BUTTER IN SACKS.—The dairymen of Washington Territory, for want of tubs and jars, have adopted a method of putting up and keeping butter which, though novel, presents some features that are worthy of the attention of those who buy butter packages of the retail trade. This packing is thus described:—

All butter is packed in muslin sacks, made in such form that the package, when complete, is a cylinder three or four inches in diameter and from half to a foot in length. The butter goes from the churn as soon as worked over, into the cylindrical bags, made of the bleached muslin. The packages are then put into large casks containing strong brine with a slight admixture of saltpetre, and by means of weights kept always below the surface. The cloth integument always protects the butter from any impurities that chance to come in contact with the package, and being always buried in the air, that protects it from the action of the brine, and it has been ascertained by trial that butter put up in this way will keep sweet longer than in any other way.

Besides, it is found easier and cheaper for the manufacturer than to pack either in jars or tins. And for the retailer, there is no feeling the advantage on the score of safety and convenience. These rolls of butter can be upon in counter sale from injury, from dust or other contact, as bars of lead; can be rolled up for his customer in a sheet of paper with as much propriety as a bundle of matches. If the consumer, when he gets home, discovers specks of dust upon the outside of the sack, he can take it into a pan of pure cold water and knead it out clean and white. As he uses the butter from day to day, with a sharp knife he cuts it out from the end of the roll in slices of the thickness of a cent, and peels off the cloth from the end of the slice, leaving it in tidy form to place upon the table.

Recipes, &c.

KEEPING GOLD FISH.—All gold fish dealers say "feed the gold fish nothing at all, they will derive their sustenance from the water." A correspondent of the Rural New Yorker says:—

I have kept gold fish for two years or more. The first season I purchased three or four gold fish, following the instructions of parties from whom I purchased. I then thought I would use my own judgment in the matter and see if feeding would kill them, as I had been informed by the above-mentioned dealer. I now have five gold fish, three minnows, one crayfish, one dace, one turtle, in an aquarium 30 h. 16 inches and 12 inches deep. I have on the bottom about two inches of fine lake sand, and scattered here and there stones built up or piled so as to form runways. I feed them about twice a week with fresh beef, cut into small pieces and dropped on a silver fork, and a few pieces of trout as they will seize the pieces until satisfied. I have often seen them jump three inches above the water trying to catch a fly on the side of the glass. I keep a small plant of the Calla species in a pot standing in the water, and the fish, some say it helps to keep the water pure. I change and renew the water twice a week during the winter and three times during the summer. I find it is a great pleasure to sit and watch the fishes at all times, and would not part with my aquarium for anything.

PLUM Pudding.—One pound of bread crumbs, half a pound of sweet butter, eight fresh eggs, one quart of milk, one quart of sugar, one pound of stoned raisins, one-half pound of well-washed currants, one-half pound of citron thinly shredded, graded peels of two lemons. Soak the bread crumbs in the milk; chop the butter fine, beat the eggs to a froth and beat in all the currants and raisins, and add the citron and peels, a saucer, stir to a cream half a cup of butter, with one cup of powdered white sugar. Add a glass of wine, and just before serving, two tablespoonfuls of boiling milk. Another sauce, less rich, is made from the beaten whites of three eggs and one cup and a-half of sugar. Add to this when ready to serve, four tablespoonfuls of boiling milk and a wineglass of wine.

TO KILL ROACHES.—A writer in the Country Gentleman gives his experience in killing roaches as follows: I moved into an old house; the roaches soon made their appearance in the kitchen and cellar under; was lashed and plagued between the joints. I went down to the cellar and carried light; it just gave me the horrors; I thought we should have nothing fit to eat; over the victuals shelf I could not spread my hand between the largest I ever saw. I got 2 oz. red water, broke them up, and mixed with one quart of water. In a short time they were all dead. I then found to be found. Where they would I never knew; they were never found dead.

PUMPKIN PRESERVES.—Cut a nice ripe pumpkin into pieces a third of an inch thick, paring them. Take out all seeds in white sugar. Allow the juice of one lemon to a pound of pumpkin. Let the pumpkin remain in a pan with the sugar and juice all night. In the morning put into a preserving pan, and cook until perfectly clear. Be sure to skim all fat from the top. When done, put in pieces small as marbles. Take out and strain the syrup through a jelly-bag and pour over the pumpkin.

SPECIFIC FOR DIPHTHERIA.—The Italian journals publish a letter from Dr. Giovanni Galvani, describing the remarkable success which has attended his treatment of diphtheria with phenic acid. He relates the losses he formerly experienced among his patients when treating them with encephalic acid, and cauterization with hydrochloric acid, and observes that this morbid principle than tearing the surface of a plant will destroy the root. He now simply uses a gargle of phenic acid and distilled water, with external application of new flannel; the food and drink to be taken cold. In the adoption of this treatment Dr. Galvani lost all his patients out of fifty-eight. He requested the Italian journals to publish the discovery. Phenic acid is the agent which is now being used in this country as a remedy for cancer, and is very likely to effect an immense saving of lives formerly hopelessly sacrificed to this disease.

The Scranton Democrat says: "We are enabled to announce upon the best authority that there will be no reduction of prices paid for mining coal after the first of January. That the Companies have entertained no thought of any such action, and that if the men are so disposed, there will be no stoppage in the works in this manner of stoppage. This fact is to be officially announced by the Companies in a few days. The rates at which the men are now working, will be continued throughout the coming year, thus ensuring prosperous times for all branches of industry in this valley."

The storm which raged in California for more than a week ended on New Year's Day, and bright fair weather now prevails in its stead.

Manhood: How Lost, How Restored. Just published, a new edition of Dr. Cutver's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure (without medicine) of Spermatorrhea or Seminal Weakness, and its attendant Sundry Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy, and Fits, induced by self-indulgence of sexual extravagance. Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents. The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately, and radically.

Also, Dr. Cutver's "Marriage Guide," price 50 cents. Address the Publishers, CHAS. J. C. KLINE & CO., 127 Beaver, New York, Post Office Box 4, O. C. Oct. 21, 1871.
