ANECDOTE OF DWIGHT AND DENNIE. As Dr. Dwight was once travelling through New Jersey, he chanced to stop at the stage hotel in one of its popular towns, for the night. At a late hour of the same night, ar. rived also at the inn, Mr. Dennie, who had the misfortune to learn from the landlord that his beds were all paired with lodgers, except one occupied by the celebrated Dr. Dwight. Show me to his apartment, exclaimed Dennie; although I am a stranger to the Rev. E. & L. are constantly receiving Bargains from Dr., perhaps I may bargain with him for my lodgings. The landlord accordingly waited Cash. on Mr. Dennie to the Doctor's room, and EDWARD E. EYRE, WASHINGTON I. LANDELL, there left him to introduce himself.

The doctor although in his night gown cap, and slippers, just ready to resign himself into the refreshing arms of Somnus, politely requested the strange intruder to be seated. Struck with the physiognomy of his companion, he then unbent his austere brow, and commenced a literary conversa. tion. The names of Washington, Franklin, and has just received a splendid stock of new Rittenhouse, and a host of distinguished literary characters for some time gave a zest and an interest to the conversation, until Dr. | Cloths, Cassimers, Sattinets, Dwight chanced to mention Dennie. 'Sir,' says the doctor, 'you err. I have information from a particular friend; I am confident that I am right and you are wrong.

Dennie now ingeniously changed the conversation to the clergy, remarking that Abercombie and Mason were among the most distinguished divines; nevertheless, he considered Dr. Dwight, President of Yale College the most learned theologian, the first logician, and the greatest poet that America had pro.
