

Foreign Intelligence.

Arrival of the Canada.

The Steamship Canada, Captain Judkins, arrived at Halifax on the 23d instant, bringing the following intelligence:

The harvest operations have commenced under favorable auspices, and advices from different agricultural districts speak well of the crops as giving good promise of abundant yield throughout the Kingdom.

The quantity of gold and silver imported during the last six months has not been less than six millions pounds sterling.

HUNGARY AND AUSTRIA.

As far as it is possible to trace the operations and position of the contending armies, from the confused and conflicting published accounts, it seems that the Hungarians were at the latest accounts occupying the line of the Theiss, and that they still maintained their position at Szegeden.

The London Daily News gives currency to the following, on the strength of a correspondent, who says that a courier from Galatz brought the news.

The Austrian and Russian army, 60,000 strong, after occupying Hermaustadt and Cronstadt, and other small places, advanced to Sarteani.

Under the head of the "Latest Intelligence," the European times says the Vienna Journals of the 5th instant, supply us with news from Hungary, of great importance if true.

As you are already aware, at the very beginning of the Hungarian Revolution, several Secretaries were appointed in Kossuth's Cabinet, one of them understanding Bohemian language, another Croatian, another Italian, another French and German, and all of them understanding Magyar.

At 11 o'clock the head of one of my colleagues was already nodding and both myself and the one opposite me could hardly keep our eyes open.

The clock struck 12, and the noise of the departure of the copyists from the neighboring room roused him from his reflections, "what time is it gentlemen?" he asked us, and when we told him it was just after 12, he became unquiet and a cloud suddenly spread over his brow.

Finally, after waiting vainly for another hour, he said to us: "Let us take a little rest, gentlemen, while we are waiting; I will call you when I need your help."

My friend, if beyond the ocean, in the free and happy America, there are men who feel sympathy for our good cause, who desire the success of our efforts, do not ask their prayer's so much for the triumph of the Magyars as for the life of Kossuth, for Hungary cannot be conquered so long as this incomprehensible being, whose name is Kossuth, is spared, though Russians and Austrians enter the country by myriads, and though thousands of our brethren fall as sacrifices of Freedom.

He looked paler and more suffering than usual. A glass of medicine stood at his side, from which he tasted from time to time, as if it were the means of keeping up his physical existence.

One might almost say that the physical part of him has no longer an existence of its own; for, if it were not so the perishing, sickly fool would long since have been dissolved in spite of all the wisdom of the physicians.

ly in movement. He will not be sick, and he is not. Great are his bodily infirmities and sufferings he is strong and indefatigable. His spiritual resources, his will, his enthusiasm, endow him with the powers of a giant, although his physical strength is not more than that of a boy of six years.

I had scarcely taken my place when he began to dictate a letter to Bem, for me to write, and so we were employed for some hours, during which I wrote two letters and each of my colleagues three, all by his dictation; he himself had in the mean time prepared two dispatches, one for Perczel, the other for Comorn.

After nine o'clock he left us work in abundance for the whole day, and went with the Ministers SZEMERE and DUSCHKE, who came for him to the House of Representatives, taking a long with him some papers, on which he had made several memoranda.

He came back about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, accompanied by several Representatives, with whom he had a conference of two hours answering their questions and suggestions, this did not prevent him from examining the documents we had prepared during his absence, or from dictating more letters. While he was thus dictating to us three or four letters, with totally different contents, being given off together by the same lips, we had to be exceedingly careful to taking them down.

At six o'clock came more dispatches, and verbal inquiries, all of which were answered without any delay. My dinner consisted of a glass of wine, a piece of ham, and some bread, which I had on the table besides me, and disposed of with the best appetite as I was writing. The Representatives with one exception, went away; the one remaining sat down at the side of Kossuth and began to help us. This made five Secretaries, and to give you some conception of the labor of the evening, I will tell you that from half-past 7 to half-past 8 he dictated to us, at the same time, five letters, all of different contents!

After this he was for some time engaged with figures which he reckoned and reckoned in a state of almost perfect abstraction. While he was thus occupied, his friend and family physician, the Doctor and Professor Buga Pal came in and interrupted him. He greeted the Doctor, and kindly pointed him to a chair, and returned to his occupation as before.

At 11 o'clock the head of one of my colleagues was already nodding and both myself and the one opposite me could hardly keep our eyes open.

The clock struck 12, and the noise of the departure of the copyists from the neighboring room roused him from his reflections, "what time is it gentlemen?" he asked us, and when we told him it was just after 12, he became unquiet and a cloud suddenly spread over his brow.

My friend, if beyond the ocean, in the free and happy America, there are men who feel sympathy for our good cause, who desire the success of our efforts, do not ask their prayer's so much for the triumph of the Magyars as for the life of Kossuth, for Hungary cannot be conquered so long as this incomprehensible being, whose name is Kossuth, is spared, though Russians and Austrians enter the country by myriads, and though thousands of our brethren fall as sacrifices of Freedom.

ALLENTOWN ACADEMY, FALL TERM 1849.

Commences Monday Sept. 3d, A. M. The punctual attendance of all who propose entering cannot be too strongly recommended.

The principles upon which the affairs of the Institution are conducted, are too well known to need extended remark. The prices of tuition in view of the advantages afforded, it is thought are extremely moderate, and it will always be the primary object to afford the best facilities for what is commonly termed a good Education, and in order to do this, on the part of the pupil, punctual and unbroken attendance is highly important.

R. C. CHANDLER, Principal. Aug. 30.
