

COUNT BATHYANY AND KOSUTH.

Prince Esterhazy and Count Bathynany, associates of Kosuth, have each published letters respecting Kosuth's claims and character. It is but fair that all sides should have a hearing, and so we publish the concluding portion of Bathynany's letter:

"Yes, I repeat, Kosuth himself was sincerely desirous of keeping up the connection with Austria on the terms that had been agreed to. But when the unshaken pretensions that had been constantly carried on could no longer be concealed; when unexpected blows were dealt in the dark with the intention of wearing Hungary out and exhausting her strength and patience in fruitless struggles, then it was that Kosuth's impetuous and restless temper and the inherent weakness of his character and laxity of principle predominated over his better feelings. Ambition, and a hankering after notoriety, and the suppleness with which he always yielded to the most pressing and least scrupulous placed him first in contradiction with himself, and then involved him—and it may be said also, the other Ministers—in an inconsistent policy, and finally led him to an ill-willed and arbitrary measures, which accelerated the fall of the Bathynany Ministry. It is unnecessary to charge a man with more failings and follies than he has been guilty of. Kosuth has already enough to answer for before the tribunal of public opinion respecting his political conduct, which was unquestionably the main cause of the ruin and downfall of his country.

Deficient in the knowledge of men and things, in the steadfast bearing, cool judgment, and comprehensive mind of a statesman, and without the firm hand of a ruler; setting at naught all sound calculation, while he played a game of chance, and staked the fate of the nation on the cast of a die—countering danger with hair-brained temerity when distant; but shrinking from it when near; elated and overbearing in prosperity, but utterly prostrate in adversity; wanting that strength and intrepidity of character that alone commands homage and obedience from those, while he suffered himself to be made the tool of every intriguer he came in connection with; mistaking his manifold accomplishments and natural genius for an aptitude to govern a country in time of trouble; and stung in the flights of fancy, no bounds to the scope of his ambition, Kosuth hurried the nation into a course of the most impolitic measures, and grasped the highest power in the realm by dubious means; but, when scarcely in possession of it, suffered it to be wrested from his hands by the man whom he had himself most injudiciously used to a high station, and against whom, though he had received repeated warnings, well as proofs of his treachery and boldness, he never dared openly and boldly proceed; by the man whom he had hoped ensnare, while he crouched beneath him subject fear, but by whom he was finally twisted.

The generous sympathy of the English nation cannot be quenched by being told that Austria was the benefactor of Hungary, while Hungarian diet was a factious Assembly, the majority of the Hungarian ministers et rebelis. In doing honor to Kosuth English people have shown their sympathy for the cause of an unfortunate country that has been bereaved of its chartered rights and liberties, and in fomenting this sympathy has been obliged to pay a tribute to feelings of legality that animate even the noblest classes in England, by exchequing his speeches the demagogued rant in which he had indulged only a week before. The right belongs exclusively to the nation, and not to those who are scattered over and sold in exile, but to those in whom resides the will of the nation at home.

Now, my own decided opinion on the subject is this—that Kosuth has not the right to set himself up as the sole and sive representative of his country—not next right to reassume the title of Governor and the functions of Dictator, as he does address from Broussa to the citizens of neutral States; and that it is a most untenable, as well as most illegal proceeding, in his part, to contend, as he does in the document, that the Hungarian nation not legally enter into any engagement, or with any measure that would be income with the act by which he was raised dignity of Governor; it being obvious, if he had not resigned his dignity, that the nation was reconstituted on its constitutional basis, its legal representative Diet assembled, would have the right in whatever way they might deem the conducive to the welfare of the country I am also of opinion that, so far from arguing a sound policy in wishing, as he would to remodel the reformed Constitution of England on it principles of republicanism and untried democracy—principles which are at variance with our national and institutions, as well as with the customs and genius of the people—would have acted more wisely and rendered a more essential service to his country, his liberation from the thraldom of him, he had appeared before the world simple character of a private individual. The conspicuous part which he took in air of his country, and his subsequent ones, would have secured him general respect, whilst the modesty of his demeaning from the minds of his countrymen, the recollection of the fanatics and committed, and through which Hungary has been brought to her present state of anarchy, would have given him a due and by courtesy among his compatriots, and placed him in a position to that useful advice and assistance which they would have gladly offered him for the purpose of hereafter repairing, by a course of sound and moderate policy, the injuries inflicted on the land of their birth. But instead of acting in this manner he set himself up as the Dictator of his countrymen. It is, therefore the sacred duty of those who, although far from wishing to fetter his activity, are not disposed to admit his claims, publicly to protest against his proceedings.

Without dwelling any longer on the weighty motives for caution which may be deduced from his past career, I will merely observe that his pretension to be still regarded as Governor is the more barefaced from the circumstances attending his resignation. He resigned by Gorgey and three members of the ministry to resign. He instantly complied, and resigned the Governorship without convening the Council of State, that he was bound by law to consult on every important occasion. He resigned without intimating his intention of doing so to the three other Ministers, (of whom I was one,) and who were, consequently, quite unaware of the fact. He did not resign his authority into the hands of the Ministers—as under such circumstances he was bound to do—but into the hands of Gorgey. He even invested Gorgey with a power and authority which he had not been invested himself, viz: the dictatorship. He delegated a power which he only held himself personally, and, in fact, provisionally, by a direct mandate of the Diet. He resigned in the name of the Ministry, which he had no right whatever to do.

