To refuse to foster the iron and coal interests of Pennsylvania, is to destroy are for this reason omitted : them, and turn adrift the thousands of TOTAL ASSESSED VALUE OF REAL AND operatives now employed in these branches of industry. To what will they resort? To the plough? Pray if all who are now toiling in our furnaces, forges, foundries, machine shops, rolling mills, coal and iron mines, are driven to agricultural pursuits by reason of the prostration of our iron interests, who will be the consumers? To compete with the illy requieted labor of Europe, is to reduce wages in this country to such a standard as would place our hardy sons of toil in a ten fold worse condition than the laborer of the transatlantic States. To drive them to farms, is to destroy cities, towns and villages, and leave the farmer destitute of a market for his productions. To adopt free trade, is to resort to direct taxation to secure the means to carry on the governmet. The article in the Patriot, starts out with a false assumption, quoted above, and after advocating free trade says: "Politicians have ap-proached its consideration"—the tariff question—"very gingerly for tear of offending some local or selfish interest"—and forther it says: "The principles of the Democratic party on the tariff, as well as on all other patienal questions, are no modified by mere geographical or local in-terests. * * It will be the highth of folly to expect that the Democratic party in the next National Convention, will abute one jst or title in the platform to serve the timidity or gratify the selfishness of a small ortion of the people of Pennsylvania. but underneath lies the essence of the position assumed by the Patriot, viz: That the tariff must and of necessity will be unade n national party issue. In conclusion, the writer of the article makes this declaration

"The Democratic party will be obliged to maintain its position on this question"

—The tariff—"even if it be necessary to ignore remarkants her candidate, and the policy of a few of her timid ponticione."

To this, we say, that if the Democratic party expects to be successful in the next success, the interests of not only Pennsyl-Vania, but of all the other States must be c usidered and respected. To boldly and definitly flout in the face of Pennsylvania her people and her interests, and say to "we do not want your vote"-is to oly the other States having kindred productions, such as Missouri, Tennessee and Virginia, but it is to destroy the interests of worn by bur people,
