included in to-night's exhibition is, that it was less bad than usual on such occasions.

The famous Vox Humana stop disappointed me. Although very skilfully managed, as it needs to be, and in some few notes closely resembling the human voice, on the whole it was not close enough to satisfy, scarcely to please. It was always used after a dark and tempestuous passage. It sounded as if one were riding past a church in a storm and heard rather naral voices chanting therein. Once or twice it was brought out with an illusory sweetness.

Handel's Hallelujah Chorus satisfied me. It was magnificently rendered. The whole power of the instrument was developed. As the sublime conception was evolved, I lost all thought of time and place. The solid roof passed away; the organ itself was for a moment forgotten; the whole air was filled with glorying angels; they cried to each other with ecstatic joy, and answered back as joy-fully. New bands broke in. Sweeping upwards as into thicker hosts, and carrying the fiery contagion of rapture, the whole universe seemed in motion of boundless joy. Then thou, teo, O my soul! didat join the celestial host! Not with sound or articulation, but with worshipful thoughts and sacred joys, unspeakable and full of glory! Then there was lifted up before my inward sight a majesty of love, as far surpassing men and angels, as yesterday the snow mountains, in radiant sunlight, had seemed more grand and glorious than the daistes and harebells that grew at their feet! I am sure that music is the key that opens heaven. Not Peter, but Handel, to-night. The surging sounds died away, and silence itself seemed melodious for a little while." RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE. The Paintings in the New Cathedral. The artistic decorations of the new Cathedral 1 this city, now rapidly hastening to completion, and which was thrown open for the first time on the 6th of August, the late National day of thanksgiving, are of a character to correspond with the magnitude and elaborate grandeur of that immense edifice. On entering its solemn precincts, the first thing that anests the eye, after it recovers from the bewilderment which overcomes its first glance upon the vast interior, is the paintings on the wall of the nave in the rear of the sanctuary, several of which are from the pencil of Constantine Brumidi, the eminent Roman painter who has the direction of the ornamentation of the Capitol at Washington. Immediately over the space to be occupied by the grand altar is a splendid painting of the Crucifixion. The Crucified One elevated upon a tree, the mourners gathered round its foot, the ministering angels poised on outstretched wings in the clouds above, are all atrikingly represented. The figures are all above the life size, but at the distance from which they are ntended to be viewed they appear natural. This painting, like all the rest, is a real fresco, having been executed upon the fresh plaster, so that the colors penetrate and become a portion of it. Near at hand are the finest imitations of the sculptor's art, in colors, that we have ever examined, the sta tues of Peter, Paul, James, and John, being so graphically delineated with the pencil, in imitation of Literature in Washington is gonsipped entertain Literature in Washington is gossipped entertainingly by "Agate," correspondent of the Cincinnation of Cazette. From a long letter, devoted to the doings of the busy illerati, we extract the following:

