"The young prince stood one day in his room in the royal palace, at Windsor, at the window, whose panes reached the floor -He had a lesson to learn by heart, but instead, was amusing himself by looking out into the garden and playing with his fingers on the window. His governess, Miss Hillyard, an earnest and pious person, observed this, and kindly asked him to thin't of getting his lesson. The young price said : 'I don't want to. "Then," said Miss Hillyard, "I must put yo in the corner.1" 'I won't learn,' answered the fittle fe low resolutely, 'and won't stand in the cupar, for I am the prince of Wales." And as he siad this, he knocked out one of the window panes with his foot. At this " Miss Hillyard rese from her seat and said ; Sir, you must learn, or I must put you in the corner.1 "I won't, i s il he, knocking out a second pane. The governess then rang, and told the servant who entered to say to Prince. Albert that , h + requested the presence of his Royal Highness immediately on a pressing matter connected with his son. The devoted father came at once, and heard the statement of the whole matter, after which he turned to his little son and said, pointing to an ottoman, isit down there, an I wait till I return. Then Prince Albert went to his room and brought a bible. 'Listen, now,' he said to the Prince of Wales, 'to what the holy Aposthe Paul says to you and other children in your position ? Hereupon he read Galat, iv

1 and 2 : Now I say that the heir, so long as he is a child, differeth nothing from a servan', though he be loved of all : but is under tutors and governors until the time appointed of the father.1

'It is true,' continued Prince Albert, 'that you are the Prince of Wales, and if your conduct be proper you may become a man of high station, and even after the death of your mo. ther, may become King of England, But now you are a little boy, who must obey his tutors and governors. Besides, I must impress upon you another saying, of the wise Solomon, in Proverbs xiii. 24 : He that spareth his rod, hateth his son; but he that loveth him, chasteneth him betimes.2 Here upon the father took out a rod and gave the heir to the throne of the weightiest empire of Christendom a very palpable switching, and then stood him up in the corner, saying, You will stand here and study your lesson any reasonable doubt be entertained of the till Miss Hillyard gives you leave to come out. And never forget again that you are now under tutors and governors, and that hereafter tance of the Emperor. you will be under a law given by God."-This, adds the correspondent, is an excellent

Christian mode of education, which every citizen and peasant who has a child may well take to his heart as a model.
