Rinos are having a hard fight in all parts of the country, in municipal, State and national affairs. There is no mistaking the signs of the times on this subject. Everywhere people are opening their eyes to the fact that unless they take a larger interest in politics, demanding and commanding what they want to preserve parity of action and honesty of purpose in public affairs, these will become too strong for the people, and where that bappens the people will not be allowed a voice in the government. A WIFE ROASTED ALIVE. A FEARFUL TRAGEDY AT LINN.

MASS. Itusband Charged with Throwing Kerosene Over His Wife and Then

Setting Her on Fire. Boston, Nov. 18 .- One of the most brutal and inhuman tragedies which ever horrified any community was enacted at Lynn has night, and is to-day the leading topic of conversation in that city. The actors were a man named John G. Clinton, about forty-three years of age, a barber by trade, and his wife, who was made the victim of treatment that could only be expected from a fiend, she having been shockingly beaten and then literally roasted to death. The scene of the affair was on Howard street, in one of the small wooden houses which are set back from the street, and accessible by means of parrow alleyways from the street. The parties lived in the rear of No. 33, the family consisting of Clinton, his wife and four boys, ranging in pense upon you. And here we desire to say that there is no man in Huntingdon county to a year the say that there is no man in Huntingdon half-past eight o'clock last evening two women, named Margaret Brown and Charlotte Mo.dy, who lived almost directly in front of Clinton's house, had their attention called to the latter by the sound of Ned Sharpe, John Loucks, Ned Sharpe, John Evans, the murderer, heavy blows, screaming and groaning which proceeded from it. As the sounds increased the two women went out and listened beneath the windows, but the sounds suddenly ceased and all was quiet. They then returned to their houses, but in about fifteen minutes were again disturbed by the same noises, which they again sought to trace out as before, but the sounds ceased as they had previously done. After this everything remained quiet until about ten minutes past 9 o'clock, when the same women discovered that the house was on fire inside. An alarm was at once raised, and three men, named David Lee, Frelinghuysen Moody and Frederick Walton, rushed into the house with buckets. On entering they found that there was fire on a table in the front room, also in an entry way which led up stairs, and a pile in the middle of the floor, consisting of what appeared to be a bundle of clothing, was also burning. On examining the latter it was found to be the body of Mrs. Clinton, horrible bruised and burned in a most sickening manner. The clothing was almost entirely burned from the body, which scorched and roasted. The flames were put on with some difficulty. The belief that the man is guilty is allecture in Boston, gravely announced that most universal. One theory of the affair the United States had not had a first-class is that he had some difficulty with his wife, during which he threw the kerosene lamp the people may be startled and horrified by at her, striking her on the breast and inflicting the wounds referred to; that the oil scattered over her elothing and the

MURDER IN HYDE PARK.

[From the Scranton Republican, Nov. 18.] [From the Scranton Republican, Nov. 18.]

A most sanguinary affair took place in Hyde Park yesterday afternoon at half past four o'clock, in a saloon on Main street, nearly opposite the postoffice. The saloon in which the affair occurred is called the Mechanics' House, and is kept by a man named D. R. Evans. It is one of those low grog shops where the roughs resort, after their day's labor, to spend any surplus left of their month's wages.

When we got to the scene of the affray we found an excited crowd gathered around the door, and evidences of the bloody deed that had been done, on every hand. Blood, blood, was seen on every side; the door-steps were slippery with the sanguinary flood, and the door frame was all bespatered with it. The saloon was crowded. Behind the bar a woman sat, screaming. In front of the counter, and with his head leaning upon it, was the saloon keeper, in a woful state of contrition and remorse, perhaps produced by reflecting on his part in the deed of blood.

