A SINGULAR STORY. —A young and good-looking woman was arrested by the police of Boston, at Ordray Hall, on Saturday, evening last, for being in male stilre. She stated that she belonged to a respectable family in New York State, and had been married about three months. Her husband had treated her very badly, and in Philadelphia, whate they went to reside immediately after their marriage, he payned asariy all her clothing. They cans to Boston from Philadelphia, and have since been bostding in a private family. Her husband has appeneous pretext, and partly by threats, pre-valled appeneous charts attire. At the time of her arrest her busband was near by, and in fact followed the officer and berself part of the way to the station house. She expressed much gratifica-tion at her detention by the police, as she hoped it would relieve her from her husband's cruelty. TOILET ARTICLES.

We the undersigned. having used Gutekunst's Cele-brated EUTRAPELUS, and desiring to show our ap-preciation of its superiority as a preparation for the HAIR, would state that it is an apreeable, cooliger wash, and has, in many instances, been found an effective an-tidote for headache. It spredily removes dandruff, and all other foreign substances from the scalp, thereby pro-moting health, and the growth of the Hair. As an article for DRSSING THE HAIR, we pronounce it unequal-led by any other preparation that we have ever used. In view of these exceeling qualities, we take pleasure in recommending the EUTRAPELUS to car oltisens as an admirable article for general and habitual use: W Wallace Winnbester, John H. Magee,
