Another important matter is the selection of nia is now asked to brand with defeat and the County Standing Committee. Let shame one of the most gallant commanders in the late war, General John F. Let each Republican attend the delegate election to-day and do his duty the memories of the late war. But is it toward selecting the best men for delegates, and they give us good men on the ticket and with an active executive committee victory is sure to crown our efforts.

THE County ticket put in nomination Buckalew, who without the courage of beby the Democrats on Monday last, is probably more dissatisfactory than any presented by that party for twenty years past, except that of last year. The Ring virtually succeeded in securing a majority of the caudidates. It was evident too that the majority of the delegates had come here with honest intentions of nominating ury, and with an account of many thousand who were not connected with the Ring, sand dollars against him for which he has and who had at least some qualifications to fill the offices, but before they could comprehend the situation, the leaders of the Ring bad them sold out like "sheep in the his oath of office, as the rebel archives show shambles." THE LOUISVILLE CONVENTION .- The straight-out Democratic Convention which met at Louisville on Tuesday last, nominated Charles O'Connor, of New York, for President, and John Q. The ticket is a strong one and will command respect from all parties .-Mr. O'Connor ranks among the ablest lawyers in the country, and is a gentleman of splendid education, and if elected (but he won't be,) President of the United States, so far as purity goes, would make one of the ablest of the Chief Magistrates the country ever had.

John Quincy Adams, for Vice President, is in fine accord with the nominee for President. He belongs to revolutionary stock, and has been a Democrat for yearsnot having joined the party in the hope of securing any little honor it is supposed to have at its disposal.

The only significance of these nominations is that they will enable Democrats who are honest to maintain their consistency, while they insure the existence of the old Democratic organization. THE Convention of the Democracy for the nomination of candidates came off at this place on Monday last. It was a warm and bitter contest among the different factions of the Democracy. A number of the unsuccessful candidates did not hesitate to declare, even before the convention met, that a nomination by the party this fall, if not as unpromising as last year, was but trip from Providence to New York this little if any more encouraging, and felt a relief in being freed from a contest in which principles had been discarded and success could be found. BUCKALEW.

The Germantown Telegraph, one of the ablest papers in the country, while holding aloof from the fierce contest of the campaign, always expresses a decided opinion upon questions which affect the integrity of our nation or Commonwealth. Speaking of the rebel archives purchased by the national government it says: They reveal the fact that in 1804 the present coalition can-didate for Governor of Pennsylvania, Chas. R. That Mr. Greeley is an honest man we are willing to believe, and that he would not steal our purse or horse we also believe, but these are hardly arguments to convince us that he ought to be elected Presedent of the United State. If he was elected by a party composed of men as honest as himself there might be no fear, but we find nominated by men every one of whom nated by men, every one of whom were men who had been driven from office either on account of incapacity or gross dereliction, and then he is taken up as a dereliction, and then he is taken up as a candidate by the Tammany Democracy whose name is synonymous with everything that is corrupt. It is from these that Mr. Greeley must choose his subordinates: these are the men who must be placed in the fifty thousand offices at the President's gift. These are facts and when men talk of Mr. Greeley's fitness for the Presidency we should bear in mind that his election must result in placing in power the men

CORRESPONDENCE.

Our Philadelphia Letter. PHILADEEPHIA, Sept., 4, 1872. FRIEND WILVERT :-

To resume from last week, in regard to General Hartranft, I am aware of the cry of Alex. McClures' organ in this city, and I am happy to say that here where we know it best and the reasons prompting it, its efforts goes for naught. How could it be otherwise? Its great pattern of goodness is a perjured man—vilely so as ever man could be—coming before the people and promising with all the earnestness and solemnity possible and calling down the and promising with all the earnestness and solemnity possible, and calling down the Heavens to witness his declaration, posting it in flaming colors on the fences &c., "Under no circumstances will I be arrayed against the President, but will aid and assist in his re-election with all my power, believing it to be the wish of you my constituents." In language similar to the above he carried votes enough to leave so slight a majority against him, as to be readily overcome by a democratic Senatorial Committee aided by deep dyed and perjured villians like himself. Such is the man, who with Horace Greeley and the constant who with Horace Greeley and the constant lauditory burden of the songs of that pre-tended friend of the administration and the re-election of President Grant, and who finds so much fault with General Hartranft. It is strange that although at first the effect was somewhat damaging, it has decreased so suddenly and become of little moment. A daily reader of the Press I beard express bimself as follows a few days ago, "read-ing it and it a one, I have made up my mind that it is a necessary opposition, and caused by fear of exposure of themselves if the man is elected whom they so fear," and that is really the gist of the matter. Look that is really the gist of the matter. Look at the history of the matter they harp on so continually, the Evans affair. It is in evidence and approved by the signatures, those too of leading Democrats in the State, that G. O. Evans was urged for the position by J. W. Forney alone, and by his sworn testimony says he owed his position to said Forneys' influence; that said Forney and other members of his family received sums varying from two to six thousceived sums varying from two to six thousand dollars as their share of the plunder, or as the Hon. J. W. " for services rendered," in what? In getting an opportunity to rob the people of the State. That Gen. Hartrant would not withdraw the suits and leave them off with their illgotten gains is the great offence he has committed. We have the evidence of men above reproach that had General Hartranft done so, the same parties and their friends would have paid him well, even offering him near sixty thousand dollars to settle and he would not, what did they then do? Threatened to do exactly what they have now done, in the hopes of frightening him from being a candidate which he had been announced as a year or eighteen months before. Why do they fear him so. Simply because they know if he is elected he will appoint an Attorney General who will prosecute them for their share of the stealings. So they offer Buckalew their support and their reward is to be the appointment of some one who will not do so, in fact pledged to drop the They assert this nomination to be the
