A Searching Letter

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, Feb, 21, 1842. Sir : The interests of the Government require, the officers engaged in the revenue service should be men whose character for sobriety, skill and vigilance, is above all suspicion. It is feared that in some instances this may not be the case, and the object of this letter is to request you to inform me whether the character of those officers with whom you are acquainted is such as fully to meet the requisition above mentioned. If you know sny one who is wanting in sobriety, skill or vigilance, you will make known without reserve, his deficiencies, so that a timely corrective may be applied. I am respectfully, Your ob't servant.

Secretary of the Treasury. To the Collector of the Custom House at-

"Life of Genius."

Mr. Mamtt's Lecture.

We have rarely listened to a more brilliant, and never to a less satisfactory, lecture than that of Prof. MATTITT delivered at the Tabernacle on Wednesday evening. His subject was the 'Life of Genius,'-a theme which a man of Genius would have made eloquent with beauty, with truth and with power ; while in Mr. Maffitt's discourse it seemed merely to suggest the shadows of hollow thoughts and to give occasion for fine modulations of the voice and the sounding emptiness of unmeaning words. Mr. Maffitt's delivery is always graceful, sometimes highly impressive, and generally good ; on Wednesday evening it was more chaste and less injured by theatrical starts, repulsive distortion of the features, and gasping undertones of the voice, than usual. There are few public speakers who are heard with more pleasure than he, and still fewer who produce real effect.

The sum of his lecture may be stated in few words. He defined Genius-with more truth than originality-to be the power of Creating ; and its constituent parts, he said, were ambition, hope, a love of the fitness of things, the longing after im mortality, benevolence, singularity, and, most especially, enthusiasm. Each of these parts in succession he made the theme of extended remark, not in explanation, but by way of illustration and alornment. Some of his images were highly fanciful and beautiful; but, without an exception which we can call to mind, they rendered still more obscure the meaning which at best was most questionable. In apparent illustration of the definition he had given, for instance, he said that Genius is the molten cascade of yellow gold fringed with the foam of glittering silver ;' and again, that it is 'the embodied angle of inspiration,' 'the angle of ubiquity-the bride of eternity.' In distinguishing the eloquence of the pulpit from the eloquence of the bar, he said that the former is "the glory of God clothed with the love that passes all understanding;' while the latter is the 'face of Moses on the top of Horeb, on which no man can look but with a shudder.' The immortal mind, he said. thas a capacity to be filled only with the glittering spirit of the Universe.' Such expressions from his lecture we might greatly multiply; there may be profound meaning in them-and we suppose we are bound to concede there is for they drew down immense applause ; but if there be such a thing as 'sound and fury' signifying nothing,' we humbly believe that these sentences, and indeed the greater part of his lectore, embodied it as perfectly as man can do it. A portion of the lecture was an enumeration of the works Genius; and among them he classed, without the slightest discrimination, the poems of Homer, the battle of Waterloo, the labors of the Reformers, who 'bade the clock of eternity pause while they could notch upon the centuries the impress of their master many more. Those who may be afflicted with minds ;' the steam engine of Pulton, the defence of New-Orleans, the making of a blade of Damascus, and the unfurling of the American fiag by Mr. $1 per bottle. Poinsett in the blood-deluged streets of Mexico. He told how Genius dwells among the stars, how it fills all time, eternity and the grave; and how it is worshipped by all nations-by every individual, and especially by Woman, who 'should never be refused a place in the Pantheon of the gods,' and whose bright eyes make man feel like a god in their presence.' Ordinary language never serves Mr. Maffitt's purpose ; he never remembers an incident, but 'a story arises on his miud;' and a graduating studeut, instead of marrying a lovely girl in the vicinity, was united in the holy bands of matrimony to one of the most charming nymphs who may favor him with a call. By strict attenof the vale that embosomed the college."

THE EASTERN CAPITALISTS are operating in this region and we doubt not the happiest results will grow out of it to all concerned. We under- prop stand that a number of Boston capitalists were at The N. Y. Tribune thus notices a lecture re- Reading and Pottsville last week, examining into cently delivered by Mr. Maffitt in that city, on the the water privileges, the rail road and canals, and the iron and coal resources. They were as much gratified as they were as onished at the extent of the wealth undisturbed, in Pennsylvania. The Reading rail road stock is getting into eastern hands and a large amount of eastern capital we predict, will soon be invested at Reading and Pottsville. Philad. Gaz.

> OPSTIPATIO OR COSTIVENESS .- Costiveness is an unnatural state of the bowels, caused by whitever is injurious to the digestive organs. Its immediate consequences are nausea, headache, loss of appetite, &c., but its ultimate consequences are pregnant with every ill that flesh is heir to." The decomposed parts of the body, which are thrown by the blood into the bowels, are there detained, instead of being avacuated daily. In order, therefore, to prevent any evil consequences resulting from this accumulation of impurities, it will be only necessary to purge the bowels well with Brandreth's Vegetable Universal Pills ; a medicine which for mildness and efficacy is unsurpassed. These Pills have been used in every variety of derangements of the human body, and yet, when properly used, never failed to restore to health, except in those cases where nature was exhausted before the pills were commenced with.
