trip to North Allegheny, Brett Banker, Benim's predecessor as head coach, was introduced to Pegher by Mazur, who was Banker's initial recruit.

Pegher's decision to attend Behrend was made so late in the summer that she visited the campus, took her required placement tests, and registered for classes the same day.

The University didn't even have a room assignment for her. She roomed with an RA for the first couple of weeks of the semester.

Softball has been a pastime for Pegher since she was 7 (she is 19 yrs. old). For North Allegheny, she played three years of varsity basketball, along with four years of varsity softball. She dropped basketball to concentrate on softball during her senior year.

When asked about how she is able to juggle her already busy schedule (the Lady Lions were originally scheduled to finish off the regular season with six doubleheaders in six days), Pegher replied, "You can't find the time. That's true. You're so busy that when you have the time, you're so worn out. But you realize how much you have to get done. It's tough, but as Paul [Benim] would say, 'Discipline'."

Despite a return trip from Florida that lasted for days because of Blizzard '93, Pegher says that the thing she'll always remember from this season involves a team inside joke about "Snurtle Sisters."

Five years from now, she hopes to be happily married and that her degree in management information systems will have her working for a big firm like Westinghouse.

A company like Westinghouse would mean $$$. Then again, that's what made Barry Bonds go to San Francisco.
