTIC VULCANIZED INDIA RUBBER GOODS. Referring to the card of William Judson, published in the Philadelphia Ledger of the 9th inst., we call attention to the fact that the language is quibbling, and calculated to mislead the public. He does not offer to hold Merchants and Dealers harmless from costs and damages in our suits, nor anything of the kind; on the contrary, he says, in our card, heretofore published, offer "that, should any persons, companies, or firms, be prosecuted by William Judson, upon the claim pretence that he has any right or title in such Vulcanized Rubber Goods as are, or have been, claimed by us, they have only to hand over their papers and the management of their defence to our counsel, whereupon we will defend all such suits without costs or conditions, and hold all such persons, companies, or firms, harmless against any and all claims of Wm. Judson."

VULCANITE.—TO WORKERS IN IVORY, TORTOISE SHELL, HORN AND BONE. This valuable new manufacture having been perfected in my extensive factory, I am now ready to supply orders to any extent, equal to one ton daily.

My present stock embraces all the leading styles of Combs, of a quality admitted to be superior to any Vulcanite ever before introduced.

Cases of plates from 1-20th of an inch to one inch in thickness; size, 12x20, 14x23, 12-24, adapted to a great variety of purposes. Every trade and art supplied with this valuable article, adapted to their peculiar business. My intention is to supply all trades with stock, as well as to make it up myself.

Workers may rely upon a quiet use of this substance, as the article which I manufacture is not a monopoly. HORACE H. DAY, 23 COURTLANDT Street. New York, March 13, 1860. Philadelphia branch, 11 and 13 STRAWBERRY Street. mh16-6t*

FOR SAVANNAH, GA. The U. S. Mail Steamship STATE OF GEORGIA, Captain John J. Garvin, will sail on Friday, March 23, at 10 o'clock A. M. Through in 55 to 60 hours—only 48 hours at Sea.

☞ Sailing days changed from every Saturday to every five days. Goods received, and Bills of Lading signed every day.

The splendid first-class side-wheel Steamships KEYSTONE STATE and STATE OF GEORGIA now run as above every ten days, thus forming a five-day communication with Charleston and Savannah, and the South and Southwest.

At both Charleston and Savannah, these Ships connect with steamers for Florida, and with railroads, &c., for all places in the South and Southwest.

INSURANCE. Freight and Insurance on a large proportion of Goods shipped South will be found to be lower by these ships than by sailing vessels, the premium being one-half the rate.

N. B.—Insurance on all Railroad Freight is entirely unnecessary, farther than Charleston or Savannah, the Railroad Companies taking all risks from these points.

GREAT REDUCTION IN FARE. Fare by this route 25 to 40 per cent. cheaper than by the Inland Route, as will be seen by the following schedule. Through tickets from Philadelphia, via Charleston and Savannah steamships, INCLUDING MEALS on the whole route, except from Charleston and Savannah to Montgomery:

		INLAND FARE.

These steamers, built expressly for Government service, with double engines, under deck, every attention has been taken in the construction of the hull and machinery to insure safety and speed. The ships have five water-tight compartments enclosing the engines, so that in the event of collision or stranding, the water could not reach them, and the pumps being free to work, the safety of the vessel and passengers would be secured. Recent experience has demonstrated the absolute necessity of this mode of construction.

The accommodations for passengers are believed to combine every comfort and convenience that can be desired.

From New York to Southampton or Havre—First Cabin, $130; Second do., $75.

From Havre or Southampton to New York—First Cabin, 700 francs; Second do., 350 francs.

To passengers going to London these steamers offer the advantage of economy both in time and expense. Specie delivered in London. No passage secured until paid for. An experienced surgeon on board. All letters and newspapers must pass through the Post Office.

For freight or passage apply to W. S. DRAYTON, Agent, 7 Broadway, New York. WILLIAM ISELIN, Agent, Havre. CROSKEY & CO., Agents, Southampton. AMERICAN EUROPEAN EXPRESS COMPANY, Agent, Paris. WM. NEILSON, Agent, Office, Tobacco Warehouse, DOCK and FRONT Streets, Philadelphia. Plans of the ships can be seen. n29-tmh31

CAUTION!—ASTROLOGY!—LOOK OUT!—GOOD NEWS FOR ALL!—The never-failing Mrs. VAN HORN is the best; she succeeds when all others have failed. All who are in trouble, all who have been unfortunate, deceived by false promises, fly to her for advice and comfort. In love affairs she never fails. She has the secret of winning the affections of the opposite sex. It is this fact which induces illiterate pretenders to try to imitate her, and copy her advertisement. She shows you the likeness of your future wife, husband, or absent friend. It is well known to the public at large that she is the first and only person who can show the likeness in reality, and can give entire satisfaction on all the concerns of life, which can be tested and proved by thousands, both married and single, who daily and eagerly visit her. Come one! come all! to No. 1338 LOMBARD Street, between Juniper and Broad. mh16-6t*
