In addition to the timber, convertible into every shape of lumber, there is much that will ansate the land of the land

In addition to the timber, convertible into every shape of lumber, there is much that will answer for spars of vessels—a sort of timber that snip-buildes have been obliged to purchase in Maine, or at other distant points.

Unlike most of the lands on the Lehigh there has, as yet, been no culling of the timber on this property. It stands undisturbed by the woodman's axe. It is, therefore, the more valuable. The lumber trade of the Lehigh has been carried on to such an extent for years past, that a scarcity of good timber is beginning to be felt. Every season necessarily increases this difficulty. The consequence must be an enchancement of the value of timber lands. Those un-culled tracts with the advantage of avenues to prarket, such as the lands offered for sale, possess, cannot fail to be the sources of supply hereafter.

But the land is not alone valuable for the timber it cantains. It is of good quality for farming, mearly every acre being susceptible of a light state of cultivation.

Capitalists desiring to make investments, would do well to turn their attention to these lands. For further information apply to
