Renovation of the Potato.

A porare that will not produce more than one hundred and fifty bushels to the sere, is not worth the farmer's attention, much less if it be in a diseased state; and, in my opinion, the old potato is not worth redemption from disease. even if it could be effected. The world, I concaive, is in immediate want of new varieties; new, in their origin from the seed; new, in quality and productiveness. Such potatoes have been produced, and are in advance of the old grop in every important particular. They are cultivated by several persons in Europe, as well as in this country. A gentleman in Germany, near Hamburg, says that he has practiced raising potatoes from the seed for fitteen years, and has obtained splendid varieties, which are not attacked by the disease. I have practiced the same method for seven years, and know, by my own experiments and observations, that it to the true course to pursue.

I am now making preparations for the culture of about thirty acres the ensuing summer, for seedling tubers, and the seed of seedlings. The latter is in the fifth successive year from the old potato. I expect my seedling tubers will produce four hundred or five hundred bushels to the acre; and from the seed of my seedlings I hope to obtain at least three hundred hundred bushels per acre, the tubers weighing ten ounces each. I think this estimate a safe one, though much will depend upon the season. The summer draughts in this laky region operate very unfavorable to the potato crop.

The coming season, I intend to gather a large quantity of seed from the balls of my seedling tubers, which grow on the vines in great abundance, while on many of the old varieties they have entirely disappeared. Half an ounce of seed will plant a quarter of an acre. It can be conveyed in letters by mail with perfect convenience. The best, fully developed, distinct varieties of tubers, selected with care, will probably be in market in September next, from which seedsmen and others can be supplied.

Since the commencement of the potato malady, some persons have produced seedlings from old tubers, have found them diseased the first year of planting, and have abandoned the experiment, pronouncing the method as useless. The first seedlings from a stock so deteriorated or diseased, if found perfectly healthy would seem a miracle. The perfect redemption from the malady is to be looked for only through successive generations, by the consecutive planting and culture of seedling tubers, and the seed of the same. Every year's experiment brings both the tuber and its seed essentially in advance of its former condition. Seven years ago, I found great difficulty in preserving my potato plants from the frost and little black bugs. In the autumn, the product was so trifling that I was near ready to abondon the experiment .-Last summer, in the fourth succession, I raised, from a thimble full of seed, twelve bushels of tobers. Some of the single plants had on their roots one thousand potatoes, weighing, in a few instances, seven ounces each.

A GERMAN STORY .- The son of an old farmer, by some chance or other, had travelled through several remote countries, and as is not uncommon in such cases, returned home much richer in lies than in knowledge. A few days after his arrival, he accompanied his father-a pretty shrewd old fellow-to a market at some distance from the village. It happened that a mastiff dog passed that way, which, as soon as the young man beheld, he cried out-

Bless me, father! this dog puts me in mind of one I saw in my travels, at least as large as the largest of our cart horses."

'What you tell me,' replied the father gravely. 'astonishes me; but don't imagine that in this country we are wholly without prodigies; by and by we shall come to a bridge, which we shall be ruliged to pass, and which is much more extraordinary than the dog of which you have been talking. They say it is the work of some witch. All I know of it is this-that there is a stone in the middle of it, against which one is sure to stumble as he passes on, and break a leg at least, if it so happens that he has told a lie in the course of the day.'

The youth was a little startled at this strange account.

'At what a rate you are walking, father!but to return to the dog-how large did I say ? As your largest horse ? Nay, for that matter, I believe I might be saying a little to much, for I recollect it was but six months old; but I would be on my outh that it was as big as a hei-

Here the story rested till they were a mile or two advanced on their way. The young man was very far from being comfortable. The fatal bridge appears at a distance.

Hear me, father; indeed the dog we have been speaking of; was very large, but not quite as large as a heifer ; I am sure, however, it was larger than a calf."

At length they arrived at the foot of the bridge. The son stopped short-

'Ah! father,' said he, 'you cannot be such a simpleton as to believe I have seen a dog of such a size; for once I must speak the truth, the dog I met in my travels was not larger than the dog we saw an hour or two ago."

SHAVING CREAM. Small quantities given without Charge. At 114 Chennut St., PHILADELPHIA

HIS new and splendid article, as its name denotes, is professed to be superior to any Shaving Cream in the United States or Europe. It is unsurpass d for beauty, purity and fragrance, the comewhat analogous to Guerlain's Ambrosial Cream and other similar compounds. It far surpasses them all by the em-lient pasty consistency of its lather, which so softens the beard as to rendshaving pleasant and easy. It further possesses the advantage over the imported article, in being freshly prepared, no skill being wanting in its manufacture. E. Roussel having had many years' experience in the celebrated Laboratory of Laugur. Pere et Fils, now Renaud & co., of Paris.

Besides being the best, it is the cheapest article for shaving; it is elegantly put up in boxes, with splendid steel engraved labels.

Price $3 per dozen, or 374 cents for a single box to shave one year. It is also sold at $1 50 per lb or 124 cents per og., so that gentlemen can have their boxes filled at EUGENE ROUSSEL'S.