Every body recollects the "Diamond Wedding," with which New York society was convulsed some years ago, and the ringing poem of the same name with which the New York Tribune, the next day, convulsed the society aforesaid worse than ever. But everybody may not know that the author (Mr. Edmund C. Stedman, then of the Tribune, and subsequently of the World, which last journal he left a year or more ago,) has been for some time clerk to Attorney General Bates, and consequently a resident per force of Washington. Carleton is to publish in October or November a new volume by Mr. Stedman, entitled "Alice of Monmouth, an Idyl of the Great War." It is understood to be a narrative poem of considerable length, the seene parity pastoral (at the North) and parity in hospitals and on the Virginia battle, fields. The volume is to be filled out with miscellaneous poems, the accumulation of the two years since Mr. Stedman's last work was issued. Mr. Stedman has recently enjoyed the honor of translation into German, the patient poets of the fatherland having apparently discovered (what some at home have not) that there are manygems in his recently to finish his from Washington heats ame and the same time a summer refuge from Washington heats same time as unmare resultion, Mr. John James Platt. When the Press proved too smart to live, Mr. Platt became considered with George D. Prentice on the treasury hepartment, Since the issue of "Poems by Two Griends," the two friends being Mr. Platt and W. D. Howells, now United States consul at Venice, Mr. Platt has published nothing save occasional fugitive productions. It is understood, however, that a volume of the missing server, that a volume of ingly by "Agate," correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette. From a long letter, devoted to the doings of the busy lilerati, we extract the following: culpture, that you imagine you are looking upon cold marble standing out in bold relief, with rounded forms, regular contour of features, and naturally-creased folds of the flowing robes. Immediately above these, in the semi-circular space formed by the vaulted roof of the nave, is the usual allegorical representation of the Eternal Father and the Holy Ghost, and on the frieze above is the inscription: "Tu es Petrus et super hanc, Petram ædificabo Ecclesiam meam "in English, "Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my Church." In the lunette of the dome is a painting of the Assumption of the Bleased Virgin into Heaven. Although one hundred and fifty six feet from the floor, the figures are brilliant and distinct, even to the features. At the four corners of the dome, at its intersection with the cross vaults, are paintings of the four Evangelists. The panels at the end of the transept are yet unoccupied, but proper subjects have already been chosen for them, which will soon be executed. They will be as follows: In one of them will be represented the shepherds to whom the nativity of our Lord was first announced by the angels, whilst in the smaller niches will be painted statues of four apostles. In the other transept is to be represented the adoration of the three kings, the Magi, the mystery of the feast of the Epiphany. There will be smaller niches for the other apostles, the design being to have representations of the whole twelve, four in each of ELOCUTIONARY INSTRUCTIONS IN OUR THEOLO. GICAL SEMINARIES .- It is with great pleasure that we find a growing interest manifested by our educaional institutions having for their object the preparation of young men for the ministry. The Prince-ton Theological Seminary is announced to resume its regular exercises on Thursday, September 3d, and the faculty announce that there will be a course of special instruction in elecution near the beginning of the term. The Western Theological Seminary, at Allegheny, in the interest of the same denomination, also announces that lectures on elocution will ment. We hope that these initial steps in a toolong-neglected branch of discipline will be efficiently followed up not only by the Old School Presbyterians, but by every other denomination. Mr. Whitman's politics are reputed no bet-ter than they should be; but his unselfash and loan-continued services in the hospitals here have earned him the undying gratitude of many a poor fellow who will never stop to inquire about his politics. He seems to be in easy circumstances, and for months he has been residing here, devoting himself almost entirely to the care of the sick and wounded: formerly of Middletown, Del., being on a visit to his wife's family in that neighborhood, and having given utterance to Secession sentiments, has been placed in Fort Delaware by the authorities. MR. Brown, retired from the great publishing ROSA BONHEUR.-Chambers' Journal tells us that THE REV. W. J. Hoge, D. D., formerly associate pastor of the Brick Church, New York (Rev. Dr. Spring's), was with Lee's army at Martinsburg, and fashioned house in the Rue d'Assas, with a large court yard attached: court yard attached:

"Entering this you find a farm-yard in the heart of the city; round it are stables and cattle sheds; in the middle a good sized piece of pasture is enclosed, where sheep, goats, and helfers browse together on the beat of terms. Here a peacock airs his train in the sun; there a lot of pigeons coo and beeknon, cocks crow, guines fowls call, hens clamor over their brood. At intervals over the strident din of the poultry beoms the deep bellow of a Highland steer, or one long bay from a favorite English hound. Cross the threshold of the painting-room, and there are these living models multiplied on the walls by studies more or less finished, but all portrait-like in their faithfulness, all instinct with that subtle charm which has been well called the painter's magic. rary degree of D. "Presently in comes a goat, evidently free of the sanctum; trots round with a critical air, which is irresistibly comic; wags his venerable beard over sundry sketches of himself, and away clatters Capricornus again. Next appears Margot, a beautiful mare, coming straight up to her owner's easel with those affectionate whinings which beg some tokens of recognition quite as plainly as human utterance. The figure in a loose costume, something between a blouse and a paletôt, seated before the easel, appears somewhat insignificant; but now, as the artist looks up with a smile at her favorite, one glance at her face, which most of us know by Dubufe's portrait; at the physiognomy, in which strength and simplicity are somewhat insignificant, which strength and simplicity are somewhat when the strength and strength and simplifies to simplifie the strength and simplifies to strength and simplifies to simplifie the strength and simplifies t THIS WAR .- A Methodist clergyman recently paid the following high, but well-merited compliment to the Sisters of Charity, whose labors among the sick and wounded he had witnessed with unqualified adniration: "The war has brought out one result. It has shown that numbers of the weaker sex, though born to wealth and luxury, are ready to renounce every comfort and brave every hardship, that they may minister to the suffering, tend the wounded in their agony, and soothe the last struggles of the dying. God bless the Sisters of Charity, in this their heroic mission. I had almost said their heroic martyrdom. And I might have said it, for I do think that in walking those long lines of sick beds, in giving themselves to all the ghastly duties of the hospital, they are doing a harder thing than was allotted to many who mounted the scaffold or dared of New York. The Tribune remarks: of New York. The Tribune remarks:

