

ALEXANDER.—The statement of Alexander, in reference to the killing of Mr. Lougee, related to one of the jury since the trial, is, that "he went into the office of Mr. Lougee, to get some Western money changed; that after the exchange had been effected, Mr. L. suspected the note to be bad; that a dispute consequently arose between them; the lie passed from both parties across the counter; the prisoner was ordered to leave the office, but feeling his dignity wounded, he refused; upon which Mr. L. came round the counter and was about to seize him, when he clutched the dagger, made a pass with it, and how or where he struck him, or with what degree of force, he did not know, until after it was done."—Phil. Ledger.

The reasons of Gov. SEWARD for dismissing David Moulton from the office of Sheriff of Oneida co. are published in the Albany Journal. It seems that Moulton went to Washington to demand of the President, by the authority of the Governor, a criminal then in the District of Columbia; that while there, he agreed with the man not to arrest him, and to secure the discontinuance of the suit by the prosecutor; that he received for this $180. of which $80 was to be retained for payment of his own expenses, and the rest to be given to the prosecutor; and that on his return, he demanded and received payment from the State Treasury of his expenses for duties which he had not only not performed, but bargained, for a pecuniary consideration, not to perform. These reasons the Governor thinks abundantly sufficient to justify his dismissal.

LAWYERS IN NEW HAMPSHIRE.—The following resolutions have been adopted by the Legislature of New Hampshire, in relation to the practice of law in that State:

1. "Any person of good moral character on application to the Supreme Court, shall be admitted to practice as an Attorney.

2. "Every party in a cause, prosecution or suit, may appear, plead, pursue, or defend in his proper person, or by any citizen of good moral character."

FEARFUL ACCIDENT.—On Thursday night, the sloop Dart, of Brewer's Creek, was blown over being in ballast, on her beam end, on the oyster bank, directly off this village, and partially filled. The depth of water did not admit of her sinking, and the next morning she was seen from each shore. There were four hands on board, three of whom were on deck at the time she went over, and one in the cabin. In the course of the night the three left the wreck without an attempt to rescue their fellow sufferer to the cabin, and drifted, having no oars, to the shore, near Sparta. The next morning, persons from the shore discovering the wreck, and a man on the vessel, boats and oarsmen from this place, and also from the Rockland landing, put off to bring him to shore, and thus the poor man was restored provisionally to his anxious friends in that county.—What an anxious night he must have passed in that cabin, holding himself to the upper side, and out of the water! And how must his companions feel who left him in that perilous position to perish! The Dart is one of the fastest sailing vessels on the River, and carried usually a heavy press of sail.—Westchester Herald.

The Cropping System in France.

According to the Parisian journals, it appears that the wholesale dealers in human hair have had a most successful harvest this year, not less than 200,000 lbs. weight having been procured. Brittany is the province of France, in which the traffic is mostly carried on, and all the fairs are regularly attended by purchasers, both male and female. The Breton peasants have particularly fine hair, and generally in great abundance; their beautiful tresses are perfectly willing to sell, and it is no uncommon sight to see several girls sheared one after the other like sheep, and many others standing ready for the shears, with their caps in their hands, and their long hair combed out and hanging down their waists. Every successive crop of hair is tied up into a whisp by itself, and thrown into a large basket, placed by the side of the operator. The highest value given by these shornable hair merchants for a fine crop of hair, is 20 sous; but the more frequent consideration is a gausly, but trumpet cotton handkerchief worth about 16 sous! The profits thus netted by these hair-mongers must be enormous.—London paper.

Foreign Items.

French Comedians.—The number of Comedians in France is estimated at ten thousand.

Beggars.—It is estimated that Europe contains more beggars than the population of the United States, white and colored. The average number of this class is a trifle more than ten per cent of the whole population of the Continent. In Holland it is fourteen per cent; in Denmark five per cent; in England ten per cent.

The Sister of Burns.—Mrs. Bezz, a sister of the poet Burns, was recently found to be in a forlorn and destitute condition. A few admirers of the poet commenced a subscription for her relief, which has amounted to a sum sufficient to provide a comfortable subsistence during the remainder of her life.

Goethe.—The German Diet has taken the resolution to buy the house of the poet Goethe and to preserve it as a public and national monument.

