Among the rumors in circulation at Matamowas one that Monterey had already fallen into the hands of the Americans. To Col. no faith in it, but rather inclines to adopt the version of the story given by the Mexicans.

They say that letters from Monterey assert that a body of Americans, who came down by the way of New Mexico, were joined near the Presido by a number of Texan adventurers, and the combined force had entered the town without any opposition. It was beleived to be true by the natives, says the Flag, and that paper is evidently prepared to hear a confirmation of the intelligence. Our correspondent mentions Col. Harney's movements in two of his letters, and in terms of some severity. The army was evidently surprised by them, but they may not know what authority the Colonel had for his proceedings.

Late News from Mexico-

The Washington Union, contains the intelligence from Mexico, recently received, which has not been laid before the community through any other source.

Files of Mexican papers, to the 26th of August inclusive, have been received at the Navy Department. They contain little of interest except the address or manifesto of General Santa Anna to the people of Mexico, dated the 16th of August, the day of his landing at Vera Cruz. It is a paper of some length, ably and carefully framed, and temperate in language and senti-

He makes no direct or earnest profession of an intention to prosecute the war against the United States, and does not speak of this country in the usual terms of vilification.

He concludes by disclaiming any desire or intention to exercise dictatorial power, and therefore proposes that the Congress about to be assembled shall be empowered to regulate all branches of the administration of the government, and that the provisional exentive be entirely under its control. He also recommends that, until a new constitution be proclaimed, the constitution of 1824 be adopted for the internal administration of the departments.

A letter from Monterey, dated the 8th of July says, that they expected General Taylor there about the 15th of August; and although their small army was prepared to make a good defence they expected a defeat, unless the first brigade of the army--which left Mexico under the command of Garcia Conde-should arrive seasona-

Quiet prevailed in the city of Mexico, but the papers do not seem to indicate much enthusiasm n favor of Santa Anna.

BALTIMORE MARKET.

Office of the BALTIMORE AMERICAN, Sept. 14. GRAIN .- The supplies of wheat at market today are very small, and are far from equal to the demand.
