DARING OUTRAGE AND ROBBERY IN BAL-TIMORE COUNTY MARYLAND.

1. 1. 2

"Ellendale" the residence of Mr. Gustavus Brown, near Franklin, was made, on the night years. of the 27th ultimo, the scene of a diplay of a degree of crime and heroism fully up to any-thing in romance, modern or ancient. The years. Towsonton Advocate furnishes the particulars of the affair to which we allude, and which we transcribe entire :---

It appears that about two months since. Mr. B, hired in his family as carriage driver and gardener, a young man about 20 years of age, named John Oliver, and being about to go to the West, for a short time, left him do-mesticated in his household. Mrs. B., not liking the conduct of Oliver, discharged him in the early part of the present month, and did not see him again until the night in question. On that night, about 12 o'clock. she was awakened by a slight noise near her chamber door, resembling the movements of a dog, and supposing that one of the farm dogs had been fastened up in the house, she arose from her bed for the purpose of having him turned out. As she approached the chamber door, some one turned the knob of the lock.

Mrs. B., asked "who is there ?" There was no e is, but in a moment after the door was t aret open, and two ruffians, partially disgui-soi, entered the chamber-she being entirely alone with the exception of her infant child.

It being a bright moonlight night, a light also burning in her room, Mrs. B., instantly recognized John Oliver ; she called him by name, and said, "John, I know you well, what do you want here ?" Upon that he spring up-on her and pinioned her arms, while his companion covered her mouth with his hand, in order, if possible, to prevent her from giving the alarm. As she endeavored to disengage herself from them, they each struck her several blows over the head with their fists, and with a ratan cane, the head of which was a ball of lead weighing about three ounces .--This brought the unfortunate lady to a recumbent position-when they dealt her other blows over the head, shoulders, and breast .---By a remarkable effort at this moment, she recovered her erect position, Icosened their hold upon her, and seizing a double-barrel gun, which stood in the corner of the room, she levelled it, at which they fled, dragging wich them a large heavy travelling trunk, containing a considerable quantity of plate, money and jewelry

Having thus cleared her chamber of these desperate assailants, Mrs. B., followed them into the passage and poured the contents of one barrel of the gun upon them as they descended the stairs-with what effect is yet waknown. She then pursued them to the parlor below, determined to give them the benefit of the other barrel. But they many out of the front door and made for the woods, leaving behind a large quantity of ladies dresses, and other articles which they had tied up for removal.

At the time of this outrageous arsault, there was no one sleeping in the front part of the house but Mrs. B., and her infant son; her mother and sister, (wile and daughter of Col. W II. Freeman, who were visitors) and a servant lodging in a distant chamber.

On examination, Mrs. B., was found to have been most desparately and brutally assailed. She had a large cut upon the back of her head, and several severe bruises upon her welk, shoulders and arms. Her night dress, is the waist, was one gore of blood. The hamber, passage, stairway and parlor, stain-ed with blood, showed the desperate characed with blo ter of the affray, and the determined courage of a young and delicate female against such earful odds

We further learn, that the trunk has been found in a neighboring woods, rifled of its contents; and that one of the burghers, John Splendid Assortment of New Goods. Obver, has been arrested, and is now in jail, The other is yet at large, name uoknown. -----
