THE President has issued a proclama tion calling the attention of the people of the United States, and more particularly of those localities lately in rebellion, to the provisions of the Enforcement Act recently passed by Congress, known as the Ku-Klux bill. This not "applies to all parts of the United States, and will be enforced everywhere, to the extent of the powers vested in the Executive."

A CANVASS of the voters of the 4th ward of New Haven, Connecticut, was made on Report of the Commissioners of the Saturday, and 579 citizens were found who have sworn that they voted for Governor Jewell at the late election. The number of votes found in the box, according to the account on Saturday, was only 497, while the re-turn called for 597. The names of due loans, relief notes, and interest nearly all who voted for Mr. Jewell, as certificates given in the return, have been obtained. This seems to confirm the report that some Amount of principal of loan of June of Mr. Jewell's votes were abstracted from Democratic papers certainly show great inconsistency in advocating the reneal of the income tax while, at the same time, 5 per they call for the taxation of national bonds All the exemption the bonds enjoy by law (says the Chicago Post), is the provision that no State or municipal corporation shall levey taxes on them; but Congress itself levies an income tax on all incomes from bonds exceeding $2,000 per annum, and this tax is the one the Democratic press insists shall be repealed! They 6 per cent, bonds. would tax the bondholder by repealing the only tax he pays! This is about as near a common sense view of public affairs as they generally reach. To demand taxation and urge its re eal in the same issue is highly characteristic of that party's method.

Among the choice bits of news we get this week from New York is an account of the murder of a peaceable and unoffending merchant by a bullying rowdy. The ocwas attempting by expostulation to prevent the rowdy from insulting ladies in a street car. The New York Sun says, as the murderer is in the Tammany ring, of course he will not be hung. Whether Tammany will be able in this instance to violate all justice and public safety, can not yet be sold. This is a decided reduction of one mill, so far as the actual figures are concerned. But while reducing the levy the Tammany Ring has not provided for very heavy expenses that have been authorized and which must be met by a direct tax at some time or other. It is estimated that had provision been made for these authorized expenses, the tax levy would not have been less than elseen mids. THE STATE FINANCES .- When the Republicans came into power in Pennsylvania they found it burdened with a debt of over forty millions of dollars, a legacy of Sham Democratic rule. What has been accomplished by the Republican party, by economy and good management, not with standing the beavy expenses of a war and its consequent burdens, is shown by the following Report of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, which states that the total debt April 30, 1871, was $29,595,987 71-ah average reduction of about a million a year since the Republican party has been in power in the State. Some other collicries run occasionally.

At a recent meeting of the Mt. Carmel district of W. B. A. it was decided that the miners working at the Stuartville and Coul-Bridge collieries should take a third man in their breasts so as to give work to the nowers of the Reliance colliery, which is now idle. The proposition was not carried out, the men preferring to submit to a 85, assessment. All is quiet in our region and a good fieling generally exists between miners and operators. Shomokin Herald.

MOORE VIOLENCE AND BLOOD-

SHED. Another Riot near Scranton. SCRANTON, May 9.—Intelligence was brought to Scrahton that a bloody encoun-ter had taken place in the vicinity of the Dodge Shaft, at two o'clock this afternoon. I immediately started for the scene, and found that a disturbance had taken place in a field adjoining the Hampton mines. A number of laborers from Patagonia, Hyde Park, Belleview, and some other sections, determined upon holding a meeting to discuss the situation of affairs, and to deter-mine what line of conduct they should pursue under existing circumstances.

THE ASSAULT. At two o'clock the laborers assembled in the field aforesaid, and were being addressed by one of their number when a crowd of frenzied Welsh females, backed by about thirty men, came rushing upon them, throwing stones at the laborers and calling them 'blacklegs" and every opprobrious epithet their unchaste tongues could utter. The laborers told them to desist and moved off, not wishing to molest them ; but they were followed by the infuriated crowd, who continued to shower stones. Their cowardly husbands in the meantime went to their assistance, and urged them to persist in their attack.

PISTOLS DRAWN-SHOTS FIRED. The loborers finally turned upon their assailants and returned the assault with interest. Pistols were drawn and shots fired, one of which took effect in the thigh of William Gore, a miner. Gore is a desperate and notorious character. The fight became general, men, women and boys joining pell-mell in the onslaught. One of the number got a blow in the ribs and fell down in a fit; another, named Louisa, the daughter of Thomas Barrow, a miner, was badly cut on the head. The miners every where tried to throw all the blame on the laborers. The attack was brutal and cow-9 00 ardly on the part of the miners, the laborers not being guilty of the slightest provocation. The assault was of the most formidable and determined character.

LABORERS AGAIN INTERCEPTED. The place of conflict was covered with sticks and fragments of rocks. The labor-ers still bent on having their meeting, after having dispersed their assailants, proceeded to Briggs' Shaft. News of the disaster to the W. B. A. men spread like wildfire, and the crowd was rapidly augmented and became fearfully determined in the desire became fearfully determined in the desire to continue the attack. Seeing the labor-to continue the attack. Seeing the labor-to continue the attack. Seeing the labor-to continue the attack of the country and several pieces of artillity of th having dispersed their assailants, proceeders approach in their direction along the railroad, they marched off toward Hyde they turned and intercepted the laborers on mainder from various points in the South. the railroad near the Briggs Shaft.

The miners outnumbered the laborers at 155,976 36 their superiority in this respect, fell upon 100,866 05 them in a merciless manner. It was at one time feared that a general riot would ensue, as the people began to pour down to the scene in great numbers, but the laborers were so few in number that but a feeble resistance could be made against the murderous and overwhelming assault.

MORE FIGHTING FEMALES. The miners had armed themselves with pistols and clubs, which they used with murderous effect upon the laborers; and, the women thinking it a good opportunity to emulate the example of their sisters at Patagonia, showered stones upon their heads. The laborers, after discharging their pistols without effect, fled up the railroad toward the Notch, but not until a who kicked and beat them in a most brutal manner, only leaving off when their victims were covered with blood, when they thought life was extinct.

A company of cavalry was expected to reach Charleston by Thursday morning, and will proceed at once to the counties in the upper part of the State. This action of the Administration, in having sent troops to the locality where the largest number of disorders are reported, has caused some surprise here, in view of the fact that but a few days ago a statement was made that the President did not think it would be necessary to carry out the Ku-klux oill by using the military. It is supposed, how-ever, that danger was apprehended, and it was therefore proposed to have military within reach if required. Southern Republicans now here are pleased, and say that the President has acted in the right spirit by thus early taking steps to carry out the recent law passed by Congress.
