THE COAL THADE .- The coal trade is not in as flourishing condition as might be expected. The days for high prices are past. Forty thousand tons of Scranton Coal were sold at public sale in New York last week, at a slight advance in price, except in lump coal. Trade, however, is dull and unsettled. In the Wyoming region they are preparing new opening sand shipping ports, and a disposition is manifested to force the trade even at reduced prices. The Pottsville Mi. ners' Journal, urges the making of new roads to carry coal at a low speed and cheap prices, from the Schuylkill regon, in order to compete successfully with the Shamokin and Wyoming operators where mining is less ex. pensive. The result of all this will necessarily be a gradual enduction in tolts and in sarily be a gradual reduction in tolts and in labor, as well as economy in the management of the trade, until matters are settled on a more permanent basis.

SIGNIFICANT.—The Secretary of the Treasury is constantly in the receipt of letters from parties in the South enclosing con. fe lerate money and asking that it be redeemed. The basis of their impudence is their claim that the surrender of Lee and Johnston was a treaty with the confederacy, and that two years after the 21st of April. 1865, the date of the Appomattox surrender, these notes and bonds issued for the supthey read, "This note is redeemable in two years (and some six months) after a ratificafederate States and the United States." One of the recent applications of the sort is as follows :

The danger of a contest between the new and old Police Commissioners of Baltimore, and those appointed by Governor Swann, has been averted by the prompt action of Judge Bond, who arrested Messrs Young which weighed 4,400 pounds, another 4,200, and Valiant, and committed them to jail, in another 4,100, another 3,800, while there default of bail. Judge Bond very property declared that, white it was not his duty to decide the legal question involved in the dispute, he was bound to prevent the new Commissioners from attempting to obtain Commissioners from attempting to obtain their offices by a breach of the peace. They are now compelled to submit the question to the Courts, as they should have done at first; and it is understood that a writ of habeas corpus will be obtained. Judge Bond, independently of all party considerations, deserves honor for preserving the peace of the city, though he had the influence of the Governor to contend with. It must be remembered that Judge Bond presides over the only criminal court in Battimore, and that all offenses, from the highest to the lowest, were under his jurisdiction. These Commissioners are in custody now on a bench warrant from this, the highest criminal court, and if a writ of habeas corpus be granted by one of the Judges of the Court of Appeals, it is, at least, questionable whether such Judge might not be arrested for contempt of Judge Bond's Court, and put in prison with the rest.
