MITCHEL'S TYPE SETTING MACHINE. We witnessed yesterday a mechanical per-formance, which it will be comewhat difficult to make our readers to understand. In the well known Printing Establishment of John F. Trow. Esq., No. 49 Ann street, we saw type set by machinery, not only with remark-able accuracy, but with extraordinary rapid-ity. Mr. Trow has five of these machines in operation, (all that have been made,) and Mr. Mitchel, the inventor, a younger brother of operation. (all that have been made.) and Mr. Mitchel, the inventor, a younger brother of John Mitchel, the patriot, gives them his personal superintendence. As was stated in the Mirror a few days since, the volume of Bancroft's Miscellanies was set up in Mr. Trow's office, entirely by one of these mechanical compositors; and they are now at work in getting out "Washington Irving's Life of Washington." to be published in a few days by Messrs, Putnam & Co. We have before us a couple of pages of the "first proof" of this machine-work; and it is remarkably free from errors. In fact these machines cannot possibly make a mistake, if the performer upor them touches the right keys. We shall not undertake to describe this wonderful labor-saving invention except briefly and in general terms. It must be seen at work in order to be appreciated and admired. The machine is of a triangular shape, somewhat resembling a grand piano forte, only not as large. It has a key board corresponding to the letters of the alphabet and the "punctuation marks." as the keys of the piano represent the various notes in the scale of music; and the work is done by playing upon the and the work is done by playing upon the finger-board precisely as tunes are played upon the piane forte.

girls, who acquire the art with great facility. The letters are supplied by long gallies, each filled with a single letter, which require constant replenishing; and every touch upon the key sends the desired letter into a long line beneath the machine, from which it is taken by a compositor, broken into lines to suit the width of his page or column, and "justified." The "distribution" of the type is a singeniously managed as the "composition;" but we cannot undertake to describe it. This part of the work, too, is done by girls. Mr. Trow informs as that one of these machines will do the work of five men, and after deducting the manual assistance required to operate them, the saving in the cost of composition is an important item.

Mr. Mitchel has devoted three years to perfecting his invention; and, of course, having a patent right, secured throughout the world of letters, will soon make his fortune.— His present price for the machine is seven handred dollars. It is the opinion of Mr. Trow, who is one of our most intelligent and artistic practical Printers, that these machines are even better adapted for newspaper composition than for book work; and there is this advantage about them, they never "strike," for higher wages, never go on sprees, and nev-er come to their work late and lazy in the morning. We congratulate Mr. Mitchel on his great invention; and the "republic of letters" on the respective cheapening of "printed matter."—N. Y. Mirror.

A SILVER WEDDING .- The pleasant Ger-A Silver Wenderso.—The pleasant German custom of celebrating the "Silver Wedding," was introduced in New York, on 30th ult., by the wife of one of our leading anction cers, who commemorated the twenty-fifth anniversary of her marriage by giving a splendid entertainment, inviting her guesis to appear either in masquerade, fancy, or civic dress. As the larger portion of the company appeared in disguise, the effect was both picture-que and amusing. Many of the characters assumed were admirably sustained; and prothers and sisters, husbands and wives. prothers and sisters, husbands and wives, were puzzled to know who they belonged to. At the supper table the masks were removed, then several gentlemen found they had been ating with their sisters, making love to their eathers; and, for once, playing the agreeale to their own wives.
