attitude. ENGLAND.

The House of Commons has rejected the government bill for the partial abolition of the church rates, by a large majority.

Lord John Russell has given actice of a amendment to the Reform bill, to the effect that no adjustment of the elective franchise April. will satisfy the House or the country, which doos not provide a greater extension of saffrage in cities and boroughs than is provided for in the bill presented by Mr. Disraeli.

Five of the young mon lately arrested in Ireland for connection with the Phenix Club, are being tried for treason at Tralee. They are charged with conspiring to subvert the constitution of the country and establish in Ireland a democratic republic, with ramifications in France and America.

The London Times again refers to the defaulting States in the United States, giving a resume of their present positions, to preyent the public being deluded by the constant flourishes of their Governors.

The Church Rate bill was defeated, in the House of Commons, by a vote of 250 to 171. York. The Neapolitan exiles had presented an address to the Mayor of Cork, in which they state that, while on board the Neupolitan frigate, they protested in vain against being taken to America, and appealed to be landed in Spain. On being transferred to the David Stewart, they drew up a declaration invoking the protection of the United States laws, praying the captain to steer for the nearest English port, and threatening, if he persisted in going to New York, they would accuse him before the law courts for the violation of their liberty, but that, in the mean time, they would respect the laws of the ship. On precenting this to the captain he at first said that he had pledged his word to take them to America, and could not act against his interests. On the following day, however, the captain reconsidered his determination, and announced his intention of steering for Cork. The exiles claimed that they respected the laws of the ship and those of courtesy to the commander. They then explain that their shattered health and a desire to be as near their native land as possible, were their reasons for not going to such a fine, free and civilized country as America, and they conclude by asking a generous hospitality from Great Britain.

The London Times, in recommending a public subscription in behalf of the exiles, says that in the whole history of continental turmoils since 1815, there is not an instance to be found of men who have suffered such grievous wrongs with hands so entirely clean. In the event of the government being de-feated on the Reform bill, a dissolution of Parliament was talked of.

In the trials for treason at Tralee, the At torney General, in opening the case, charged them with conspiracy with other persons to subvert the constitution of the country, and establish in Ireland a free democratic repub. tions of fashions are splendid.
