Number one has married for a home. She got tired working in factory or teaching school—she thought married life on earth was but moonlight walks, buggy rides, new bonnets, and nothing to do. Well, she has got her home; whether or not she is tired of the incumbrances this deponent does not positively know.

Number two married because she had seven young sisters and a papa with a narrow income. She consulted the interests of her family. Perhaps she would better have consulted her own interests by taking in light washing or going out by the day to Number three married because Mrs. sounded so much better than Niss. She was twenty-nine years and elven months old, and another mouth would have transformed her into a regular old maid. Think how awful that would have been. Number four married because she wanted somebody to pay her bills. Her husband married for precisely the same reason; so they are both lamenting at leisure. Number five married because Fanny White had a nice new husband, and she wasn't going to be left behind. Pity if she couldn't get married as well as other folks. Number six married because she was poor and wanted riches. She never counted on all other things that were inseparable from those coveted riches. Number seven married because she thought she would like to travel. But Mr. number seven changed his mind afterward, diseases the and all the traveling she has done has been for years. between the well and the back kitchen of sympathy don't hold out very long. Number ten married because she loved her husband with all her heart and all her And she loves him still, and will probably continue to love him, and is the happiest wife in the world-so she says.

We have all the right motive at last-one which, when sanctified by a desire and resolution to improve and elevate each other, and to live true and holy lives before God, cannot fail to call down the blessings of heaven. But sad is the fate of those who marry from wrong motives to escape their share of life's work or to get something for which they have nothing to give
