Runner. Admiral Simon, commander of the French first in Greek waters, gives the following account of the destruction of the famous blockade ruoner Arkadi, once better known in western waters as the Confederate war "On Monday morning, the 20th of August

The Last of a Famous Bockade-

after I had received some women and child-ren at Selino, I sailed for St. Roumeli to take others from that port. During the day the captain of the Izzedin, a large Turkish steamer, which cast anchor near my ship visited me, and told me that on the previous evening the Arcadi had been to St. Rounell, and landed a part of her cargo; but not having sufficient time to discharge the test, she had sailed for Gabdon, and that he expected her back on Monday even-MAMMOTH STORE ing, when he intended to attack her. On Monday afternoon, after I had embarked the women and children, I started for Athens; but two hours afterwards I heard guns behind me. Going on deck I saw in the distance two steamers, one chasing the other and fighting. In a short time they approached me, and I saw that one was the Arcadi and the other the Izzedin. The Izzedin reached the Arcadi and gave her a broadside, to which the Arcadi replied in the same manner. As soon as the two steamers were close together the sailors began firing with their rifles. While the fight was the hottest, two Turkish men of war made their appearance round the Cape of Krio-metopo. The position of the Arcadi then became very perilous. At that moment the captain of the Arcadi, with great presence of mind and coolness, turned his little steamer, faced the tree enemy's vessels, and passed through them at full speed, amidst a tremendous fire from the large gues and a shower of bullets. The Arcadi soon approached the land, and after coasting some distance along the small bay arrived near the Cape of Krinmetopo, where the captain ran her aground in order to save the crew. The fighting lasted till 1 o'clock in the morning. At that time the three Turkish vessels cast anchor near the Arcadi. I heard a sharp firing of rifles during the rest of the night, and stayed until morning to ascertain the result. I then saw the Arcadi in flames, but I could

How an Emperor Travels. The special train in which the Emperor Napoteon went with his suite from Paris to Saulzburg, is described as exceeding in comfort and elegance anything of the kind that has hitherto been known. The train consisted of nine carriages, communicating with each other by tastefully decorated bridges. In the middle was a handsome sitting room, furnished with chairs, ottomans, sofas, mirrors, pictures, clocks and chandaliers. On one side of this room was the dinning room, and on the other the Emperor's study, in the middle of the dinning room there was a table, capable of being extended or contracted at pleasure, with easy chairs placed parallel to the sides of the carriage. The Emperor's Study contained an elegant writing-table, a clock in the style of the renassiance, a thermometer, a barometer and a telegraph apparatus, by means of which telegraphic communication was established with the apartments or the various Court officials traveling with His Majesty. Next to the study was the bedroom of the Em-peror and Empress, with two beds placed traversely against the sides of the carriage. Two dressing rooms were attached to the bedroom. If he has but one, his house, if one story in height, is nearly square; should he have two, he builds an addition to one end of the original house, which is an exact counterpart of it, having an outside door and windows like the first, and differing from it only in newness of build. In short, he builds such an addition each time that he takes to himself a wife, so that frequently me may see a half dozen thus growing out of each other, and presenting, with their array of front doors, a singular appearance. I think that over half of the men have but one wife; a great many have two or three; numbers have from four to six, and few have his time one of the most brilliant and honored of the galaxy of American politicians things. It is an insult to a respectable whose talants gave bright promise of future laundress to carry such things into a house eminence and usefulness. A few days since one of our most respected physicians, while visiting a patient in the vicinity, was called to enter the dwelling in question and see a sick man. He did so, and found a poor, broken wreck of humanity, tottering upor the verge of the grave, in the last stages of a dreadful disease. Despite the ruin, physical and mental, which this unfortunate presented, there were, at occasional moments, glimmerings of intelligence which showed that the wretched being had been something more than an ordinary man. When the physician left, he was informed that be had seen what was left of Senator McDougail .- To day the mournful drama is ended, and the curtain has dropped. "But why didn't you shoot the bear, and then bring him in!" inquired one. "What's the use in shooting your game !" said the captain, testily, "when you can bring it in alive, as I did?"

