DISCOVERY OF A VEIN OF COAL -- We are indebted to Wm. R. Jones, Esq., for some specimens of coal, taken from the Mahanoy mountain, below Fisher's Ferry, in Lower Augusta township, this county. Mr. Jones is at present engaged in sinking a shoft in the mountain, in order to ascertain the extent of the coal vein, which, we learn, as far as discovered, is about twenty-seven inches in thickmess. The specimens sent us were of a soft or bituminous nature. This discovery has naturally creasted some excitement in the neighborhood.

learn that Maj W. L. Dewart has sold the stone dwelling house on the corner of Market and Third streets, in this place, at present occupied by him as a residence, to Wm. H. Miller, for the sum of $7,500. We are informed that the Major intends building on the lot occupied by his office, on the north side of Market square.

The illustrations are of the very highest order of the art, and the literary matter cannot be excelled by any other magazine. Among the contents is a beautiful steel engraving, entitled "The Lost Money"—a duble-paged colored fashion-plate two Valentine wood-engravings, and a great variety of patterns, dresses and other ladies' gear. Marion Harland concludes a story begun in the January number, besides which are "The Two Valentines," by Mary Forman;" "The Little Strategist," by an unanamed writer; "Ten Years and Two Hearts," by Hella Ruttledge, and much other interesting reading matter, in addition to the Editor's Table—Godey's Arm Chair—the Domestic Department, &c. THE following letter, written by a lady, descriptive of the severe snow storm which coourred in Massachusetts, on the 27th ult., to a friend in this place, will, no doubt, be interesting to many. The snow storm is pronounced the most severe ever known, and almost, if not quite, without a parallel in our PITTSFIELD, (Mass.) Thursday, Dec. 27, 1866.

I intended to take this letter to the office early this morning, but when I awoke, I found the air perfectly full of beautiful light ficeey snow flakes, and they have continued to descend without a moment's intermission as rapidly as one could follow snother ever since, so I shall be obliged to wait until the snow-ploughs have prepared the way before me.

Friday, Dec. 28.—Since writing the above, the storm has increased to a fearful extent, and a great quantity of snow has already falles. We seemed here completely buried and I was obliged to send for Patrick to come and dig us out. Instead of one of those quiet, gentle storms, in which the bug flakes descend so gracefully, beautifully clothing the bare here completely buried and it was obliged to send for Patrick to come and dig us out. Instead of one of those quiet, gentle storms, in which the bug flakes descend so gracefully, beautifully clothing the bare here of the trees, as it were with the white drapery of purity and innocence; it has become a perfect tempest. King Eolus, it would seem, had rashly released from their prison-house, all the winds of heaven; and exulting in the their newly-acquirred freedom, with unbridled fury, they are funtastically whirling up the snow as their capricious fancy diotates; beautifully diversifying the winter landscape with every variety of hill, valley, and mountain. The mercury begins to descend; Jack Frost is dancing round the house to the music of the old Eorens; saucily peeping in at all the windows, at the same time slyly drawing his thick white curtain over the pance; and soon nothing visible will be seen. Winter in all its sublimity reigns supreme.

Saturday, Dec. 29.—I did not send my letter to the office to-day, knowing that the unusally heavy fall of snow. during the two days past, would prevent the framenission of the mails.

The storm has censed, and to-day may occusionally be heard the slow jingle of bells, and now and them may be seen a man or a boy, or forlern wom

DISTRIBUTIONS.

We would call attention to the opinion of one of he lending papers of Canada on this subject : Most of our readers have, no doubt, read some of he numerous advertisements of Grif Enterprises, lift Concerts, &c., which appear from time to time the numerous advertisements of 6-if. Enterprises, Gift Concerts, &c., which appear from time to time in the public prints, offering most rempting bargains to those who will patronase them. In most cases there are genuine humbugs. But there are a few respectable firms who do business in this manner, and they do it are means of increasing their wholesale business, and not to make money. From such firms, it is true, handsome and valuable articles are produced for a very small sum, and what is more important, no one is ever cheated. Every person gets good value for his dollar; because, as we have stated, it is intended to act as an advertisement to increase their ordinary business.

We have seen numbers of prices sent out in this way by Shennan, Warson & Company, of Nassan Street, N. Y., and there is no doubt that some of the articles are worth eight or ten times the money paid for them, while we have not seen or heard of a single article which was not fully worth the dollar which it cost. But this is only one of the exceptions of this rule, for as a general thing the parties engaged in this business are nothing but clever swindlers.—
