COUNTING VI ATTENTION.

An eld paper says: This is a subject which always important, is becoming possibliarly so, and we design to call the stiention of the young people occasionally, in hope of arres-

"Young ladies are bound to fall in love as soon as possible, and bound to be bound to a partner for life, as soon as the necessary preliminaries can be made—such as getting a lover, fascinating him thoroughly, being courted, having the question pupped, getting the wedding garments in array, and inviting friends to see them prettily married. The young man is bound to be gallant and polite, and admire without stint all the pretty young girls known and unknown, to doff the beaver, offer his arm, invite to ride, pleasant saunter -in short, to all and sundries, indeed to show his devotion and gallantry towards the sex, until some enchantress throws her spell around him, and he sinks, subdued, into a common place, indifferent careless Benedict. "Now out of these things grow difficulties

A young man admires a pretty girl, and must manifest it; he cannot help so doing for the life of him. The young lady has a tender heart, reaching out like vine tendrils for something to cling to; she sees the admiration, is flattered, begins soon to love, expects some tender avowal, and perhaps gets so far as to decide that she will choose a white satin under a thin gauze, at the very moment the gallant that she loves, is popping the question (good! ah! ah!) to another damsel ten miles off. Now the difficulty lies in not precisely understanding the difference between polite attentions and the tender manifestation of sighing and love. Admiring a beautiful girl, and wishing to make a wife of her, are not always the same; therefore, it is necessary that a girl should be on the alert to discover to which class the attentions paid her by a handsome and fashionable young gentleman belong. Is is a hard to draw the exact line of separation between polite attentions and downright courting, but our great age and extensive appearance have enabled us to observe enough to aid the young and artless in deciding the matter.

"First then-If a young fellow greets yo in a loud, free, hearty voice-if he knows precisely were to put his hat, or his hands, if he stares you straight in the eye with his own wide open-if he turns his back to speak to another-if he tells you who made his coat -if he squeezes your hand-if he fails to be very foolish in fifty ways every hour, then don't fall in love with him for the world; he only admires you, let him say or do what he will. But if he be merry with every one else, but quiet with you-if he be anxious to see that your tea is sweetened, and your dear person wrapped up when you go out into the cold; if he talks very low and never looks you in the eye-if his cheeks are red or if he be pale, and his nose blush, it is enough; if he romps with your sister, sighs like a pair of bellows, looks solemn when addressed by another gentleman, and in fact is the most still, awkward, stopid, yet anxious of your male friends, you may go ahead and invoke the shaft of Cupid with perfect safety, and make the poor fellow too happy for his skin to hold him."

THE TEA CULTURE IN THE UNITED STATES. -The New York Tribune has the following in relation to Junius Smith's attempt to cultivate the tea plant in this country:

We have late advices from the lea plantation of Mr. Junius Smith, at Greenville, S. C. His plants are in blossom, and as healthy and flourishing as those of China at the same stage of growth. Everything looks as favorable, and Mr. Smith feels abundantly encouraged. He expects to place fresh tea on the tea-tables of London and Paris in twenty days from his plantation .-He has a large number of plants, and tea seed enough for a half a million more.—
The black descriptions blossomed some time since, but lately the green plant descriptions have also blossomed. Mr. Smith is collecting about him quite a force of labor-ers, having sent to the North for about twenty hands. He has also made very successfull efforts to grow the fig and almond. His next year's crop will be an important one. Should Mr. S. succeed in introducing the growth of the tea plant into the United States, he will certainly deserve a statue of gold and the gratitude of the whole country.
