ARRIVAL OF THE CITY OF WASHINGTON AT NEW YORK.

FOUR DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE. Latest Continental Advice—From India and China.

New York, April 25. The steamship City of Washington, with Liverpool advices to the 13th inst., arrived at this port this afternoon. Her news is three days later.

Since the departure of the last steamer rumors have been circulated, to a very alarming extent, but the latest continental advices are of a pacific nature.

The armament preparations continue with unabated vigor. The Calcutta and China mails had arrived at London. Teas were drauer.

WAR WAS GENERALLY CONSIDERED inevitable, and much depression prevailed until the 10th when re-assuring rumors were current, and announcements were made that the concessions made by Austria in the preliminary conditions gave renewed hopes for the meeting of Congress, and caused considerable recovery in the funds at London and on the continent.

Austria has proposed and the powers, it is said, have consented to a simultaneous disarming before the Congress meets.

The English ministers have been pressed in Parliament to give a statement with regard to European affairs. They promised to do so on the 15th.

Parliament will probably be dissolved in about a week.

THE LATEST. [By Telegraph from London to Liverpool.] London, Wednesday Morning.—A despatch from Paris says that England will propose the question of general disarmament to the plenipotentiaries.

The Times says the pacific advices from Paris produced very little effect on English funds on Tuesday. The rumors do not believe that Napoleon intends to promote a pacific adjustment on the basis that clearly recognize the treaty rights of Austria, and consequently such as can be accepted by that power, which it will utterly disappoint Austria.

If the arrangement were patched up to-morrow, with the exciting feeling of France, Austria, Sardinia and Russia, left in view, prospects of repose in Europe would not be in the slightest degree better than at this moment.

There was yesterday a further unfavorable movement in the Austrian rates.

The correspondent of the Herald says that, notwithstanding the pacific assurances, warlike preparations continue in France on a tremendous scale. Troops are pouring into Lyons from all points.

The Paris Patrie, which is the organ of Napoleon's private cabinet, speaks of a last and supreme effort which England and Prussia are making in behalf of peace.

Referring to the Austrian proposition for a general disarmament, the Paris Patrie asserts that Austria, on a peace footing, has collected no army on her frontier, has not applied to the Legislature for war credits, while Austria, having increased her army in Italy to 100,000 men, might commence a campaign to-morrow.

The Paris Patrie continues with the saying that if Austria means that a general disarmament is to result in the maintenance of a status quo in Italy, and not in resolving the impious difficulties of the present situation, it must not be expected that France will be duped by such a demand.

STILL LATER. St. Joux, N. F., April 26. The steamship Circassian, from Galway, has passed Cape Race bound to New York, and by the despatches from the Liverpool agent of the Associated Press, were placed in possession of Liverpool dates by telegraph to the 15th inst., five days later than previous advices.

The latest complexion of Continental affairs is warlike.

The Paris letters regard peace as hopeless. The movements of the French troops assume the most threatening proportions, and the preparations in every branch continue without abatement. The "Paris Patrie," nevertheless, asserts that France has not armed.

Austria's proposition for the Congress are not acceptable to France, but being prepared to take the field immediately, Napoleon seeks delay.

The Ministerial statement to the two Houses of the British Parliament, in relation to the affairs of Europe, which had been promised on the 15th, was postponed till the 18th.

MR. SICKLES AND COUNT BETHLEN.—(From the New York Tribune.)

MR. SICKLES.—We think it quite appropriate to relate to your readers, as a counterpart to the story of Mr. Graham, a profane story of real life, and of modern times, which will show how a true gentleman could act, in a similarly successful and sad position as that in which Mr. Sickles was put by the crime of Mr. Key; how honor could be satisfied, and was satisfied, without violation of the laws of the State, or of the more sacred laws of humanity.

It is not necessary to say that the nobleman, Sir William Paget, renowned in the best society of London for his eminent erudition, his many beauty and fascinating conversation, and well known to the literary world by his writings, went over to the Continent, having visited France, Germany, Switzerland and Austria, he went to Hungary, a country which was then on the eve of great events. He spent several weeks at Perth, and in the neighboring country seats of the Hungarian nobles. In the beginning of autumn he visited Transylvania, and was received at the castle of Count Bethlen, with all the oriental hospitality and generosity that a rich Hungarian magnate likes to display to every man of education who visits him.

Count Bethlen was descended from the old royal family of the Hapsburgs. He was a sea-looking old man, every inch a real gentleman. He was married some years previous to a young noble lady of his country, the Countess M. L., who was not yet twenty years old, the Count being nearly fifty. He had one son and one daughter, and a young girl, who he had married him, as young girls often do, more for the high respect than for the deep love she felt for Count Bethlen.

