Cultivation of the Raspberry.

BY DANIEL HUGHES, HAVERSTRAW, N. Y. In manuring for the raspberry, a deep alluvial soil, rich in vegetable mould, will require a light dressing of well-rotted stable manure, with a top dressing of ashes immediately after planting, employing from ten to thirty bushels to the acre. For a light sand or loam, a liberal dressing of compost will be necessary; to four loads of vegetable muck, add one load of rich barnyard manure, and from four to eight bushels of unleached ashes; and if lime is cheap, it may be advantageously used to twice the amount of the ashes, together with sait lye, which is the best addition to the compost that can be used for this fruit. Mulch the roots well, to keep the ground free from weeds; but the grand point to be insisted on is depth of culture, which leaves a constant supply of moisture obviates the danger of too much wet, and gives scope for the ever active roots to hold their revels, which they manifest in a profusion of fruit. For the growing of good fruit it is not ne cessary that the canes should be supported, though it is advantageous, and also convenient in picking. The most obvious method i to support the cases of each hill with a stake; but a more effective and convenient way would be to stretch a wire along the rows, supported by a firmly braced post at each end, and at intervals of about thirty feet drive stakes into the ground to support the wire at an elevation of about three feet, or four feet for the most vigorous growers; spun yarn will answer.

The rows should be four feet apart. North of the latitude of Philadelphia (and there also) lay down and cover the canes in winter. When the bearing season is at an end, the old canes should be cut out, and the shoots that have spring up for next year's bearing should be thinned to the proper number, varying according to the strength from three to five; remembering that the crop is made or marred the year previous to its production. In choosing plants, the root, and ripeness and solidity of wood, not length of canes, should govern the choice; large canes, with small roots, are undesirable. My first choice as a market fruit, is the Hudson River Antwerp, for its size, exceeding productiveness, and its firmness, which enables it to bear transportation. The current year one thousand dollars net were realized here from one scre of this variety. For field culture it deserves its celebrity, but for the garden it is much excelled by the seedlings of Dr. Brinckle. Fastolf is nearly equal in productiveness, but a much more vigorous grower, and somewhat more hardy. Its rich berries almost burst with their fine juice, and do not bear carriage well.

Franconia is a vigorous grower, and rather more hardy than either of the above, with large, dark-colored fruit, bearing carriage nearly as well as the Antwerp; it is a late bearer, of high flavor, and especially excellent for cooking.

Knevett's Giant is truly gigantic, excellent for the dessert, and for preserving. Rivers' new large-fruited Monthly had been a disappointment till I determined to thin out offsets, and let no more grow than were required for fruiting, and that had the desired effect; and it has proved the most productive that I have cultivated, more than twofold of the H R. Antwerp

The Yellow Antwerp is a very good variety, but its berries are so much softer than Hud son River, that it is not grown for market. As Elliot remarks in his Fruit Grower's Guide, "it will soon give place to Brinckle's Orange and Colonet Wilder, which are far better varieties. May's Antwerp is an excellent productive variety, but less hardy than the above, and of much less vigorous growth. Ohio Everbearing, by those who like the black-cap vagreatly prized, bearing as it does profuse clusters. Catawissa has much the habit of the last, but the fruit hitherto has not been comparable to it in flavor.

Colonel Wilder is a white berry, of brisk, rich flavor-productive, excellent, and hardy Vice-President French is a vigorous and pro ductive variety; berries large and juicy, with a high subacid taste; a late bearer. To Cushing, the description of Vice-President French will apply, except that it is exceedingly sweet; it bears until after many are dry from frost. Yesterday (October 20) I picked a branch loaded with fruit; its leaves ere green, while those around it were shriveled up; very hardy. Brinchle's Orange is among raspberries what the Newton Pippin by its excellence; it is very vigorous, hardy. most excellent in every respect for field and garden. The Walker, were it not for its exceeding adhesiveness to the germ, would be valuable. The Mrs. Wilder is so like the Colonel Wilder as scarcely to need a separate description. It is not so hardy, and not so productive. The double-bearing Antwerp scarcely bears at all! and what fruit there is, scarcely tolerable. Several native variaties have high-flavored fruit, but the berries are too small to be valuable.-The true Antwerp is very hardy, and a most vigorous grower, and bears good crops of medium quality; it is still cultivated in Jersey for market. The Northamberland Fill-basket has a high English nursery reputation, but has not yet given any indication of merit in this country. (The above is a capital article by a practical and observing man. We may remark that he omits two of the most valuable manores for this plant-spent tan and chippings of leather; the raspberry luxuriates in this kind of food.—Ed. Tel.] The Horticulturist for January.

