Rob Waddam's Horse Trade. "You know Bob Waddam, I reckon," seid Uncle Mike.

"Not that I recollect," I replied. "Well, Bob was an amagin' band at tradin' bosses, and generally come out ahead too. I never knew him really girdled and in the enderbrush but once."

"How was that, Uncle Mike!"

"Why, you see Bob had just been getting a gray hose m some of his deals, that was just about as nice a bose to look at as ever put his we through the rack sticks. He was a human lookin' horse, and nothin' shorter. He was always looking for stars, and carried his tail like the national flag on the 4th of July. But he wouldn't work-he was above it. He'd almost step when he'd see his shadow followin' him, for fear he might be drawing it. Now then, says Bob, some individual is bound to be picked up. So makin' an excuse that Gray's phoes wanted fixin', he sent him to the blacksmith's, and harnessed up his other houses, hitched on to a wagon load of stone, and drove down to Sam Here he stopped before the door, unbarnessed him up in his place. Bob went in and took a drink, and waited around until some man should come along who wanted to speculate. He hadn't been waitin' long when he see some feller comin' up the road I ke all possessed, his hosses under a full run. while he was sawin' the bit and hollerin' wo ! soo! with all his might and main. He maneged to stop 'em after he got a little by Sam Hewett's and turnin' 'em round, he come up a slappin' his hands and cussin' that sorrel hose.' lie's never ready to stop, says he, "that hose ain't; and the' he's the best hoss I ever owned, yet, blast my eyes if I don't git shut of him."

"Well, jest then out comes Bob and mounted his wagon jest as if he was goin' to drive off, when says he--

" 'Hallo, stranger, perhaps you'd like to deal with me for a steady one ?

"'Why ; yes,' says the stranger, 'I would like something a little more quiet than that go-ahead enap-dragon rascal of mine.

"So Bub he looked at the sorrel, and found him a fine square built animal, his eye full of fire, and every muscle in play.

".Well,' my Bod, 'a few words does for me. There's my gray-here's your sorrel, What's your proposition !"

"'Now you are talking,' says the stranger. examine the gray, as he stood hitched to the load of stone. I'll give you sorrel, and the best tions, cause neither one of them wanted to ansmer any. The hosses were exchanged -- Bob had got his clock, and the stranger got into his wagon, took up his lines, and bidding 'em goodday, was about to start, when gray put a stop to it, and wouldn't budge a hair. In vain did the stranger whip and coax-not an inch could he get. There sat Bob, laughing in his sleeve, almost ready to burst, to see how the stranger was trying to start and couldn't. Not a word did the stranger say, however; but after he had got tired, and had given up trying any more, he came and sat down on the horse block.

"Bob thought be might as well be going ! so picking up his ribbone 'go along,' says he. The sorrel turned his head and looked back at him, as much as to say, 'don't you wish I would?" but didn't stir a hoof. In vain Bob coaxed and patted. Sorrel was thur, and he wasn't anywhere alse!

"'Well, I recken it's my turn to laugh now," said the stranger; 'I 'spose you'll call again when you come in town !" "'Oh never mind,' eave Bob. 'Sorrel will Trenton Banking Co" go, or else you couldn't got here with him."

"'Oh yes,' says the stranger; 'you can start him it you'll only bring some shavings, and Bk of Wilm & Brandywine kindle a fire under him, as I did.
