My mode of preparing the feed is to mix about five parts of the bran with one of middings. In the morning I mix up with water about four quarts of the mixture in a three tin pan, taking pains to have it rather dry, though all damp. This I set in a warm sunny spot south of the shed, and they walk up, take a few dips, don't seem to fancy it like corn, and start off on a short but for something better but the short hunt for something better, but al-ways coming round in a short time for a few more dips, from the dish of bran. There is but little time during the whole day but what one or more are standing by the pan and freely belping themselves. At night, just before they repair to roost, I usually throw them about a pint of shelled cogn, well scattered, so that each one can get a few kernels. If your hens don't incline to cat the bran at first, sprinkle some Indian meal on it. I would like all who complain of not getting eggs to try my plan, and I think they will never be sorry.

Acorns as Food.-Attention has re cently been turned in some quarters to the value of acorns as food for stock. Gerande, who wrote in 1597, says swine grew fat upon acorns. Since then thousands of been fed win Britain and elsewhere, have donnak tree. Proffice upon this fruit of acorns as from experience of the value of for other farm annih only for swine, but Scotland feeds them to enivernobleman in pigs, all of which take them greedily, and appear to thrive well upon this dish. He employs many persons at lifteen pence per bushel, and this season they have already gathered three hundred bushels. Moore's Rural thinks it might be worth while to give greater attention to this crop in our own country, and is of opinion that since there is as great a difference in the quality of acorns as in other nuts, the time may come when oak groves will be planted for the double purpose of producing food for stock as well as for timber, if not, why not? For it is certainly true that acorns do possess a large amount of nutriment, and are readily devoured by various species of animals.

FEEDING STOCK .- Overfeeding is as injurious as underfeeding. Probably more sickness occurs, especially amongst horses, from this cause than from any other. In addition to this evil effect much folder is wasted when stock are supplied with unwasted when stock are supplied with unlimited quantities. Even if it is only within their reach, they will pull it down, pick on the choice bits, and waste the remainjust right, and either more or test than that is an acil to be guarded against.
Owners of stock should watch this, is being more interested and better sample of judging than the great majority of unce.
The proper supply may be masses all that is necessary. When any is I the manger the beast has been overform

.... on has just enough a win eat and en-It is difficult to manage this without direct occasional supervision. "Where the owner is, the crib is clean," and in his absence much waste is almost certain to occur. — Hearth and Home.

CARE OF HORSES' FEET .- The foot is the most important part of a horse; when that is out of order the horse is entirely useless. At this period of the year a great deal of care and attention may profitably be turned to the feet of our horses. Mud, wet, slush, and filth of any kind allowed to remain on a horse's feet will certainly injure them. When a horse' is brought in from work the feet and legs should be washed and rubbed dry. The hoof should be occasionally well turned with common pine tar. If any injury occurs from "ealking" the cut should be kept clean, and if it is at the junction of the hoof and the skin pains should be taken to heal it up at once, lest the hoof may become permanently in-jured as it grows downward. If it is kept oft and pliable there is little danger of this, but if it is allowed to become dry and brittle bad sand-cracks or split-hoof may

WE copy the following items from the Germantown Telegraph :

RENDERING LAND FOR FAMILY USE .-It should be remembered in the first place that the melting of lard preserves it, without using salt or anything else. There is nothing better for melting it than a cast iron pan, but great care should be taken that the fire applied should be uniform and no part of the lard scorches. The fire should be fitted to the pan, or the pan to the fire, and the heat should be as nearly uniform as possible. Let the lard be cut in small pieces and use a slow fire, and the boiling should never exceed a simmer, and the stirring must be continued until the whole has melted. When this is done, the lard is strained through a sieve to eatch any sediment there may be, care being taken not to disturb the sediment. This sediment, which is about two-thirds lard and one-third skins and jelly, should be boiled vary slowly in a smaller pan for the purpose of converting most of it into fig lard. One great point is to prevent the lard from scorching, and this can be done safely only by constant stirring

MINCE PUS,-The following is my way of making minos pies, and I think they are equal to any I have tasted;

Take equal weights of tender beef, suct, raising and apples, which have been previously pared and cored, with half their weight of soft sugar, one oz, of powdered ciunousus, an equal quantity of candied orange and lemon peci, and citron, a little sait and tweive bitter almossis blanched and grated. Chap the mint and the su-separately; wash and pick the currents. stone the ramins and chop them with peel and having mineed all the ingredients very ine, mix together, adding a nutner grated and the juice of a lemon. A ghan or two of wine or brandy greatly Improves it. Line your dishes or party pans with puff paste; fill with the mines, cover and pinch the edges together. Bake half an hour.

A NICE JELLY CAKE, -One cup of good a vect cream and two cups of white sugar beaten together, add six well-heaten eggs, three cups of flour, the juice of a ismon and one cup of currents. Blandve a small teaemont of sola in part of the cream and shoulds the quantity of cream of tartar in the dear. Bute is a loaf and then when conducts in moderately thin siless around the loaf, spread with apple fully and put too or caremily, and the loaf will be complete effect.
