A CONTRAST.

NAPOLEON AND WASHINGTON

From Memoirs of Chatesubriand, by himself.

Washington does not, like Bonaparte, be Washington does not, like Bonaparte, be-long to a race who outstrip the standard of hu-man measurement. Nothing amazing is at-tached to his person; he is not placed on a vast theatre of action; is not engaged in ter-rible combat with the most skilful generals and the most powerful monarchs of his time; does not haste full speed from Memphis to Vienna, from Cadiz to Moscow; he stands his ground with a handful of citizens in a country adorned with no peculiar celebrity, within the narrow circle of their domestic hearths. He fights no battles which revive the trimprhants of Athela and Pharsalin; he their ruins; he does not say to the kings at be his gate, "Quils so font trop attenkre, et qu" Attilla s'ennuie."

liberty of the future is in his hands, and fearful of compromising it. This hero of a new race manages and directs, not his own destinies, but those of his country ; he does not allow himself to toy with what is not his own; but from this profound humility what brilliancy now bursts forth ! Traverse the woods where Washington's sword flashed to the light; what will you find ? Graves? No ! a world ! Washington has left the United States a trophy on his battle field. Bonaparte has no trait in common with this grave, calm American: he combats noisily . N. B-Patents secured and mechanical drawwoods where Washington's sword flashed to he thinks only of building up his own fame, take charge only of his own destiny. He seems to know that his mission will be short . that the torrent which falls from such a height will quickly be exhausted ; he hastens to enjoy and abuse his power, like a quickly fleeting youth. Like Homer's gods, he longs to N. E. corner of FIFTH and CHESNUT streets, Phihis name on the records of every nation, and excellent Family Medicine. It is particularly rethrows crowns to his family and his soldiers; he is in haste in everything, in his monuments, the stomach a glow and vigor, equal to a wine the world with one hand he overturns kings, the debilitating effects, which are sure to follow the with the other crushes the giant revolution; hattle.

Each is rewarded according to his deeds. Washington raises a nation to independence; a magistrate in the repose of domestic life, he falls asleep beneath his own roof, amidst the regrets of his fellew countrymen, and the veneration of nations.

Bonaparte robs a nation of its independence : a fallen emperor, he is cast forth into exile, where the terror of nations still look upon him as insufficiently imprisoned, even under the goard of ocean. Be expires ; the news, published at the gate of the palace before which the conqueror caused so many deaths to be proclaimed, neither arrests nor astonishes the passer-by. What had the citizens to regret ?

Washington's republic still exists; Bonaparte's empire has fallen to the ground.

Washington and Bonaparte were both nursed in the lap of democracy; both born of liberty; the one was faithful to her, the other betrayed her.

Washington was the representative of the wants, ideas, intelligence, and opinions of his times; he seconded, instead of opposing, the movements of the public mind ; he willed what it was his duty to will, the thing to will, the thing to which he was called ; hence the coherence and perpetuity of his work. This man, not striking because in his just proportions, mingled his existence with that of his country ; his fame is the patrimony of civilization ; his renown stands like one of those public sanctuaries whence flows a fertilizing, inexhaustible stream.

 Sit—yon wish me to inform you what I know of Dr. Osgood's ludin Cholagogue, or anti-hilious medicine. I do believe that if the virtue and efficacy of this medicine were generally known, the FFVER AND AGEN would disappear in Michigan.
 I procured a bottle in the spring of 1841, and have good reason to believe that myseli and family escaped the ague has eason to believe that myseli and family escaped the ague perinani, has the fever and ague been so prevalent as the hast. I have recommended this medicine in numerous in-stances, and when the dimense had become fixed and baffield the skill of physicians; and I have never known it full. I-has universally produced the most happy effects, and I bet-lieve it has never been exceeded by any medicine in remo-ving the bilous diseases of the climute. Yours, respectfully. STEPHEN V. R. Read the following, and say that consumption is in incu-rable if you can: New York, April 23, 1847. Dr. Townsann : I verily believe that your Sursaparilla has been the means, through Providence, of saving my life I have for several years had a had cough. It became worse and worse. At hast I raised large quantities of blood, had night sweats and was greatly debilitated and reduced, and did not expect to live. I have only used your Sursaparilla but a short time, and there has a wonderful change been wrought in me. I am now able to walk all over the city...-I raise no blood, and my cough has left me. There are thousands of similar ca-ses in this city and Brooklyn, and yet there are thousands of parents let their children die for foar of being humbagged or to save a few shillings. Brooklyn, Sept. 13, 1817. Dr. Tewssense: I take pleasure is sating, for the bene-fit of those whom it may concern, that my daughter, two years and six months old, was afflicted with general de-bility and loss of speech. She was given up as past pre-eovery by our family physician, but fortunately I was re-eomended by a friend to try your Sorsparins. Before inving used one bottle she recovered her speech and was embled to walk alone, to the astonishment of all who were acquainted with the circumstances. She is now quite well, and in much better health than she has been for 15 months past. JOSEPH TAYLOR, 125 York st., Brooklyn.
