POETICAL.

SOMEBODY'S DARLING.

The following exquisite little poem was written

Into a ward of the whitewashed walls, Where the dead and the dying lay-Wounded by bayonets, shells and balls-Somebody's darling was borne one day. Somebody's darling 'so young and so brave, Wearing still on his pale, sweet face. Soon to be hid by the dust of the grave, The lingering light of his boyhood grace.

SUNBURY

Matted and damp are the curis of gold Kissing the snow of that fair young brow, Fair are the lips of delicate mould— Somebody's darling is dying now. Back from the beautiful, blue veined face. Brush every wandering, silken thread; Cross his hands as a sign of grace— Somebody is darling is still and dead.

Kiss him once for Somebody's sake, Murmura prayer soft and low, One bright curl from the cluster take— They were somebody's pride, you know. Somebody's hand hath rested there; Was it a mother's soft and white? And have the lips of a sister fair Been baptized in those waves of light?

God knows best. He was somebody's love ; Somebody's heart enshrined him there ; Somebody wafted his name above. Night and morn on the wings of prayer. Somebody wept when he marched away, Looking so handsome, brave and grand ; Somebody's kiss on his forchead lay ;

Fomebody clung to his parting hand.

Somebody's watching and waiting for him, Yearning to hold him again to her heart; There he lies—with the blue eyes dim, And smiling, child-like lips apart. Tenderly bury the fair young dead, Pausing to drop on his grave a tear; Grave on the wooden flab at his head— "Somebody's darling lies baried here."

A German paper thus describes the ap earance of Count Bismarck in the North German Parliament :

"He usually enters the Chamber a short time after the debates have opened, bows shortly to the president, and then sits down on the ministerial bench, where he occupies the first place. His neighbours on the right, who are mostly generals, nobles, and high officials rise when he comes to take his seat, but their example is scarcely ever followed by the Poles and Catholics, who sit on his left. Most of these have been frauds upon the stek, for they not only contain little, if any, Sarsaparilla, but often no curative in-gredient whatever. Hence, bitter disappointment has followed the use of the various extracts of Sarsa-parilla which flood the market, until the name itself has become synonymous with imposition and cheat. Still we call this compound, "Sarsaparilla." and in-tend to supply such a remedy as shall reiscue the name from the load of obloquy which rests upon it.