Ned Sharpe, John Evans, the murderer, and Benjamin Hughes, his victim. From John Loucks, who was an eye-witness of the whole affair, we got an intelligent statement. He says that Benjamin Hughes is a miner and lives in Wilkesbarre. He was formerly a resident of Hyde Park, and had come up yesterday to see some of his old acquaintances, among whom was John Evans. The parties named were in the saloon together, and were all drunk. Evans and Hughes were sitting at one of the tables, and had several drinks. A disagreement took place as to who should pay for some the imperial flag of Russia. of the drinks, and some sharp words passed which finally resulted in Hughes knocking John Evans down. Loucks remonstrated with Hughes for doing so, saying that Evans was an old man, but Hughes knock-ed him down again. Evans then told Hughes that he would stab him if he did so again. Hughes desisted, and moved away from Evans to a chair at the end of the bar, but after a moment's silence Evans put his hand in his yest pocket, drew therefrom a knife, and taking it in his left hand, went up to Hughes as he sat on the chair, and stabbed him in the throat. The wound is about two inches in length, and extends were put our with some difficulty. Ope report is that while the son were endeavoring to extinguish the fire the poor stating threw up one of her arms and breathed perceptibly, but another, and probably the fell from his sent and the blood rushed frome the wound in a torrent. Recovering his strength, however, he ran to the door, opened it, gained the sidewalk and ran down the street until opposite Dr. Gibbs' office, where he fell. Some person who saw the man shouted police, and C. W. Roesler, being near by, ran to arrest the man. As soon as he saw the nature of the occurrence, he made for the saloon, where he found John Evans making a desperate effort to cut his own throat while several women tried to prevent him. The knife was wrenched from him before he could do any-thing more than to inflict a flesh wound in the side of his neck. The knife is a regular jack-knife, having a blade about three inches in length, very sharp, and with a spring in the back of it to prevent its shutting except at the optics of the owner. ting except at the option of the owner. Evans was taken lessed Alderman Jones, who committed him to Wilkesbarre jail. several doctors waited on him, who pronounced death inevitable. Hughes is about thirty-two years of age, and is unmarried. Evans is about forty-five and has a wife and children in Wales. While going with the officer to the depot, Evans manifested the deepest contrition, and said that Hughes was his best friend. Thus rum has given the grave another victim, and perhaps another soul to perdition.

ARRIVAL OF THE GRAND DUKE ALEXIS.

Intended Honors. NEW YORK, Nov. 20. The announcement yesterday morning of the safe arrival of the lightship of the Russian frigate Svetland, with the Grand Duke Alexis on board, created great excitement and a general feeling of joy throughout the city. It served at once to dispet the fears for his safety entertained by some, and to communicate to our citizens the welcome news that the long expected imperial visitor had come. The depected imperial visitor had come. The de-lay of his arrival beyond the anticipated time has heightened the excitement con-cerning his visit to America, and will undoubtedly tend to increase the enthusiasm with which he will be greeted after be has

The Russian squadron left Cronstadt on the 21st of August, sailing for Falmouth, England, where they arrived on the 9th of September. Here they were delayed some time by taking in fresh provisions, and on the 20th of September they sailed for Madeira, where the fleet dropped anchor on the 5th of October. Here the Grand Duke spent five days, when they weighed anchor for New York. The Svetland left Madeira on the 10th inst., in company with the Bogatire and Abreck. On the third day out the Abreck was signalled and directed to rendezvous at New York, the Svetland taking a southwesterly course to meet the trade winds. Everything went along well until the 5th of November, when they experienced a gale in which the Bogatire carried away her forctop gallant mast. On the 6th the Systland and Bogatire lost sight of each other, the Svetland experiencing very heavy weather until the 18th, when they were able to make a lunar observation and found they were in the latitude of Cape May, when they made direct for New York. The vessel was under sail a great portion of the time, having run short of coal.

Early to-morrow morning the Grand Duke will proceed to Washington, accompanied by the diplomatic representative of Russia and suite. This visit will not extend over twenty-four hours. It is to be undertaken merely for the purpose of being presented to the President, Cabinet, and foreign ministers, who will welcome bim in a body to the White House. He will return to New York about Thursday evening.

What provisions there were in sion or money. What provisions there were it the city are now burned or caten. A few people have enough for a day or two-not longer visions are arriving, but are distributed as first as possible. Twenty dead bodies have taken to the station on the North side. At sent it is impossible to know who they are mant comes on, the want of gas is keenly felt. There are few candles in the city, and no water except what is taken from the Lake. Great lears of thieves are felt on the West side; and General Sheridan is still calling for troops from different posts to keep order. All business and work is suspended, and every one is occupied in procursing something to eat, and places of shelter. The suffering on the North side are heart rending. saftering on the North side are heart rending.

Fifty thousand men, women and children are
