Each organization was well represented. The procession then marched through several of the streets to the cometery, where a prayer was offered up by the Rev. Mr. Gerhard. Vocal music was performed by Prof. Brown and assistants. The ceremony of decorating the graves was then appropriately performed by the veteran surviving soldiers of this place, while the hand played a dirge appropriate to the occasion. The procoaston then reformed and marched up Fourth grand to Market Square and dismissed.

THE FOURTH OF JULY .- There appears to be a desire, on the part of many of our citizens, to have an old-fashioned celebration on the 4th of July, in this place, yet no steps have been taken towards accomplishing this end. We would suggest, in order to get a starting point, so that preliminary arrangements can be made, that the each in a meeting to be held at an early day, to decide upon a centennial celebration of the Bo-Sunbury at 11:50 a m At Sunbury 9:55 a m 4:00 p m The original plot of the Borough of Sunbury was The original plot of the Borough of Sunbury was laid out in June and July, 1772, just one hundred years ago. The evening session called to order by Elias Schneider—the exercises consisted of select readings by Elias Schneider, Miss M. A. Russell and D. W. Barnhart. The selections were fine and well read, one of which—on the death of Horace Mann, is herewith presented for publication, as a tribute of respect, allike, to both the author and the subject of the poem. A commendable Essay—"The Teacher's Duty"—was read by B. F. Hughes. A discussion on the relative merits of —"The Teacher's Duty"—was read by B. F. Hughes. A discussion on the relative merits of Public and Private Schools was enthusiastically debated by Messrs, D. W. Duhling, W. G. Wenver, B. F. Hughes, S. P. Fink, S. Stevens and Ellas Schneider. The dobaters pretty generally agreed that Seminaries and Colleges were indispensable; also private schools of lesser grade when supported by pupils from districts in which the public school term was short and the gradiation poor; but, in districts numbering many protion poor; but, in districts numbering many pu-pils, having from eight to ten months schooling, the private schools were believed to be of but lit-
