OVER THE WAY.

When cold-hearted poverty knocks at my door, And roberne of blessings I gathered before, Takes a glass from my table, a coal from my fire,
And robs my dear Nelly in meaner attire,
I envy sometimes in the heat of the day
My very good friend who lives over the way.

But when I sit down at my pleasant fireside, And count o'er the joys I was never denied— My sweet little wife and the babes at her knee, My health and my conscience unsullied and free-No longer I suffer my wishes to alay.

Or envy my friend who lives over the way.

He's wealthy, but feeble; he's titled, but old, His son is a spendthrift, his wife is a wold; Suspicious of others, ill-pleased with himself, His only delight is to reckon his pelf. Were he as ten times as rich l'd refuse, night and day. To change with my friend who lives over the way.

Though poverty frowning, prers leto my door, I'll neither be besten nor vainty deplore; I'll scare him away by hard work if I can, And look in his face with the heart of a man; And hiving at home all the joys that I may, Forget my poor friend that fives over the way.

A Negro Mock Auction.

If Matt Peel (save the N. O. Tran Delta,) had been upon the levse yesterday, be might have got a happy wrinkle in his line from the performance of the genuine colored gentry, The carte for this enterted ment was a bur lesque auction sale. One of the darkey men, selected for his tonguey qualities, mounted a box, and in good set auctioneer phrase annonoced to a large assemblage of idle negro laborers, that he was now about to offer them, for each, "to de highis bidder in dis crowd, a fus rate boy. A I, soun an healty, an' warranted not to cut in de eye, balk in the step. nor steal chickens that don't long to him also, 'ditional, dis boy wars only one par shoe a year, an' deys good at de end of it; takes keer on his close partickler, an' neber goes courtin'; don't go to skeep ober his work, is 'spectful an' bedient; is six foot tree inches high, weighs two hundred and twenty pouns, an' can do more work in house or fiel' dan any oder one nigger. Step up hyar, Sam, an' show yourself to dese gemmen! - Libely now! Dare he is, gemmen! 'Mire him for

And the sable anctioneer pointed with triumphast gesture to the subject of this extra-vagant enlogism—a scrubby, knotted, related gray-headed specimen of a field hand, about four feet and a half high, who mounted the box beside bim, amid vast roars of laughter from the growt. from the crowd.

"Dar he is, gemmen! 'xamine him an' start him at suffin, for he must be sole! What does you say?" Several colored gemmen mounted he stand and proceeded to "xamine" him .--One violently pulled his mouth open and reort al-dis nigger not sound-one jaw toof one." Another tried to straighten out a lock of his wool, with "don't dis-h'r kink too much-nigger lazy!" Another pretanded to discover something besides ideas running through his wool, and concluded "nigger's head too pop'lar"-(populous.) Another said "nigger's foot too long and alim-long foot nigger will steal an' ran away; long foot nig-ger ain't worth juil fees." Another "nigger's toe-nails too long-scratch paint off'r my parler floor. No wants dis nigger! Yah! Hy-ah! Yah! Yah!"

"Well, gemmen! is you done looking at that nigger? Is you satisfy? He's a prime lot! What do you say for de boy? Start him at suffin! He's got to be sole-prumptory

"Ten cent!" came from the laughing crowd. "Ten cent-ten cent! Going at ten centtar -ten-ten."

" )ne dime" from the crowd. "Thank you sar!-One dime, one dime, one dime-go-in' at one dime-d-i-me! Too bad, gemmen. make me sacrifize die artikel dat way! Say

"One bit," from the crowd. "Much bliged, wont nobody say 'leben for dis A 1, warranted," &c., boy goin' at one blt-goin' goin' gone at ten cent L Yours, sar, and a dog sight more dan he's worf!" And he "knocked down" the property to the quasi purchaser with a tremendous blow on the head with the barrel stave he used as a "hammer," which backe it in the middle, and "knocked down the sold party off the box without apparently feeling the blow, so massive was the confor mation of his cranium. That was the greatest auction sale that ever we saw.

THE INSUMAN AND THE WACONS .- MT. Grives employs an Itishman on his farm, who is one of the most stapid feilows that ever bothered a good natured employer. Mr. Graves owns two wagons, one is an old and the other was a valuable sew one. A few days since he directed the Irishman to take the new wagon to pieces and load it on the old one and bring it down to the city. Pat went to work and after taking off the wheels found he could not get the body of the wagon into the old box, without sawing off the ends of the axietrees! After a great deal of hard labor and atterly spoiling a valuable saw, the axies were cut off, and the amputated and nearly worthless body was finally got into the box ready for a start, when Mr. Graves arrive ed at home and put a stop to the Irishman's preceedings. Mr. Graves is a very moral man and a good Christian, c use, cantly he didn't break the commandments or the Trishman's head but we imagines Patrick received a lesson that will prevent him from sawing off any more, axles while he lives --Syracuse Journal.
