INPLUENCE OF RAILROADS UPON THE VALUE OF PROPERTY.

We copy from the Cleveland Herald the following, in regard to the influence of railroads in increasing the value of property:

It is astonishing the change that railroads have made in our city. There are lots in Cleveland valued by the Assessor in 1846, for less than $100, (and it was thought that they were valued too high,) that can not now be bought for $1,000. There are two or three ten acre lots in the vicinity of the Depot of the machine shops of the Cleveland and Pittsburg railroad that were offered at acre. Since Alfred Kelley took out the first wheelbarrowful of earth from the track of and I am decidedly of the opinion that if the entire real property of the new city was to be sold at public anction, it would sell for sold for in 1847, and yet we have only just begun to feel the benefits of our railroads .-Cleveland started late in the railroad enter- land Oats at 37a40 cts; Pennsylvania Oats prise, but that start was a strong one. Our city has $400,000 invested in railroads, and in railroads and plack small one officers have $1,000,000. Leonard Case, Esq., has some at 108alliters.

$69,000 of railroad stock, and with all his WHISKEY - This article still continues $60,000 of railroad stock, and with all his far sighted sugacity, he has never made an investment that will pay him better. Let me illustrate. His ten-acre lots on the north- reported. easterly part of the city, numbering 300 acres or more, were assessed, I think in 1846, at some $40,000, and he offered to sell the lots for 20 per cent, less than Assessor's valne. Some $7,000 or $8,000 were deducted from the assessment, I presume that the ten-acre lots could not be bought at an average of less than $500 per acre. On Enclid street, lots that were worth from $100 to $250, six or seven years ago, are now held at figures varying from $1,000 to $1,500 per CATTAWISSA AND ERIE RAILBOAD .- Several of the contractors have commenced opmations on their sections on this road,-Shanties are going up in the vicinity of Danville, grading is under way, and extensive arrangements making for preparing the ground for the iron track.
