SUNBURY, PA. SATURDAY, MARCH 14, 1868.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ALL RIGHT.-By common consent, the election in New Hampshire was regarded as a test of the Presidential contest of 1868. As the first State to vote the present year-as a State nearly equally divided and always sharply contested freemen-its decision was looked for with an anxiety.

The people of New Hampshire are Conservatives of Justice, Liberty and National they allege, against the canons of the church. Integrity. If the impeachment of President Johnson were such a revolutionary outrage Tyng in this matter. The fulminatious of a as his backers pronounce it, nowhere would it be resented and resisted more sternly, Rome, and this flash in the pan will only than in New Hampshire.

The State was never more thoroughly ty. canvassed than during the last month. Two newspapers to each family is probably below the average; and able and eminent men of both parties drew them together from night to night by thousands. Our victory is complete Gov. Harriman will have about 8,200 majority; last year he had 3,148.

The Democratic State Convention met at Harrisburg on the 4th inst. Wm. Hopkins, of Washington county, presided. Charles E. Boyle, of Fayette county, was nominated for Auditor General, and Gen. Wellington Eut, of Columbia county, for Surveyor General. Wm. V. M'Grath, of Philadelphia, and Gen. Geo. W. Cass, of Allegheny, were chosen Presidential Electors for the State at large, and Isaac E. Hiester, Wm. F. Packer, Geo. W. Woodward, and Wm. Bigler, were chosen delegates at large to the National Convention. W. P. Withington, of this county, was chosen Presidential Elector for this district, and Dr. D. M. Crawford, of Juniata, and Gen. W. H. Miller, of Harrisburg, were elected delegates to represent the district in the National Convention. The resolutions adopted by the Convention are of the usual stamp of Copperhead gatherings.

Northumberland, Lycoming and Montour counties constituted Judge Jor- shed, and many trials and sacrifices endurdan's district, which was one of the beaviest ed; and, thank God, many triumphs achievin the State. THE New York Tribune says the Democratic. They used to burn the buildbe the proportion in that county, and it has given renewed evidence of courage an not yet been materially changed. It must fidelity, and every loyal man excepts the be hard sledding with the sham Democracy Senate to do its duty.

Inspired by past victories we have made returns from New Hampshire!

Robert J. Walker, of whose Democracy there can be no possible doubt, in his our triumphs, until the great and fundamen-great argument in the Mississippi case, held the following language in regard to the petuated, that the majority shall rule, and President's duty to execute all the laws of Congress, without reference to their constitutionality:

"And here let me say a word in vindication of the President, who has been greatly censured, especially by a large portion of the Secession press of the South, for carrying into execution an act which he had vetoed upon the ground that it was unconstitutional. When a bill is presented to the President, he is bound to inquire into its constitutionality before he gives his approval. He is then co-operating with the legislative department of the government. If he declines to sign it and it is passed by a two-thirds majority of Congress, it is as much an act of Congress as if it had received the sanction of the President; and it necessarily follows that, under the obligation imposed upon him by the Constitution to see that the laws are faithfully executed, he is as much bound to execute that act as one which met his fullest approval, Why !-Because the President possesses no judicial power; nor does Congress. If Congress were to attempt to convert itself into a judicial body, and the two Houses should go into Committee of the Whole to inquire into the constitutionality of a particular act, their resolution on that subject would be a more nullity, because they possess legislative power, and not executive or judicial So the President had no right to judge of the constitutionality of an act of Congress after it had become a law, that being a judicial question. If this were not so, it would be the right, and therefore the duty, of every successive President, so soon as he was inaugurated, to take up the hundreds of volumes containing all the acts of Congress, and inquire judicially which of them were constitutional, and which not, and carry into execution those which be believed to be constitutional. I say the President would be usurping the judicial function and overthrowing the distinction crested by the Constitution between the coordinate departments of the Government if he were to attempt to exercise such a power as that. He has no discrittion except to execute the act; and that important fact goes to the very gist of the matter. When an application is made for a mandamus to compel the performance of an act, or an injunction to restrain the execution of an illegal act, it depends upon whether the executive officers have a discretion in either case to judge of the law, and a right to execute it or not at their pleasure. If they have no discretion, and the law positively commands the execution of a particular act, the remedy is by mandamus to act affirmstively; if the law furbids peremptorily the execution of an act, then, where it can be made a judicial question, the appeal is to the judicial tribunals, and especially where the question is a constitutional one. In this case the President has no discretion

At the conclusion of Colonel Jordan's reize temporarily. Colonel Wm. B. Mann was elected Chairman, with the usual complement of Vice Presidents and Secretaries. Gen. Lemuel Todd, of Cumberland county, was elected permanent Chairman. He, in a speech of some length, reviewed the present condition of national affairs, and intimated that the preferences of the convention for the Presidential offices had centered upon Gen, U. S. Grant and Andrew G. Curtin.

