ARRIVAL OF THE STEAMSHIP

AMERICA. SEVEN DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.

Important Intelligence from France-Dissolu tion of the Cabinet-Formation of a New One-Excitement in Paris-Arbitrary Measures of Louis Napoleon, Se, Sc.

The America, Capt. Judkins, arrived at New York between 10 and 11 o'clock on Saturday morning, in less than fifty hours from Halifax.

The Clyde steam packet arrived at Southampton on the 2d instant, with the mail from the West Indies, and has blought $820,000, which had been received at the Isthmus of

The Free Trade Hall, Manchester, was crowded to the extent of six or seven thousand people, on the 1st of October, to promote Wesleyan reform and to hear addresses from Messrs. Everett, Dunn and Griffith, the expelled ministers from that body, and their friends.

The Nicaragua dispute and Canadian annexation continue to be the subjects of comment in the English newspapers

An American merchant, Mr. James Miller, committed suicide in London from fear of a relapse of the gout.

It is expected that Kossuth will arrive at Southampton on board the Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamer Sultan, from Constantinople. Arrangements are making to give the illustrious Magyar a suitable reception. The Sultan is expected at Southampton about the 6th proximo.

The Queen Downger has not improved she has, on the contrary, become weaker. At a large meeting of the Peace Society General Klapka, the defender of Comorn, was present, and was welcomed with enthusiasm. During the evening it was announced that the Congress of the society will next year be held at Frankfort.

Among the deaths announced in the London papers are those of the Earl of Albermarle, aged 78, Lord Talbot de Malahide, 83, and Chopin, the eminent pianist and composer, in Paris.

The New Ministry

The following is the definitive list of the new French Ministry, as published in the General d'Hautpoul, Minister of War.

M. Achille Fould, Finance.

M. Rouher, Justice. M. Ferdinand Barrot, Home Department M. A. de Rayneval, the Minister at Naples, in the absence of M. de Rayneval, with the portfolio of Foreign Affairs. All the above belong to the majority of the Legislative Assembly. OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

[From the Jonrnal des Debats.] Yesterday, at ten o'clock, all the Ministers, with the exception of M. Odilon Barrot, tion, assembled in council at the Elysee .-The conversation, it is said, commenced on the political state of affairs, and on the necessity of providing a successor for M. de something more than twenty minutes-a some respects, it was infinitely better for Falloux. M. Louis Bonaparte addressed the distance of two miles. Ministers, and while expressing his sympa, thy and esteem for the person of each of his Ministers, declared that in his eyes his Cabinet had not known how to preserve its independence toward the majority of the Assem-

He even alluded to the discussion on the affairs of Italy, and to the last deliberation of the representatives who met at the Council of State, in which the leading members of that party had been called on to accept power in the event of a ministerial crisis. The President also, it is said, complained of the ville, a few days since. He also paid delay which had taken place in the changes of the personnel of the administration and in the corps diplomatique; and he concluded. from all these facts, that a sufficiently intimate accord did not exist between him, the chief of the Executive power, and his Ministers. All the members of the Cabinet spontaneously declared that the President was perfectly at liberty to choose his Ministers as he thought fit, but that in their souls and consciences having fulfilled their duty with zeal and good faith, and after the last vote of the majority, they could not tender their resignations.

M. Louis Bonaparte then gave them to understand that they no longer possessed his confidence, and that he intended to call other persons to his council. On retiring, the Ministers are said to have declared, with a laudable anxiety which does them honor, that until the new Ministry was formed, they would remain at their post to watch over the a valuable cargo, and 125 passengers. The direction of affairs and the public safetyobserving, however, to the President that they thought that in the present state of the public mind, a ministerial crisis could not, without great danger, be prolonged more than 48 hours.

At two o'clock, this day, an extraordinary supplement of the Moniteur was published, with the decree of the President appointing the new Ministers.

The sole signature of the President to this the late Ministers would countersign it.

The editor of the Wilkesbarre Farmer has been taking some exceptions to our democracy, on account of our tariff views. And, until Friend Collins shall the editor of the Gazette and secured his furnish better proof than the tally papers of election, will look rather cheap at the cool his county, to show that he possesses the confidence of his party at home, we shall have a double motive to question his fitness to sit in judgment on the democracy

And we might, therefore, be disposed to xcuse the editor for some of his wanderings, it he had sufficient magnanimity to acknowledge an error, when he is struggling for breath, in its very vortex. But true to his instinct, like another animal we might name, we shall never expect him to retrace way mountain-high, before him. If assertions the most extravagant, could always be converted into arguments, or statements sing. the most unfounded, into facts, the Gazette might prove a formidable opponent, as it using either, as occasion may require. riff, yet when he takes hold, he holds on with bull-dog pertinacity, until the force of circumstances renders it necessary that he should change his position by taking another grasp. Thus generally, for the time being,

Stiff in opinion, always in the wrong, Every thing by starts, and nothing long. And in the course of one revolving moon, Is free-trade, tariff—statesmen and buffoon.