"Whatever judgment may ultimately be passed upon its merits, this will be regarded as a very real living work. It is the story of a literary career—the life of a man of genius, who has won his way toilsomely from poverty and obscurity to a dazzling eminence in the world of letters—who has written the great novel of the country—and who, though proscribed and in exile, is widely honored and admired, but especially in that land whose soil he is forbidden evermore to tread. French memoirs are concededly graphic and life-like; this will not diminish their reputation. The many familiar letters to M. Hugo from the most eminent Frenchmen of this century, which are quoted throughout, enhance its interest. The translation by Mr. O. E. Wilbour is at once spirited and conscientious, and the work must command a wile American perusal."

THE CHRISTIAN INTELLIGENCER. — The Christian Intelligencer appeared last week restored to its former dimensions, and filled with the excellent matter which we always find in its columns. The Intelligencer is the sole paper of the Dutch Reformed Church, and is conducted in a way which well represents the intelligence, partiotism, and sterling piety of that noble body of Christians. at once spirited and conscientious, and the work must command a wide American perusal."

MISS MARTINEAU'S EXPERIENCE IN EARLY RISING.—Authors who rise to fame are not always carly risers. Miss Martinean, however, is a good example in either respect. "I speak from experience," she says. "For forty years my business has lain in my study. The practice of early rising was, I am confident, the preservation of health through many years of hard work—the hour gained being given, not to book or pen, but to activity. I rose at six, summer and winter, and (after cold bathing) went out to walk in all weathers. In the coldest season, on the rainiest morning, I never returned without being glad that I went. I need not detail the pleasure of the summer morning. In winter there was either a fragment of gibbous moon hanging over the mountain, or a star quivering in the river, or icicles beginning to shine in the dawn, or, at worst, some break in the clouds, some moss on the wall, some gleam in the water, which I carried home in the shape of refreshment. I breakfasted at half past seven, and had settled household business and was at my work at half past eight, fortified for seven hours, continuous deak-work, without injury or fatigue."

William Taylor, of Caliornia, the following are justly considered the lead-Model Preacher," by Rev. William Taylor, of Oalifornia, the following are justly considered the leading qualities of a good sermon:

"Five essential characteristics of the Great Teachers's method are enumerated and largely illustrated:
1. Clearness; in perception first, and then in statement, illustration and application; 2. Earnestness; 3. Naturalness; 4. Literalness, i. e., literal facts, demonstrating the truth and power of the Gospel, and literal figures from real life, illustrating the great principles of the Gospel; 5. Appropriateness; a wise selection and adaptation of truths to the varied condition of the hearers. We are disposed to think that of these essential elements of successful teaching, one of the most neglected is that of naturalness. We gladly concede to our brethren in the ministry that they hold with clearness the views of truth they proclaim, and that they do their work with earnestness; but we feel convinced that much of the monotony and ineffectiveness of pulpit exercises is due to the false style of addiess which too largely prevalls. The preacher should learn that there is a style of preaching which, on various accounts, is peculiarly his own, and that in proportion as he retains his individuality, so he keeps up interest in himself and in his message."

A CLERGYMAN finding his people almost frantic with joy at the reception of the news that Richmond was taken, laid aside the manuscript sermon he had prepared and preached extempore from the text: "Rejoice with trembling." The first heard was: "Whilst you rejoice in the hope, you may tremble with fear that the report is not true!"

THE CALIFORNIA Christian Advocate thinks that the numbers of the Methodist membership on the Pacific coast are not sufficient to justify the attempt to sustain two organs. It proposes a union of the out injury or fatigue."

MIRS. SUNNER LINCOLN FAIRFIELD, widow of the erratic Western poet Fairfield, died in New York, on the 18th of August, after a lingering and painful illness. In her earlier years she was remarkable for her grace and beauty, as well as for the energy and enterprise with which, for many years, she assisted her distinguished husband in the publication of his works. Many of those who read this will remember the sparkling beauty of her palmy days. She is also favorably known as the authoriess of an autobiography of herself, and the life of her husband. She survived him twenty years, and died at the age of fifty eight. She leaves a daughter, Madame Gertrude de Vingut, a lady of literary talents and accomplishments. PHILADELPHIA BOARD OF TRADE.

