Spring .- The warm weather that succeeded the severe cold snap of last week, has pearly dissipated the snow in all exposed situations. Apprehensions of another great flood have nearly passed away. The frost is nearly all out of the ground, and thus far the earth has mostly absorbed the waters of the melting snow. The river commenced rising slightly on Wed nesday. The ice moved off at Lock Haven and Muncy on Wednesisy, from the dam down. At Williamsport it is gorged, and also at Lewisburg. The flats at Chillisquaque are submerged.

On Thursday noon the ice of the West Branch came with crushing force and moved the ice from off the river at this place. The ice was crowded up the bank and into the road at the upper end of town. The river is not high, but the ice is running thick.

Accidents at Milton.-The Miltonian, of the 6th inst., says :- Bonj. Hendricks was injured at the Catawissa depot on Saturday last, his hand having been caught between the couplings of two cars. It was found necessary to amputate the index and adjoining finger of the injured hand.

Eli B. Dreifuss, an employee of the Catawisea Railroad Co., in making up trains at the depot at this place, was fatally injured on Friday last by being caught between two cars which he was endeavoring to couple. He was horribly mangled, and although Dr. McCleery was called and everything done that could be, he died in a few hours after the accident. The deceased was 27 years of age. The mother of the deceased, who is a widow, resides at Pottsville, to which place the remains were taken.

ROBBERIES IN NORTHUMBERLAND .- The letter of our Northumberland correspondent was miscarried last week, and did not come to hand until too late for insertion. Among the items is the following, in relation to the burglaries committed in that place, recently:—The night of Wednesday, Feb. 26th, is memorable in the annals of Northumberland for its many cases of house-breaking, there having been four attempts at that species of robbery on that hight, the houses of Messrs. Alfred Hawley, John McFarland, Peter Vandling and Dr. McCay having been forcibly entered. The entrance to all was effected by applying any official term, and also showing the present indebtedness of the Borough: recently :- The night of Wednesday, Feb. 26th, is feeted by applying some instrument to the shank end of the front door key, (which had been left in the lock.) from the outside. The only plunder obtained by the robbers was about $3, from Dr. Mc-Cay's. Four attempts at burglary in one night! Who says Northumberland is not a growing place?

DELAYS are as unwise as they are dangerous. When your old clothes wear out do not delay, but go and purchase new ones. Make it a point to get a good srticle-something that will wear, and buy where you can get the cheapest. This can be done at J. O. Beck's Merchant Tailoring establishment, on Fourth street.

Wur is a lover popping the question like a tailor running a hot goose over a suit of clothes? Because he is pressing a suit. It cannot be doubted that he is pressing a suit. It cannot be doubted that Siaymaker, of the Continental Clothing Bazaar, although a married man, "presses more suits" than all the young men in Sunbury combined. But they are the elegantly fitting garments made at the Continental, and all his customers seem to like his style of "pressing."

We are now in the fast winter month. Spring and shad will be here almost "before you know it." The winter has been cold and healthful, full of sparale and oxygen. We have had snow in abundance, giving livery men "lots" of business and our crops and meadows a covering that will double their productiveness next summer. With the advent of the warm season we may expect to witness a great rush Faust's new fashionable Hats, at his store in Market Square.

A Good Time Course.-The cheering business prospects for the coming summer do not argue the general prostration of business that alarmists would foreshadow upon the public mind. The laws of trade, in our opinion, will do much to regulate the condition of the country, and with a determined spirit of industry much of the gloom that obscures the brightness of the future in the minds of the timid will be prevented. And with hope for the good time coming, we advise all to economize by purchasing their Boots and Shoes at Miller's Excelsior Store, in Market Square.

Particular — A young couple of this place, who have resolved to become one, recently tried to fix on the day. He insisted on waiting until J. F. Shaeffer got up his spring goods, in order to get a real stylish suit. She contended that all kinds of elegant material could be had there at any time.—She is right, and should have added, it is made up to order, promptly, neatly and cheaply; but she didn't like to.

A TRUTH.—After all the rare and costly gifts that may pass from one to another, as keepsakes, there is nothing more appropriate and lasting than a life-like photograph of the romembered one.
