

TEMPERANCE ANECDOTE. The Rev. T. P. Hunt, the Temperance Lecturer, tells the following story: A small temperance society has been started in a community very much under the control of a rich distiller, commonly called "Bill Myers." This man had several sons who had become drunkards on the facilities afforded by their education at home. The whole family was arrayed against the movement, and threatened to break up any meeting called to promote the object. Learning this, Mr. Hunt went to a neighboring district for temperance volunteers for that particular occasion. He then gave out word for a meeting, and at the time found his friends and enemies about equal in numbers. This fact prevented any outbreak, but could not prevent noise.

Mr. Hunt mounted his platform, and by a few sharp anecdotes and witty sayings, soon silenced all noise except the sturdy "Bill Myers"—the old Dutchman crying out, "Misther Hunt, money makes the mare go." To every shot which seemed ready to demolish him, the old fellow presented the one shield, "Misther Hunt, money makes the mare go."

At last Mr. Hunt stopped and addressed the importunate German: "Look here, Bill Myers, you say that money makes the mare go, do you?" "Yes, dat ish just what I say, Misther Hunt."

Well, Bill Myers, you own and work a distillery, don't you?" inquired Mr. Hunt. "Dat is none of your business, Misther Hunt. But, den, I ish not ashamed of it. I has got a still, and work it, too?" "And you say, 'Money makes the mare go,' do you mean that I have come here to get the money of those people?"

"Yes, Misther Hunt, dat ish just what I mean." "Very well; you work a distillery to make money, and I lecture on temperance to make money, and as you say, 'Money makes the mare go,' Bill Myers, bring out your mares and I'll bring out mine, and we'll show them together."

By this time the whole assembly was in a titter of delight, and even Myers' followers could not repress their merriment at the evident embarrassment of their oracle. In the meantime, we must premise that Mr. Hunt knew a large number of the drunkards present, and among them the sons of Myers himself.

"Bill Myers, who is that holding himself up by that tree?" inquired Mr. Hunt, pointing to a young man so drunk that he could not stand alone.

The old man started, as if stung by an adder, but was obliged to reply: "Dat ish my son; but what of dat, Misther Hunt?" "Good deal of dat, Bill Myers; for I guess that son has been riding your mare, and got thrashed too!"

Here there was a perfect roar from all parts of the assembly, and, as soon as order was restored, Mr. Hunt proceeded, as he pointed to another son:

"Bill Myers, who is that staggering about as if his legs were as weak as potato vines after frost?"

"Well, I suppose dat ish my son, too," replied the old man, with a crest-fallen look.

"He has been riding your mare, too, and got a tumble!"

At this point the old man put up both hands in a most imploring manner, and exclaimed: "Now Misther Hunt, if you won't say any more, I will be still."

This announcement was received with a roar of applause and laughter, and from that moment Mr. Hunt had all the ground to himself.

WOMEN IN MALE ATTIRE. Among the schemes advocated by the female reformers of the present day, there is none more startling than that which aims at the overthrow of distinction in costume of the sexes. As a general thing the reformers either deny the existence of this project, or forbear to advocate it publicly; but the appearance of a pamphlet from the Brussels press, written by Miss H. M. Webber, in which the male attire is boldly and ingeniously recommended as the "most appropriate vesture for single females," removes all doubt upon the subject, and shows conclusively that the scheme is seriously entertained. Miss Webber is a graceful and vigorous writer, and treats her subject with apparent firmness. She adduces authorities to prove that, in early ages men and women dressed precisely alike; and that the distinction in dress which now exists, was arbitrarily drawn by the male sex, in the tyrannical exercise of power which they derived solely from their greater physical superiority.

Her plan is to restrict girls to their frocks until the completion of their education. Upon their entrance into society they are to dress precisely like males of similar condition, and continue to wear male attire until the day of their marriage. Widows at the end of the mourning season are to resume men's apparel, unless they have determined never to marry again. In effect, this is a scheme to distinguish marriageable females from married women and confirmed widows. Regarded in this light it has at least one merit, and may on that account claim the friendly countenance of the bachelor fraternity. It would save them a vast deal of trouble in ascertaining the domestic rank of a new lady acquaintance and prevent them from committing the now common error of falling in love with married women.—Holden's Magazine.

ONLY silly people make their misfortune the theme of conversation. Grievances and complaints are the worst possible staple of social intercourse. Sympathy-fasters, who bait their hooks with evil past or incurable, seldom enjoy even a nibble. If you go hunting let it be for smiles.

LOSING AN INFANT.—Those who have an infant are never, as it were, without an infant child. The other children grow up to manhood and womanhood, and suffer all the changes of mortality; but this one alone is rendered an immortal child; for death has arrested it with his kindly harshness, and blessed it into an eternal image of youth and innocence.