COMMITTEE OF THE MONTH. Mr. Beecher on the Organ of Freiburg. Henry Ward Beecher, in his interesting travels in Switzerland, writes from Freiburg to the Inde-Henry Ward Beecher, in his interesting travels in Switzerland, writes from Freiburg to the Independent:

I have just returned from the Church of St. Nicholas. The fame of its organ led me to make this a point of rest for the night. A little before 8 o'clock we entered the church—Gothic, large, and full of twilight. Several score came in, and slently waited as we did. One more and another still entered, and seemed like shadows flitting past the huge columns. A bevy of girls came lightly forward, clinging together, and, like a flock of doves that swing round and-round before alighting, they moved to the right, only to swing back to the left, where soon gently and prettly, they all settled upon the luxurious oaken board called a seat. The great front doors were closed; the inner iron open-worked gate shut with a dull clink; then a signal bell for the organ rang, and was echoed by another below, plentifully rung. All were silent, waiting for the opening note. I hoped to hear some "Miserere" breathed out, or some soft supplication that would carry me up above life and day. Instead, a roll and crash came from the full organ. Everything rushed forth with screaming exultation. If there fiew into the roar a little snatch of melody, all the parts, like so many hawks, swooped down upon it, snatching it irom each other, and mounting with it, or darting downward, so that the poor, sweet little melody wished it had never spread its wing. It was too late for regrets. They fore it for pieces, and nothing was heard of it more. Everything had gone wrong with me to day. I was in a reaction. Yesterday I had gone over the Wengern Alps, stood face to face with Jungfray, Mouch, and Elger; seen the gladiers, and heard the avalanches; and come home to see the sun go down upon that the same and changf its gold to sliver, and fill the air with an ineffalle beauty. its contrast with the fierce tempest among the mountain tops.

Then came a sort of exhibition-piece, in which the organ was made to show what it could do. I never like such things. An organ is the gravest and grandest instrument in the world. It is a musical cathedral. Its rervice is religious. To set it to perform waltzes is as absurd as it would be to clear a cathedral for the dancing of waltzes.

It is putting an organ to mookery to lead it up and down in frivolous rope-dancing and musical legendamain. What is more absurd than a herd of elephants dancing a minuet? What would be thought of a Senate of venerable men who should down on their knees and play at-children's games, leap-frog, mumble-the-peg, and such-like sports?

The best thing to be said of the ponderous levity suig-1m Attention to the above certificate is particularly requested, as it is the first trial of LILLIE'S SAFES in a accidental fire in Philadelphia.

I would say to all parties who want a Fire and Burgiar-proof Safe that LILLIE'S WROUGHT AND CHILLED IR'N SAFES are much the cheapest and the only real Fire and Burgiar-proof Safes now made; and to those who want simply a Fire-proof, I would say that LILLIE'S WROUGHT IRON SAFEs fully equal in all respects to any of the most-approved makers, and is sold at fully one-third less price.

I also am receiving daily in exchange for Lillie's Wrought and Chilled Iron Safes other Safes, and keep constantly on hand a general easontment of HERRING'S, EVANS & WATSON'S, and other makers, many of them almost new, which I offer at, and even below, auction prices. NAVY DEPARTMENT, July 29, 1985.

The Navy Department will, until the 25th day of August, receive propositions for the construction and erection on board a vessel to be nell; at the Fortsmouth, N. H. Boston, New York, and Philadelphia Navy-Yards, of two revolving turrets and two impregnable smokepipes, with gratings for each vessel.

The internal diameter of the turrets to be 24 feet, height 9 feet 6 inches, thickness 16 inches; to be composed of two separate shells of plate iron, with wrought iron slabs inserted between the same.

The pilot-house on each turret to be 8 feet internal diameter, 6 feet 6 inches high, 12 inches thick, composed of plate iron.

The turret engines and gear for turning and regulating the movement of the turret, the gun slides and carriage, port stoppers, and other internal arrangements to be of the same general character as the Monitor class of vossels. The impregnable smoke-pipe to be in thickness 8 inches, composed of plate iron; inside diameter 9% feet, and beight above the deck 9% feet.

The proposition must embrace all the above-mentioned work, including the bracing of the turrets, and state the cost and the time within which the work for each vessel will be completed, on board, and ready for service.

The general plans can be examined at the office of the Inspector of Iron-clas Steamers, 256 Canal street, New York.

The Proposals must be endorsed on the outside 'Pro-LARGE SALE OF 1.000 CASES BOOTS AND SHOPP.
