ATTEMPTED ESCAPE OF FOOTE.

[Special Despatches to the Inquirer] WASHINGTON, Jan. 16, 1865. Mrs. Ex Senstor Foote is still at Wil-land's and has been called upon by many of her old friends.

From her account it appears that a few days before Christmas Mrs. Foote procured a passport to bring her through the Rebel lines that she might come to Washington, her triends in King George county, Mr. Poote accompanied her. They went to Hanover, about twenty miles north of Richmond, on the cars, and there procured could cross, they went down the river seve- ness. ral miles, but the Rebels in charge of the ferry refused to pass them over, notwith-standing Mrs. Feote's passport, they assign-ing that the river was so swollen as to make unsafe.

After waiting in the vicinity for two days hey drave back to Milford, where, at a retive of his (Foote's), they remained several days more. Here information reached them that there was a Rebel force out in pursuit of them. They, fearing to remain inger quiet. Mr. Foote concluded to take the chances of passing Rappahannock and get out again. Taking a circuitous route they crossed the river in safety, and on January 7th they arrived at Dumfries No rebel force is believed to be north of there; and they considered the danger over, and Mrs. Foote destroyed her papers, fear ing to fall into the bands of our soldiers On Sunday they drove to Mr. Hammel's, Occoquan, where they hoped to be able to get across the Potomac, upon the Maryland hore. Arrangements had been effected, and under the pitotics of some slaves they were to cross the river on Tuesday, but two Rebel cavalrymen rode up to the house and
