The weather yesterday could not have been more propitious for the grand Carnival. The rain of Saturday occasioned some anxious forebodings, and many prophesied that the State House Bell would, on Monday morning, announce with its iron tongue, ceive them, but the shock was took great a postponement of the parade on account of the weather. The day opened, however, clear and cold, and by noon was all that could be desired.

The streets through which the line of procession passed were more than crowded-they were packed throughout their entire extent, a distance of over fourteen miles, with a perfect sea of human heads; in fact prestige, has also lost its influence; and, as it was with great difficulty that the police it now stands, can never expect to regain were enabled to force a passage through the way through. The line was announced to move at ten o'clock precisely, but, owing to the unavoidable delay in all the companies getting into line, the first division did not commence countermarching down Broad street until a few minutes after eleven o'clock.

The distance between divisions and companies was remarkably well preserved, and, with the exception of the halt for dinner, which took place when the head of the procession reached Fourth and Wharton streets, there were very few unnecessary delays.— Chief Marshal Henry B. Bobb and his coadwhich marked everything connected with the affair. The procession was in motion the entire day, and the shades of night had fallen long before the last company in the line had passed the end of the route.

The crowd stood their ground like maryrs, and so eager was the desire to witness the entire procession, that thousands of persons went without both dinner and supper in order to maintain the position they had secured at an early hour in the day.

The extent of the procession can be arrived at from the following :- A gentleman left the end of the procession a little before period of seductive presperity, resulting in six o'clock, at the corner of Fourth and Pine streets; he walked along Fourth to Chesnut street, and there met the head of the preession going down Chesnut street. Consequently, its length extended from Fourth and Pine to Wharton, up Wharton to Ninth, up Ninth to Pine, up Pine to Eighteenth up Eighteenth to Arch, up Arch to Twenty-first, up Twenty-first to Green, down Green to Twelfth, down Twelfth to Chesnut, and down Chesnut to Fourth .-The procession consequently filled up A daughter of Mrs. Phillips, aged about nearly seventy six squares. THE FREEDMEN'S BUREAU.

The September reports to the Freedmen's Bureau show a continually decreasing numher of those receiving rations from the Government. There are more than 34,000 freedmen in the district comprising Washington, Alexandria, &c., out of which number only. 865 sick and destitute were fed at Government expese. Many of these are wives and children of colored soldiers killed or disabled in the service of the country. In the Department of Tennessee and Kentucky there were 979 persons subsisted by the Bu reau Sept. 20; at present there are none. As the incapacity of the colored race to take care of itself is perfectly well known, we presume the 970 are all dead.

DELEGATION.

On Friday last, a delegation of leading South Carolinians, appointed by the State convention now in session, had an interview with President Johnson, to intercede for the executive elemency in behalf of Jeff. Davis, Gen. Magrath, and others. We have not room to go over the ground taken by the delegation, or the reply of the President; but will state in brief that the President maintained himself and the position of the Government with a just dignity and emphatic ability. Every one cannot but admit this. He said distinctly that the Government did not seek blood; but that there was a great principle to establish, which was that there is such a crime as High Treason. After that, he would not indicate what his course would be, yet he did just so indicate by this admission; that is to say, he would not interfere with the course of things until after the trial and conviction of Davis.

THE NATIONAL FINANCES.

SECRETARY MCCULLOCH'S OPINION

An Important Speech from Him

CINCINNATI, Oct. 13. The Gazette publishes a speech made by Secretary McCullach, at Fort Wayne, Indiana, on Wednesday night, in which he gives his views on the national finances. He said he was not one of those who seem to repudiate coin as a measure of value, and to make a sound paper currency the standard; on sels to meet any exigency—whether by for-the contrary he belonged to that class of eign interference in our national affairs or persons who, regarding an exclusive metalic enterprising and commercial people, nevertheless look upon an irredeemable currency as an evil which eircumstances for a time may render necessary, but which is never to be sustained as a policy. By the common consent of nations gold and silver are the only two measures of value; they are the necessary reculators of trails. currency as an impracticable thing among were seventeen first class sloops of war, sary regulators of trade. He favored a well secured convertible pa-

For all ordinary home transactions paper currency is sufficient; but there are constantly occurring periods when the balances between countries, and in the United States between the different sections, must be settled in coin. These balances are insignificant, and, in comparison with the transactions out of which they arise, and when a vicious system of credit the country when the aid and influence of moved every eligible spot on them was occupied by expectant men, women and children are arranged without disturbing the movements of coin. Whenever specie is needed for this purpose, or for any other purpose, stration were so many visitors in the city.—
On Sunday every hotel in the city was convertible into it; and a circulation not so convertible will not be, and ought not to be, tolerated by the people. The present unconvertible currency of the United States was a necessity of war; but now as the war has closed, and the Government ought not be a borrower, the standard; and he saw no way of doing it but by withdrawing a portion of the circulation. He had no faith in a prosperity which was the defect of a depreciated currency; nor could be see any safe path to tread but that which leads to specie payments. The extreme high prices now pre-vailing indicate that the business of the country is in an unhealthy condition, are measuring values by a false standard .-We have a circulating medium altogether larger than is needed for legimate business, and the excess is used in speculations.

The United States to-day is the best market in the world for foreigners to sell in.— The consequence is that Europe is selling us more than she buys from us, including our securities, which oungt 10 to go abroad and there is a debt rolling up against us that must be settled in part at least in coin, The longer the inflation continues the more difficult it will be for us to get back to specie payments, to which we must return sooner or later. If Congress shall, early in the approaching session, authorize the funding of the legal tenders, and the work of reduction is commenced, and cheerfully and prudently carried on, we shall reach it probably without injury and embarrassment to legal wide spread bankruptcy and disaster. He spoke of the evil tendency of the present inflation on the public morals, converting the business of the country into gambling and scriously diminishing the labor of the country. We are apparently getting richer when morality languishes and the producthat the currency may be brought to the specie standard without these financial troubles which have in all countries followed protracted and extensive wars.