To this add corn meal to make a paste about the consistency of griddle cakes; put in pan immediately, and bake in a hot oven. -Plow, Loom, and Anvil.

FINE CORN MEAL PUDDING .- Make sufficient mush (thick and well poiled) to fill a large soup plate, put it into a pan when done, and stir into it a lump of fresh butter about the size of a goose-egg; add a large tea cup of segar, and flavor with the juice and grated rind of a large lemon, and a heaped teaspoonful of powdered cinnamon and nutmeg. Finish with two table spoonfuls of brandy or white wine. You may either bake it or boil it in a pudding cloth, leaving ample room for

FOR ALL THE PURPOSES OF A FAMILY PHYSIC.

There has long existed a public demand for an effective purpative pill which could be relied on as sure and perfectly safe in its operation. This is been prepared to meet that demand, and an exten sive trial of its virtues has conclusively shown with what success it accomplishes the purpose design it is easy to make a physical pill, but not easy a make the best of all pills—one which should have none of the objections, but all the advantages, ef-every other. This has been attempted here, with what success we would respectfully submit i-the public decision. It has been unfortunate for the patient hitherto that almost every purgative the patient hitherto that almost every purgative medicine is acrimonious and irritating to the bow-els. This is not. Many of them produce so much griping pain and revulsion in the system as to more than counterbalance the good to be derived from them. These pills produce no irritation or pain, traless it arise from a previously existing obstruction or derangement in the bowels. Being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity; but it is better that any medicine should be taken judiciously. Minute directions for their use in the soveral diseases to which they are applicable are given on the box. Among the complaints which have been speedily cured by them, we may mention liver Complaint, in its various forms of Jaundice, Indigestion, Languor and Loss of Appetite, Listiessness, Irritability, Bilions Headache, Billous Fever, Fever and Ague, Pain in the Side and Lobus; for, in truth, all these are but the con-

of Jaundice, Indigestion, Languor and Joss of Appetite, Listlessuess, Irritability, Bilious Hendache, Bilious Fever, Fever and Ague, Pain in the Side and Loins; for, in truth, all these are but the consequence of discased action in the liver. As an sparient, they affived property and sure relief in Costiveness, Piles, Culle, Dysentery, Humers, Serofiula and Scurvy, Colds with soreness of the body, Chers and impurity of the blood; in short, any and every case where a purgative is required. They have also produced some singularly successful cures in Rheumatham, Gont, Dropsy, Gravel, Erysipelas, Palpitation of the Heart, Pains in the Back, Stomach, and Side. They should be freely taken in the spring of the year, to purify the blood and prepare the system for the change of seasons. An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and howels into healthy action, and restores the appetite and vigor. They purify the blood, and, by their stimulant action on the circulatory system, renovate the strength of the body, and restore the wasted or diseased energies of the whole organism. Hence an occasional done is advantageous, even wasted or diseased energies of the whole organism. Hence an occasional done is advantageous, even though no serious derangement exists; but unnecessary dosing should never be carried too far, as every purgative medicine reduces the strength, when taken to excess. The thousand cases in which a physic is required cannot be enumerated here, but they suggest themselves to the reason of every body; and it is confidently believed this pill will answer a batter purpose than any thing which has hitherto been available to mankind. When their virtues are once known, the public will no longer hitherto been available to mankind. When their virtues are once known, the public will no longer doubt what remedy to employ when in need of a cathartic medicine. Being sugar-wrapped they are pleasant to take, and being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

For minute directions see wrapper on the Box.

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING-COUGH, CROUP, ASTHMA, AND CONSUMPTION.

This remedy has won for itself such notoriety from its cures of every variety of pulmonary disease, that it is entirely unnecessary to recount the evidences of its virtues in any community where it has been employed. So wide is the field of its usefulness, and so numerous the cases of its cures, that almost every section of the country abounds in persons publicly known, who have been restored from alarming and even desperate diseases of the lungs by its use. When once tried its superiority over every other medicine of its kind is too apparent to escape observation, and where its virtues are known, the public no longer hesitate what antidots to employ for the distressing and dangerous affections of the pulmonary organs which are incident to our climate. And not only in formidable attacks upon the lungs, but for the milder varieties of Coldes, Coughs, Hoarseness, &c.; and for Childona it is the pleasantest and safest medicine that can be obtained. This remedy has won for itself such notoriety hat can be obtained.
