BEDFORD SPRINGS, Aug. 16, 1873. A trip to Bedford Springs by way of the Huntingdon from 12 at noon till 6 o'clock in the evening, arriving at Bedford at 9 P. M., whereas on our return, we left the Springs after breakfast, at 6 A. M., took time 6 hours and 55 minutes. The ride to accident by which some boiling iron was fed her, and then heard her story, which spilled over one of his feet severely crippled was this: Lewistown is a pleasant one, the scenery varied and picturesque. A PHILADELPHIA HORROR.

CRUEL TREATMENT OF A YOUNG GIRL. Beaten, Menucled and Starced by her Step-Mother.

REDUCED TO A SKELETON.

BESMEARED WITH FILTH AND DYING.

ESCAPES BY DRAWING THE NAMES OF HER PRISON

The Philadelphia papers of Thursday last contain the history of one of the most fiendish acts that has ever fallen under our notice, We take the account partly from the Age and partly from the Press:

Before Alderman Beitler, at the Central Station yesterday afternoon, a hearing was given to two females, who, if the evidence against them is true, are the most villainous wretches who were ever given to wear a female form.

Their names are Josephine Rowland, an slderly woman, and her daughter, Sarah Jane Baptist, both residing at No. 704 Dickerson street.

The evidence alleged the following: Ten years ago the wife of Jonathan Rowland, a resident of Southwark, died, and within a year after he married the eldest defendant, who had a daughter, the other defendant, by a former marriage. Mrs. Wilson recognized her as Mary Elizabeth Rowland, the second daughter of Mr. Rowland, who had, three years before, fled to her with a tale of horrible treatment, but who had her taken away by Sarab Jane Baptist, under a threat of prosecution by the girl's father. About two weeks since even this indulgence ceased. She was still confined and fed only at the same interval with bread and water, but not permitted to leave her room. But in addition to this the common decencies of confinement were denied her, and the result was that her room and her person were besmeared with the filth

To her she told the same story, and related that she effected her escape on Sunday moraing by actually drawing the nails from the sash in the room in which she was confined with her teeth, and then, getting out on a shed, escaped through the yard into a back street, from which she made her escape to Mrs. Wilson's.

ONE ADVANTAGE OF BRANCH ROADS. Twice this summer already did the Sunbury & Lewistown Railroad become of great importance and usefulness to the Penna, R. R. Co, for the passage of their trains around obstructions on their main lines. When the bridge at Linden was carried off by the ice flood in the spring, their freight trains passed round by Selinsgrove, Lewistown and Tyrone Lock Haven above Linden. It was the more important with such trains as were ladened with perishable goods, and that passed through on Sunday. The great slide between Harris-burg and Mifflintown, and for twenty-four hours the passenger trains of the Penna. R. R. passed west by way of Selinsgrove and Beavertown to Lewistown.—Selinsgrove Times, Aug. 15th.

BRIDGE No. 24, on the Northern Central road, near the Elmira shops, was burned on the 12th. It has been rebuilt and trains are passing without interruption.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20, 1873.

REMOVAL OF AN EYESORE. The long-enduring public will at length be able to walk through those portions of Fulton, South and Beekman Streets which surrounds Fulton market with comparative freedom. Oysters, clams, soups, coffee, and cakes, will no more be served over the gutters; nor will fruit be sold on the out edge of the sidewalk. Foot passengers will no longer be forced to turn aside to avoid the motly crowd that stands blocking up the therough fare and devouring slices of water-mellon, apples, peaches, and bananas in the most primitive manner. The side-walk booths and stalls have fallen cictims to the first vengeance of the Board of Health. Of course such a proceeding was much against the wishes of those who are thus turned out of sale stands which they have long occupied! But the thousand who pass from Brooklyn to New York and back again every day breathe more freely, and their eyes are gladdened by the remov-al of many disagreeable sights.

OPERATIC RELIGION. For all practical purposes it is scarcely who have worked up the services of Christ Church. Fifth avenue, to a point where it was difficult for the uneducated ear to detect whether the music heard was operatic or not, true, there was thrown in occasionally a little dash of sacred music, but it was the exception not the rule. Recently, however, the rector swooped down on the whole performance, and declared that it must cease. The effect of his speech was observable in the organ gallery and in the choir stalls. The "Artists" were appointed, the organist expressed an intention to remove, the wealthy broker of Broad street who paid so much to sustain the music took possession of the books and there was a lively little tempest, but it soon subsided. THE GREAT REMEDY FOR CONSUMPTION which can be cured by a timely resort to this standard preparation, as has been proved by the hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors. It is acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most reliable preparation ever introduced for the relief and cure of all Lung complaints, and is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years. When resorted to in season it seldom fails to effect a speedy cure in the most severe cases of Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Influenza, Asthma, Colds, Sore Throat, Pains or Soreness in the Chest and Side, Liver Complaint, Bleeding at the Lungs, &c. Wistar's Balsam does not dry up a Cough, and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs, and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint. SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, Boston, Mass., And sold by Druggiets and Dealers generally.