Although it may be safely affirmed that he was in a state of moral and physical corruption when he gave in his resignation, it must be borne in mind that he voluntarily confirmed this act when he was free from all restraint, and could never be persuaded to re-assume his abandoned power, neither at Lugos, in the midst of General Bem's army, nor subsequently at Mehadia, when Bem urgently requested him to do so, and try the last chance that remained of success; to which request he again returned a negative answer in writing. By thus acting, he abandoned Hungary to her fate, and exposed all those who had taken a part in the war to the vengeance of Austria. He confirmed his avowed intention of retiring into private life by crossing the frontier and entering the Turkish dominions before the capitulation of Vilagos could possibly be known to him, and while there were still fortresses and armies in Hungary by which the national cause could have been sustained. In his letter of refusal to Gen. Bem, he in fact suggested the expediency of calling together some eminent men, in order to form a Provisional Government. On his arrival at Wildin he again publicly declared (in a letter since published,) his resolution of retiring into private life—a resolution which for a short time he acted upon. Leaving the public to judge how far those facts are reconcilable with his present pretensions, I have the honor to remain your obedient humble servant."

COUNT CASIMIR BATHYANY. Paris, Hotel de Paris, Place Ville l'Éveque, December 10th.

The following fact, in connection with this letter, is significant:—AUSTRIAN AMNESTY.—It is announced that the Austrian Government has granted an amnesty, which includes many Hungarian persons who have always been in discord with Kosuth. Among these is mentioned Count Bathynany, who has resided for some time in Paris, where he enjoys much consideration. With such a pardon, he, of course, receives back his large estates, which had been confiscated.

WAGES IN THE UNITED STATES. The following table, constructed from the returns of the Seventh General Census, exhibits the average wages per diem paid to operatives in the wrought iron works and the cotton and woolen factories in each of the United States, distinguishing the wages paid to males, and the wages paid to females.—Pennsylvania, it will be seen, maintains prices of labor rather above the average. In the slave States the price of labor seems to be miserably low.

Table with 5 columns: State, Wm. Males, Fem. Males, Fem. Total. Rows include Arkansas, Arizona, Cal. Ind. Dist. of, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, Virginia, Wisconsin.

OCEAN POSTAGE.

The amount of postage on letters and papers sent by ocean steamers during the year ending June 30th, for the United States, reached the sum of $1,131,776, as follows: Conard line, $139,259 95; Collins line, $221,226 18; Bremen line, $109,138 43; Havre line, $53,178 61; New York and California, $590,201 11; Charleston and Havana, $13,562 57. Total, $1,131,776 87.

The appropriations voted at the last session of Congress for this service amounted to $1,141,600. Of this sum $874,600 are devoted to the steamers running between New York and Liverpool, between New York and New Orleans, Havana and Chagres, and between Panama and Oregon; the remainder—$267,000—being applied to the routes from New York to Bremen and Havre. In the larger sum is included the amount appropriated to the Collins line of steamers—namely $385,000. The performance of extra trips during the winter season at the instance of the Post-office Department, is the ground of a recommendation by the Postmaster-General for extra and liberal compensation.

CHERRY PECTORAL.—We have departed from our usual rule in regard to the advertising of Medicines, in admitting the notice of the Cherry Pectoral to our columns. It is not a patent medicine, but one, the contents of which, are well known to the medical profession, and which has proved highly beneficial in the case of a number of our acquaintances, who were seriously afflicted with pulmonary complaints. Some of our most skillful and eminent physicians recommended it to their patients in their regular practice, and we feel that we are conferring a favor upon the public by making known its virtues.—Louisville Christian Advocate.

HOOPLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS.—We would call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Dr. Hooplund's celebrated German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, No. 120 Arch street, Philadelphia. In cases of Liver complaints, Dyspepsia, Dropsy of the Kidneys, and all disorders arising from a disordered stomach, their power is not excelled, if equalled, by any other known preparation, as the cures attest, in many cases, after the most celebrated physicians had failed. We can conscientiously recommend this medicine, as being what it is represented and urge our readers who are afflicted to procure a bottle, and they will be convinced of the truth we assert.

PROSPECTUS FOR THE GLOBE.

The approval of Congress calls for the removal of all papers and propositions in the present (the Globe) before the public. The success which has hitherto attended this undertaking is a happy omen for the future, and we are permitted to believe that the success of the Globe will be a permanent one. The Globe is a new and original publication of the body on which its destiny is so dependent.

The adoption of Congress has given the Globe an official character as the repository of the most important news of the day. This position has been won at every successive session for many years, and by maintaining it the Globe has secured for itself a permanent and honorable position in the history of the press.

The Globe is a new and original publication of the body on which its destiny is so dependent. It is a weekly paper, published every Saturday, and is the only one of its kind in the country. It is published at the lowest price, and is the most valuable and interesting paper in the country.