The story got home before the captain themselves. Never were living issues more did and was in everybody's mouth. The other night, as the bold captain led his in-tended bride into the church with pride and grace so readily inspired by the occasion, some wicked wag sang out from the gallery-

IDLE DAUGHTERS.-It is a most painful spectacle in families where the mother is the drudge, to see the daughters elegantly dressed, reclining at their case, with their drawing, their music, their fancy work, and their reading; beguiling themselves of the lapse of hours, days and weeks, and never dreaming of their responsibilities, but as a necessary consequence of neglect of duty, growing weary of useless lives, laying hold Still.

HE MEDITATES AND DESIGNS PORCIBLE RE-SISTANCE TO THE AUTHORITY OF CONGRESS -GRAVE ASSERTIONS MADE BY SENATOR THAYER "ON UNQUESTIONABLE AUTHORI-

We quote the following grave statements from a speech delivered at Cincinnati last Saturday evening by General Thayer, U. S. Sunator from Nebraska : I have recently been in Maryland and the District of Columbia, having left Washington only night before last. While there I took especial pains to inform myself in regard to the present purposes of Andrew Johnson, and I obtained what I am about to state from reliable authority.

I declare, upon my responsibility as a Sen-ator of the United States, that to-day Andrew Johnson meditates and designs forcible resistance to the authority of Congress. I make the statement deliberately, having derived in from unquestioned and unquestionable authority. I cannot point out the occasion on which he may attempt to use military force. It may be to prevent the cles of impeachment; or, it may be for the purpose of forcing Southern Senators and Representatives to sents in Congress.

The question may be asked: How can be to such a thing? You recollect that six months ago, Gov. Swann, of Maryland, was elected U. S. Senator, and that a few weeks afterward be declined the office, giving "grave reasons of State" as the cause. It was found that Lieutenant Governor Cox, of that State, could not be depended on for Johnson's purposes.

There is to day a standing army in Maryand-an organized militia force, such as no other State in the Union has; that it is offiered mainly by returned rebels. When the ime comes which he looks for, under some oretense, Johnson may declare Maryland and the District of Columbia under martial aw, and call upon Gov. Swann to bring There is nothing that will deter Johnson om this purpose except, when the issue comes, that his courage may fail. seldom, if ever, were more momentous issues presented for your decision. The ma-jority of the judges of our Supreme Court were elected before the recent war, and upon partisan, Democratic, State rights, and secession platforms, which were free charters for rebellion. The war itself was a legitiment; and in a hundred other ways endea-

Of the same grave character is the great and overshadowing national question of reconstruction. This is the issue of the hour, and of the contest. Who under the Constitution has the right to make laws and regulations for States and people lately in re-chair? These important questions answer plain. You, and the other loyal people of this nation decided them at the ballot box only one year ago, in the election of the Fortieth Coagress, and by a popular verdict four hundred thousand strong? Why has not this decree of the people been executed, and become the settled law of the land? Only because of the perfidy of A. Johnson. Instead of executing the laws, as required by the Constitution, and by his oath of of-fice, he openly defines them, and endeavors systematically to nullify and defeat them. To this end, he strikes down and endeavors to humiliate and degrade our most honored and beloved patriots, statesmen and heroes. Edwin M. Stanton was a patriot, even in the Cabinet of James Buchanau, and ever since he has been loyal, faithful, and true. Generals Philip H. Sheridan and Daniel E. Sickles are patriots and heroes who have omes, five hundred thousand men from State from the foot of the invader. The

Open the beak of the fowl, then with s pointed and narrow knife, make an incision at the back of the roof which will divide the vertebræ and cause immediate death ; after which hang the fowl up by the legs till the bleeding ceases; then rinse the beak out with vinegar and water. Fowls killed in this manner keep longer and do not present the unsightly external marks as those killed by the ordinary system of wringing the neck. When the entrails are drawn im mediately after death, and the fowl stuffed, as they do in France with paper shavings or short cocos nut fibres to preseve their shape, they will keep much longer fresh .-Some breeders cram their poultry before killing, to make them appear heavy; this is a most injudicious plan, as the undigested food soon enters into fermentation, and putrefaction takes, as is evidenced by the quantity of greenish, putrid-looking fowls