After being regularly organized, the Convention proceeded to a ballot as a means of ascertaining the preferences of members of candidates for President and Vice President of the United States. The convention declared for Grant upanimously. For Vice President, Andrew G. Curtin received 109 votes; Benj. F. Wade

22; Edwin M. Stanton 1. The present State officers, Hartranft and Campbell, were unanimously nominated for re-election to the offices of Auditor General and Surveyor General.

The New Albany (Ind.) Ledger 'says that the ship carpenters and boat builders of that city are leaving in large numbers. were it not that the devious ways of American politicians on the eve of a Presidential his willful and defiant course, except to plunge the country into excitement and contention. In a monarchical State a conflict of this nature would almost necessarily lead to civil war. There is no fear of such a result in America, simply because Mr. Johnson cannot command a man, or a musket, or $1,000. There may be excitement, there may be a great impeachment case, there may be a State trial before the Supreme Court, but the appeal will be to law, not to violence. Mr. Johnson evidently exnto the extreme position of impeaching him, the more moderate people throughout the Union will come over to his side. In this we believe he will be mistaken. In the American community, when the question fairly comes to the front, whether the view of the law taken by the House of Legislature or that taken by Mr. Andrew Johnson is to be upheld, the people will side with their representatives, and send Mr. Andrew Johnson back to Tennessee. It is a pity for the great Republic that in place of the firmness, combined with wisdom, which distinguished Mr. Lincoln, she should now have in her Chief Magistrate an obstinacy which keeps the whole nation in turmoil. The contrast at once shows the strength and weakness of a republican form of government. The people may be mistaken in their choice, but they can also get rid of their President if he sets himself above the law. If Mr. Andrew Johnson had been a king in Gentlemen of the Convention and Fellow a limited monarchy, he would have run a metaphorical fashion than he seems already

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, March 8. The Committee of Managers on the Impeachment case have decided that the right challenge, on the part of the President, does not exist. as the Constitution provides that the Sepate shall try the case; and, again, that every State shall have two votes in the Senate. In this view, they will quote a number of precedents to sustain their point, in carrying which, they have no doubt of success.

SENATOR WADE'S ELIGIBILITY. It is believed that the chief reason which prompted Senator Heudricks to withdraw his objection to the oath being administered to Mr. Wade, after long interviews with President Johnson, Messrs. Black. Field and by Senator Thayer, that Senator Patterson being of the family and household of the President, should be excluded if any one was to be, might prevail, and as one Democrat ruled out is equivalent to a gain of two matter any further, for fear it might result

THE HOUSE MANAGERS. The managers on the part of the House have not yet taken any testimony, and all stories to the contrary are unfounded .- Several witnesses have volunteered, but ione have as yet been accepted by the committee, nor has the question of withdrawing Mr. Butler's article even been suggested in the committee.

LENGTH OF THE TRIAL. There is much diversity of opinion as to the duration of the trial, and although no accurate estimate can be formed at this time, it is most likely that the trial will last until the middle or last April. No one here who has an opportunity to judge and who can look upon the issue impartially, doubts a conviction at no distant day, and none believe that Mr. Johnson can so far overcome his insatiated thirst for office as to resign even for a day or an hour. The room of Thomas is being kept locked up and the key is in the personal custody of Mr. Stanton, who refuses to give it to him unless he will resume his duties as Adjutant General and abandon his assumptions to the office

Large streams of water ran along the streets, and many crossings were impassable. A large number of basements and cellars was flooded. Signs, lumber and splinters flew in all directions. The rain cut great gullies in the newly made streets and caused heavy land slides in the streets where grading is being done. This was the hea-viest storm ever known in this locality. No estimate of damages can as yet be made.