That our readers may not suppose that ou poetry, like the assertions of the Gazette, are mere fictions, we append the following beautiful extracts from that paper, by which t will be seen that if the editor is not condemned out of his own mouth, he is so at least by his own paper, which ought to be

Thus in July 1843 he opposes the tariff of 1842 on the ground that it was not a Judicious one, in June 1844, some ten months afterwards, he says the tariff of 1842 is a Judicious one and is "such a one as he was contending for." A year or two after he denies he ever was in favor of the tariff of 1842 and abuses us for having been in its and "whose tergiversations are as notoric

What a jewell of consistency!

The Gazette has devoted nearly a whole column of his tirade on the false assumption that we were in favor of the restoration of in a small grocery store occupied by Mr. the tariff of 1842. In order to show the Apsley, on the Point, which together with utter recklessness of his assertions, we have as there was but little of anything in the of that tariff. The "Good Intent riff of 1846, we advocated the tariff of 1842, Engine" of this place, was taken over in on the ground, that imperfect as it was in our interests than the tariff of 1846, and this is our opinion still. Since than we BF His Excellency Governor Johnston have advocated a tariff of specific as well and should they heap upon us such unblushing inconsistency and blind servility, as those of the Gazette, we shall forever hang our head in silence, on the subject. The Gazette also finds fault on account of our absence during the election. In regard to this, we have only to say, our motto is "business first and pleasure afterwards." pleasure of attending the election, at a juncture so trying to himself, but trust that he will feel himself amply compensated, by the very flattering vote he received in this place, where his free-trade notions were so well known and appreciated.

Probably the most singular charge of the Gazette is, that we "shroud our political faith." The reverse of this has always been charged upon us. Those to whom we were opposed, were generally, not long in finding it out. But what can our neighbor say to such a charge? Sheriff Maurer will, no doubt, always feel grateful for what the Gazette said and did in a quiet way, for his election and the promises made by his opponent, provided he succeeded. At a later period a nominee for Commissioner was also under obligations for his quiet support, and not much over a year since, the nominee for Register &c., no doubt, was also under great obligations to the same

The Gazette insists that the resolutions at the Pittsburg Convention and our own gates, as well as our old friend Wm. > We copy the following from the Pittsburg Daily Mercury, for the purpose of corroborating what we stated in relation to the free trade resolution, in the Pittsburg Convention in July last :

"We perceive that our able contemporary, the "Soubury American," has had a contro-versy with his neighbor, the "Gazette," relative to the Tariff question. We can vouch for the accuracy of the statements contained in the following extract from the "Sunbury American. The resolution in favor of free trade had only two supporters in committee, including the proposer, Mr. Mercur,—it passed the convention in the manner described y our contemporary : "The resolution in favor of free trade, in the Pittsburgh convention, was not reported by the ommittee, but passed, amid the noise and confuion of an adjournment."

It would appear from the following, that the Gazette strongly resembles a certain print in this city, which is incapable of formng an independent opinion upon any subject, as its pretensions are ridiculous.'

The idea is no doubt a bright one and sug gestive to those who can comprehend it. No one, however, acquainted with the editor of the Gazette will ever suspect him of inventing any thing of a higher grade than those fabulous and miraculous stories, that have so long graced the columns of his paper, and of which he has had such an exclusive monopoly that a patent would be superfluous.

Our next invention will, most probably, be an automaton free-trade editor, Janus, or double faced. Such a one would answer admirably for the office of the Gazette, and in the absence of the editor, could give utterance to sentiments for and against the tariff in the same breath, without any qualms of conscience, and as unblushingly as the original

There was also shown a coil of fine wire made from the same iron which furnished the rails, and which is dog near the works of Ald. Cooper. SPITTING BLOOD

Is always abraning. It leads to the worst kind of Consumption, and unless arrested in time, is generally fatal. Sherman's All-Healing Baisan is the best remedy known, it heals the wounded or raptified blood vessels of the lungs, and thereby effects a permanent care, while other remedies only stop the blood for the time.