Playing Cards.—Fenner, a French Canadian missionary, asserts that it is not uncommon at Montreal, to play at cards, during Lent, for prayers, which the loser has to repeat for the benefit of the winner.—London Globe.

The Jews of New York.—The Jews in New York are said to be ten thousand in number. They have six synagogues. Their Benevolent Society has, in the last year, collected about 5,000 and expended about 4,000 dollars.—The legal liabilities they still lie under in some countries of Europe, and the strong prejudices they there have to encounter, are, it is said, driving many persons of this faith to seek refuge in the United States.

The Chinese.—The recent expedition of the British to China will no doubt prove serviceable, in pouring a flood of light upon the habits and manners of that, in some measure, hitherto mysterious people. One or two works have already appeared from the pens of British officers, which possess no little interest. Utterly wrong and outrageous as many regard the general features of the war, it will nevertheless be a gratifying result in a Christian, commercial and civilized point of view. The French poet, Lamartine, speaks of the expedition as likely to open the gates of a vast world, containing many millions of human beings, to the eyes of other and more social portions of the family of man. We have heard other distinguished sources express similar views; and look forward in connexion with this subject to still more mighty consequences. While we are willing to anticipate the best in all such cases, we cannot recognise the doctrine as sound, that crime and outrage are suitable means to attempt the remote accomplishment of good. We annex an extract from a work on China, recently published in England by a Captain Bingham:—

"The tea-king, or Child of the Ocean, is one of the most extensive rivers in the world, second only to the Mississippi and Amazon. It takes its rise in Tibet, and ere reaching the sea passes over an extent of 2,700 miles of country in its circuitous route, relieving the Lakes Tongting and Poyang of their superfluous waters. When passing Nankin it runs with a continual ebb, and with such force as to require a strong breeze to sail against it. In its downward course numerous islands are formed, which are constantly increasing from the quantity of soil suspended in its waters. The Conway had been employed in surveying the mouths of this mighty river, and her indefatigable captain succeeded in discovering a passage by which line of battle ships might be conducted through the sands which guard its entrance. The Conway did not proceed above sixty miles up, and even then the ebb was found to run eight hours, and the flood at neap tides was scarcely perceptible.

"The appearance of the ship created a great sensation; and the natives were apparently busy throwing up fortifications, which, being examined by the telescope, proved nothing but mats extended on poles, with painted ports, to give them the appearance of forts; these poor ignorant people not having the least idea that their real character could be so easily distinguished. During the time the dispute was going on between the late Lord Napier and the Chinese authorities, our countrymen at Canton were one morning astonished at seeing the shore apparently bristling with a hundred cannon; but on examining them with their glasses, they had up in the front of a mat fort a range of earthen jars, with their open ends pointed toward the river. We found that it was a constant practice to stick a large round piece of wood into the muzzle of a three-pounder, painted white, with a black spot as large as the bore of a thirty-two pounder, and as the white muzzle was continued along the line of guns, it became very difficult, by merely looking at them, to discover the deception."

WM. HEILMAN & CO.,
Commission & Forwarding Merchants,
Foot of Willow Street Rail Road,
PHILADELPHIA.

HAVING associated with them Joseph Barnett, of Easton, Pa., respectfully inform their friends and the public generally, that they have taken that large and well known store and wharf at Foot of Willow Street Railroad, lately occupied by Jacob Martin, where they propose doing a General Commission and Forwarding Business, and from the best advantages of the place being connected with all the public improvements that have their outlet in the city, they flatter themselves they will be able to do business as good, if not greater advantage, and upon as reasonable terms as any other business, and they assure their friends that any consignments made to them shall have their strict attention, and no exertions spared to give entire satisfaction.

They are also prepared to receive and forward goods in any part on the Delaware and Lehigh rivers, between Mauch Chunk, Easton and Philadelphia, via Delaware River and Lehigh Canal; also, to any point on the Juniata river, or North and West Branches of the Susquehanna via Schuylkill and Union, or the Chesapeake and Tide Water Canals.

For the accommodation of Boats coming or going via Schuylkill and Union Canals, a Steamer will be kept expressly for towing boats from the Schuylkill around to the Del water neck, which will do the business in half their ordinary time, and well on the water, and their goods stored at a meeting of 50 to 75 per cent. on the price for loading or unloading, with these advantages they respectfully solicit a share of our business.
