EMBARGOON BIBLES-TROUBLE FOR NAUGHT. -Recently the British Foreign Bible Society went to considerable trouble and expense to have the Bible translated and printed in the language of the Mongol Tartars, but the Czar of Russia, who is the master of the Mongols, having, in advance, forbidden its circulation, the whole addition remains useless on the So ciety's shelves in London. The Czar evidently does not want Christian civilization among his Tartar subjects. Religious light is no part of his system.

NARROW Escare. -Old Mr. Fuddle fell down in a puddle, just as a rep-away horse and shay came dashing and splashing, and tearing the way; in helpless plight he roared with fright; the horse came quick, all gallop and kick, when the old man raised his great oak stick; the horse then shied a little aside, for sticks were no friends to his well fed hide. Within a foot of Fuddle's toes, within an inch of his ruby nose, the wheel comes the lowest prices. whizzing, and on it goes. Up rises Fuddle, from out of the puddle, and stands on the road with a staggering stride, then wheeling away from the scene of the fray, he flourished his stick with a hero's pride.

MODEST ASSURANCE .- "A good-looking young fellow stopped all last week at Majo' Bell's Hotel, Cabawba, (Ala.,) and ordered his baggage down to the boat and went down himself, without paying his bill." Said the

"Sir, you must not leave without paying your bill. I can't afford to hire servants, and pay for provisions, and board people for nothing !"

"You can't ?"

"Well, why in thunder, then, don't you sell out to somebody that can !"

Our informant is anxious to chalk that man's hat, both ways, as a slight tribute of suspect for his magnificent impudence.

A Poor PROFFECT. -- An itinerant preacher recently traveled among the northwestern counties in this State. He was monoted on an animal whose appearance betckened very bad keeping, the more frame-work of what had once been a horse. Riding up to the door of a country ion, he inquired of the landlord the distance to the next town. The host, coming out, was so forcibly struck with the appearance of the animal upon which the querest sat, that he walked around him twice before giving the required information. He then inquired :
