THE VOLUNTEER REFRESHMENT FUND is likely to be forgotten. in view of the claims of other institutions. Troops, however, are constantly go-ing to Washington, and they are always fed on the arrival of the boats at Washington-street wharf. The Hancock Girls' Grammar School, Coates above Twelfth, have contributed one hundred dollars to the refreshment fund, and Messrs M. W. Bablwing & Co. mus one bundred and twenty-five dollars for

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17, 1861. There was no regular meeting of the Stock Board to-day, and the custom house and bonded warehouses were closed, as was the case with many places of business. The day was devoted to the celebration of the anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution, and but little general business was transacted. The Cincinnati Gazette says, in relation to a charge made in a New York paper, that the State Bank of Indiana and the Bank of the Ohio Valley intend driving the Government demand notes home for redemption :

"West" is, therefore, that they "come" from it is difficult to imagine, for we presume the It is dimcult to imagine, for we presume the notes will appear here as soon as at any other point in this section of country. We may say, further, that the Valley Bank has done more, in proportion to its capital, to aid the Govern-ment than any banking institution in the coun-try, and the charge, therefore, does great injustice to its liberal and patriotic managers. As for the Bank of the State of Indiana, we learn that it is its Bank of the State of Indiana, we learn that it is its intention to treat the Treasury notes as other cur-rency, and this policy will be adopted, we doubt not, throughout. The paper will be subject to the laws of trade, and when the issues perform their functions they will be returned, and not before. If the Government expects anything better than this it will be disappointed. Anything worse need not be apprehended. There will be no combination or special effort to crowd the notes home. On the con-trary, they will constitute a favorite circulation trary, they will constitute a favorite circulating medium with both the people and the banks. The New York Evening Post says of money

Since the introduction of coal oils has become general for lighting purposes, its qualities, merits, and demerits are a matter of public interest. The economical view at this time, when burning fluids and other liquids of that class are greatly advanced in cost, is itself an important one; but there are also considerations of safety connected with the subject of coal oils, in which not only consumers, but the community at large, are vitally in-terested. The explosiveness of these oils having become a theme of newspaper comment and discussion, we here propose submitting to our readers the facts in the case, as we have obtained them, both from what we deem reliable authority and actual experiment.

By way of explanation, we ought to state in advance that the term "Kerosene," which is now almost universally applied to these oils, is a misnomer, except when applied to those manufactured either by the Portland Company, Portland, Maine, or the Downer Company, at Boston, the term "Kerosene" being simply the trademark of the oils manufactured by these two companies. The latter are produced solely from the Albert coal taken from mines in Nova Scotia, which are controlled entirely by the above-named companies. The nature of these (kerosene) oils is that they are almost as colorless as water, and nearly as free from odor, produce a pure, brilliant, white light, and for all practicable lighting purposes are absolutely non-explosive. Of course, they can be subjected to a dangerous degree of temperature, just as water may be rendered destructive by being heated into steam; but so miniflammable are they that danger in their ordinary use is impossible.

Persons who have read accounts of accidents from the use of "Kerosene" oils may be at a loss to reconcile this apparent contradiction. The fact, however, is, that, in every accident recorded, so far as we have been able to ascertain, both in this city and clsewhere, the oil employed was not the Portland, or genuine Kerosene oil, but the commonest coal or Petroleum oil, which is highly inflammable, and liable to explode, from the presence of naptha or benzine retained in them in order to improve their appearance and lessen their specific gravity. This, then, appears to be the true state of the case : Persons using the Portland oil can do so with perfect assurance of safety; whilst the burning of any other is dangerous. For the consumer to avoid imposition in purchasing we have no definite formula, although the application of a lighted match to a small quantity of the genuine and spurious oils, poured upon a smooth board, will demon-strate their wide difference in point of inflammability. Honorable dealers, of course, would not deceive their patrons asking for the "Portland oil" by selling them the inferior imitations, so that a good safeguard will be to ask for the Portland oil in making purchases. The latter is kept by most dealers, we believe, the sole wholesale agents for it being Messrs, Z. Locke & Co., No. 1010 Market street, whose card appears in another column. The supply of this superior oil, we understand, is adequate to the largest fall and winter demand, and the fact that it has been much reduced in price will at this time not be its least recommendation to popular favor. HOW IT HAS OPERATED.

That the present unsettled state of the nation has result-ed disastrously to the business interests of many of our merchants is unquestionable, although it has by no means paralyzed the energy and enterprise of all. In some of the lepartments of trade a large proportion of houses heretofore actively engaged in them have buil to succumb, leaving a comparatively clear field to those who are left in a vigorous solvent condition. For this reason we have not a few leading establishments that will do very nearly, if not quite, their usual amount of trade this fall, and that too on a more profitable basis. Prominent among this fortunate class is the house of Thomas Mellor & Co., Nos. 40 and 42 North Third street, one of our oldest and wealthiest importing and jobbing houses engaged in the Hosiery trade. Their magnificent large warerooms, now stocked to repletion with their fall importations of ho-siery, underclothing, zephyr goods, linens and white goods, and everything embraced under the head of no-We are authorized to say that the reference to the Ohio Valley Bank is without the shadow of foundation in fact. Indeed, so far as known, there has been but a single bill of the demand notes in Cincinnati, and that is still here. Farther on serried hosts are arming for the fray ; while yet further from the line of impending battle, troops and munitions are hurrying forward. Here, in our own midst, we have a regiment or two of tailors constantly employed in making up elegant and substantial uniforms for the soldiers, at the Brown Stone Clothing Hall of Rockhill & Wilson, Nos. 603 and 605 Chestnut street, above Sixth. WASHINGTON TO BE ATTACKED .--- It is stated that three contrabands escaped from the vicinity of Fairfax Court House, a few duys since, and made their way into Washington. They report that an attack is to be made on that city some time during this week; but our friends need not be alarmed, however, as that city is perfectly safe, and in the meantime we advise them to visit the Manmoth Gift Military and Civic Clothing Emporium of Granville Stokes, 609 Chestnut street, and there procure for themselves a handsome fall suit. A plendid assortment of fall and winter clothing is now being laid in, and with each sale a useful and ornamental gift is presented.

The Stock Exchange opens to-day with renewed heaviness, extending to every department of the list. The rise in foreign exchange and the discus-sion of the unmercantile causes which have led to it, together with the less favorable look of military It, together with the less have able took of minitary affairs in the Western Department, produce a feel-ing of dissatisfaction and uneasiness. The disturb-ance in money, growing out of the heavy operations of the Sub-Treasury, also exerts an influence, as the active shifting of loans forces some stock on the market market.