Notwithstanding both lived a happy family life in the old immense feudal castle of the Bethlens, the Count and his wife, Sir William Paget, to whom the Count had given a suite of apartments, saddle horses and attendants, lived several weeks in this family, enjoying the varied hospitalities of the castle and country. It is needless to say that brilliant conversation and the peculiar advantages of Sir William's own society, and the manners of the young and beautiful Countess—Sir William proved the "Consejo," and a criminal love ensued. One day the Count went out hunting on horseback, Sir William accompanied him, and he was found dead in the bed-chamber of his lady. Arming himself with pistols he forced Sir William to follow him to his private room, being there he sat for a notary and two confidential witnesses, asking Sir William if he would sign a deed of confession, and if he would sign a deed of confession, and if he would sign a deed of confession.

THE HARRISBY DIVORCE CASE. The Harrisby correspondent of the Philadelphia Sunday Dispatch, under date of April 16, writes: On Tuesday last Mr. Grigg, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Fry, a young man who she says is a plain, sensible, and well-behaved young man, came here; and Wednesday and Thursday were spent by the party in the libraries of the House and Senate, where Mrs. Fry was introduced to the members and senators. She is certainly very prepossessing and has a winning, placid smile, and a beaming eye, and an innocent, childish look about her, well calculated to make an impression; and one can hardly blame the cad for falling in love with her, only so far as a violation of the decalogue goes, which says, "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife."

On the last day of the session, Lawrence of Washington, Hamerley, and several others, made "statements" in regard to the matter in the Legislature, and declared that they prepared the bill was not a test vote, and other remarks, in substance, that a large number of members who voted against preparing the bill would have voted for it if before the house in private shape.

There is a sympathy for Mr. Fry, for as a man of fine sensibilities, he must keenly feel his position. It is alleged that he will apply to the Court for a divorce. If he fails to do so, under the advice of friends made here, she will make a second application to the Legislature next year, and with what success will of course, depend upon the material sent here next winter.

DR. ROSSER'S MAX FOUND.—Yesterday afternoon Dr. Rosser was called to attend to a body of an unknown man, who was found floating in the Susquehanna river, about half a mile below the Paxton creek. The coroner summoned a jury who examined the body and returned a verdict that the man died of apoplexy, and was drowned. The body has the appearance of having been in the water for a length of time, his head and breast being considerably bruised and much discolored. The bruises, it was supposed, were produced by the body washing against the stones along the river. He was dressed in a short monkey jacket, with brass buttons; black cloth vest; dark gray pants and morocco shoes. In his pants pocket was found a purse, but nothing in it. A fine silver watch, a gold pencil case, and three coppers were found in his pocket. The man is supposed to be about fifty-five or sixty years of age; has black hair and gray whiskers; and about five feet nine or ten inches high. The remains were sent to the Poor House for interment.—Frishton and Union 25th inst.

A PARTY OF distinguished gentlemen of Philadelphia, consisting of Messrs. H. C. Carey, who has been writing on political economy; Morion McMichael, the able editor of the "North American"; Dr. W. P. Elder, the accomplished scholar; Hon. J. P. Verree, a talented young member of the next Congress; and Mr. Harvey, the able and vigilant Washington correspondent of the "North American," accompanied by Col. Joseph Paxton, Dr. Heston, of the "Pittsburgh Republican," and other distinguished gentlemen from the Wyoming valley, paid on Tuesday a visit on last Wednesday. They arrived about 5 o'clock in the afternoon in a special train from Report, and were welcomed at the Dept. by a committee of our citizens.

Yester-day morning they visited our iron works and returned in the 12 o'clock train via Mauch Chunk, well pleased with their visit to the business, the peculiar advantages of the coal and iron business of the North, and the subject of protection and the elevation of labor. After which the company partook of a supper at the Moutour House, where toast were drunk and speeches were made by Messrs. Carey, McMichael, J. W. Comly, Hon. Paul Leidy, Dr. Elder and others. Yesterday morning they visited our iron works and returned in the 12 o'clock train via Mauch Chunk, well pleased with their visit to the business, the peculiar advantages of the coal and iron business of the North, and the subject of protection and the elevation of labor.

NORTHERN CENTRAL RAILROAD.—By the statement below, furnished by the Treasurer, Mr. Leib, we are glad to see that the new management have, by a judicious arrangement of the tolls, and by furnishing additional facilities, greatly increased its business. Mr. Warford is fast systematizing its whole machinery, and we predict that it will soon be one of the best managed, as well as the most profitable roads in the State. The following table shows the business of the Northern Central Railroad, for the month of March, as furnished by J. S. Leib, the Treasurer:

Table with columns for Month, Passengers, Freight, Mail, and Total. Data for March 1859.

A SAD MISTAKE.—A man living near Nashville, who has been absent in the army some three years, on coming home recently, found a babe only three months old lying in the cradle. With a cruelty utterly diabolical, he at once cut off the infant's ears to avenge his "wounded honor." The screams of the little creature, when the mother, who had just returned from the army, heard the child being tortured, led her to believe that the child belonged to a neighbor who was visiting his wife. He had to flee to escape a lynching.
